

CRATER'S BOOM HEARD 750 MILES

Alaskan Mountain, Now Erupting, Shakes Whole Island

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Mt. Katmai, reported by Capt. McMullin, of the steamer Dirigo, to be throwing out great volumes of sulphurous-laden smoke, is a peak 7,500 feet high, situated relatively near the eastern end of the Alaska peninsula and of the Aleutian Mountains. The seaman reports the ocean for a distance of 100 miles to be discolored by sulphur dust and pumice. The last eruption of the volcano, in June 1912, as described in a statement by the National Geographic Society, at Washington, D. C., compiled from data collected by Geo. C. Marth, the geologist who directed the society's Alaskan volcano researches following Mt. Katmai's outbreak, was one of the most violent of historic time.

"All southern Alaska knew at once of Katmai's eruption on the morning of June 6, 1912," reads the society's statement. "The sound of the first mighty explosion carried down the coast as far as Juneau, 750 miles away, and was even heard across the Alaska Range at Dawson and Fairbanks, distant 650 and 500 miles respectively. The column of steam and ash that rose several miles in the air was carried eastward by the wind and within a few hours had shed a shower of ashes all over the east end of the Alaska Peninsula, the east half of Kodiak Island and all of Afognak Island. Intense darkness accompanied the fall and midnight blackness in the daytime extended as far east as the Kenai Peninsula. Darkness lasted for 60 hours at Kodiak, 100 miles away. Dust fell as far away as Juneau, Ketchikan and the Yukon Valley, 750, 900 and 600 miles. The fumes were reported from points as far remote as Vancouver Island and Puget Sound, 1,500 miles away. Subsequent terrific explosions occurred at 3 and 11 p. m. of the same day.

Graphic Tale of Shower.

"A description of the fall of ashes is given by John E. Thwaites, of the steamer Dora, which was 55 miles away when the shower began. 'And now began the real rain of ashes. It fell in torrents; it swirled and eddied; he says. 'Gravity seemed to have nothing to do with the course of the fall. The under side of the decks seemed to catch as much ash as the sides or the decks under our feet. Bright clusters of electric light could be seen but a few feet away, and we had to feel our way about the deck. It was with the greatest difficulty that the man at the wheel could see the compass, through the thick dust that filled the room. Lurid flashes of lightning glared continuously, while a constant boom of thunder, sometimes coinciding with the flash, increased the horror of the inferno around us. As far as seeing or hearing anything pertaining to earth, we might as well have been miles above the surface of the water. And still we knew the sun was two hours above the horizon. Birds floundered, crying wildly, through space and fell helpless to the deck.'

Eruption of Great Magnitude.

"The magnitude of an eruption is not properly measured by the loss of life and damage to property, but rather in terms of the natural phenomena: the quantity and distribution of the ejected material, the distance at which the sound waves, dust, darkness and fumes were observed, the violence of the accompanying earthquakes, and the distribution and intensity of the resulting atmospheric conditions. The greatest eruptions on record include those of Krakatoa in 1883, Cosiguina in 1825, Tambora in 1815, Skaptar-Jokull in 1783 and Papandayang in 1772. The eruption of Katmai was apparently of a magnitude comparable with some of these. The deposits from Katmai vary in thickness from 55 inches at the head of Amalik Bay, 15 1/2 miles from the mountain, to 3 1/4

BROKERS' GOSSIP

Allouez.

Allouez is likely to begin paying dividends before the end of this year. Its cost per pound of copper produced may slightly exceed 11 cents in 1914, but it should be somewhat lower than that in 1913. This company has a splendid future outlook.

Copper Range.

Copper Range is emerging from its period of adversity. It is making approximately a record production and, with the benefit of the regrading recently installed in its mills, it should soon have its cost of production down to nine cents again. It seems to me that this company's stock is selling at a ridiculously low price.

Houghton Copper.

Houghton Copper has now more than 400 feet of drifts on the tenth level, the bottom of the mine, and this shows for almost its whole length commercial grades and the major part is of very good grades. The disclosures recently made, especially in the northern drift have not been so good. It is likely that surveys for railroad connections will be soon made. As soon as the railroad is completed it is probable that a mill test will be made of the stock pile which has become so large as to be in the way. It is understood that unless there is some very great change for the worse in the condition of the openings, that after the cash has been received from sale of the 8,000 shares that have been advertised for sale Aug. 18 for the non-payment of assessments, $1 having been called May 17, 1912 and $1 July 15, 1913, the shaft will be sunk to the tenth level. As there is about 6,000 shares to be sold for the non-payment of both assessments and 2,000 for that of the last, there should be received, with the current price of $2 per share, something like the full amount due, about $14,000.

Victoria.

Victoria has so far met with fifty feet of very good values in the course of the shaft below the twenty-fifth level. On the twenty-fourth level there have been disclosed 269 feet of very good grades of copper, the last being just as high in value as the preceding, and the breast or face of the drift is revealing equally good metal. On the twenty-fifth level a cross-cut failed to find the shoot, so the diamond drill has been used without any results of a favorable character. The cross-cut will be carried farther in and the diamond drill used again. The fact that a few feet below this level such a long stretch of good ground in depth and known peculiarities, the metal's has been encountered would from the occurrence in this lode seem to indicate that the copper must soon appear. Besides the openings on the twenty-fourth and twenty-fifth and the sinking of the shaft the eastern drifts on the tenth, eleventh and fourteenth levels are showing good rock, and that on the twenty-second fair rock.

South Lake.

South Lake is waiting for the electric pump which has lately been installed, to be running smoothly, so that the steam power that has been operating the pump can be used for another drill. The compressor can only supply air for three drills. Two drills are being employed in the long cross-cut on the sixth and lowest level and the third will be put to work drifting on the No. 1 so-called Evergreen lode, which has recently again been passed through by the crosscut from the shaft at the third level and which showed a width of thirty feet with some copper the entire distance, the eighteen feet having very good grades. It is expected that this work will be begun the last of this week. The cross-cut at the thirty-second level has covered a distance of about 175 feet and the sixty last feet has been in a very dense hard trap. As nearly as the dip of the four lodes when bored through by the seven drill holes was determined to be in the opposite direction to those of the regular formations, where the shaft is located and in which the crosscut is now progressing, the geological developments are being very closely watched by the mining men here. Many have thought that some earth movement was so great as to completely sever and turn around the South Lake formations of which the Lake Lode is conceded to be a member, while others claim that it only bent and reversed the dip of some of the series. It is also considered probable that as the locations of these changes are approached there would be a gradually increasing disturbed condition of the formations, but nothing of that nature has yet been observed, and on the other hand the strata are as regular and undisturbed as the leaves of a book. This property with the three so-called Evergreen lodes discovered by the shaft and the four South Lake lodes would seem to be one of the most promising of the non-producers.

Guards Clear the Room.

Falling to make himself heard, the presiding judge, followed by the other judges, marched out of the room. The advocates took complete possession of the court. Some of them mounted the judges' desks and harranged the crowd. The guards then cleared a portion of the room and comparative quiet was restored. Judge Albano then returned and read the judgment ordering the release of Mme. Caillaux. Shaken with emotion, Mme. Caillaux left by the witness' door, the guards making a lane through the crowd. She covered her face with her hands, as if to shield herself from the furious cries of "Murderess!"

By way of a number of narrow corridors and back staircases she reached a small side door in the palace of justice, where an automobile was awaiting and drove off unobserved. M. Caillaux left by the main entrance amid mingled cheers and hoots.

Thus ended the most sensational trial with which Parisian courts have had to deal in years.

FINE FESTIVAL AWAITS FIREMEN

Ishpeming Department Preparing New and Novel Features

That copper country firemen have an unusual treat in store for them in the Ishpeming tournament is indicated in reports received here from the Home-rite city. Ament the attractions, the Marquette Journal says:

Within a few days the program for the firemen's tournament week will be completed. The members of the arrangement committee have engaged several fine attractions. The races this year will be a decided novelty. There will be no cart pulling contests by the firemen, as they will be carried to the point where the coupling and other tests will take place either by automobiles or horse wagons. Four automobile concerns have promised to send trucks and there will also be a display of other fire fighting equipment.

The attractions will be by far the best that have ever been engaged for a similar reunion. Ed Hutchinson's sensational balloon ascensions, with from two to four men making parachute drops at the same time, will be the principal free attraction and the ascensions will be given twice each day.

One of the important features of the celebration will be a children's parade, for which an organization will be perfected next Saturday afternoon, when a meeting will be held in the fire hall. The parade will likely take place Thursday. Women and girls who will be in charge of the various features are determined to make it even more attractive than the children's parade during the home-coming celebration. The children of the several wards will be thoroughly organized, and there will be several features in the procession.

Last year there were so many features that the judges found it impos-
