Fever and Ague. This malarial fever, which is so common in the system, induced by the poisonous action of the action of solar heat on wet soil, and rises with the water vapor from the soil, and is held in solution by the atmosphere, and is carried to the lungs, where it is taken up through the lungs into the blood. It then acts as an irritant on the internal vessels and excites a violent congestion of the liver, and produces a violent congestion of the system.

WHAT ARE CONSOLS? This question may be worth answering at present, when every eye is looking with interest to the commercial status of Great Britain. A rise or fall in "Consols" is invariably taken as a sign of commercial prosperity or adversity, yet few have a very definite idea of what is meant by "Consols."
