

Another club woman, Mrs. Haule, of Edgerton, Wis., tells how she was cured of irregularities and uterine trouble, terrible pains and backache by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"A while ago my health began to fail because of female troubles. The doctor did not help me. I remembered that my mother had used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound on many occasions for irregularities and uterine troubles, and I felt sure that it could not harm me at any rate to give it a trial.

"I was certainly glad to find that within a week I felt much better, the terrible pains in my back and side were beginning to cease, and at the time of menstruation I did not have nearly as serious a time as heretofore, so I continued its use for two months, and at the end of that time I was like a new woman. I really have never felt better in my life, have not had a sick headache since, and weigh 20 pounds more than I ever did, so I unhesitatingly recommend Vegetable Compound."

—Mrs. M. H. Haule, Edgerton, Wis., President, Household Economics Club. —$5000 for trial of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Women should remember there is one tried and true remedy for all female ills, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Refuse to buy any other medicine, you need the best.

Garman Says It.
The first three days of the trial of Senator Nichols for alleged subornation of perjury gave no evidence that he was interested in the case. Friday morning, however, Garman, the New York promoter, told of Nichols visiting him at 23 Broadway, New York, after the Grand Rapids water scandal had been exposed, and offering him $500 to sign a statement to the effect that he would go on the stand and testify favorably to Lant K. Salisbury in the latter's trial.

Garman said he told Nichols that it would be contrary to his testimony before the grand jury, and he did not like to do it. Garman, however, signed the statement, and Nichols, he alleges, gave him the money.

This statement was produced as evidence after long objection by the defense. Garman will tell of other transactions with Senator Nichols.

The Michigan Grange.
The National Grange Friday morning listened to the reports of the secretary and treasurer showing the order to be in flourishing condition. Last year 256 new granges were organized in the various states, Michigan taking the lead with 96. Various resolutions were introduced and referred to committees, which will not report until next week.

The balance of the day was spent in visiting state institutions and the sugar factory, and the conferring of the seventh degree by the national body. About 500 persons will take this degree. It looks as if Syracuse, N. Y., will be selected as the place for next year's meeting.

Will He Retire?
A close friend of Senator M. A. Hanna, writing on political business to a friend in Washington, is authority for the story that Senator Hanna will retire from public life at the end of his present senatorial term. The Washington Post, usually very well informed about Mr. Hanna, prints the news as a probable fact. Partial support of the story is also at hand from other sources.

Alex McDonald, who broke jail in St. Joseph in 1887 and eluded capture until a few months ago, claims that he has fallen here to $10,000.

Mr. Wu, the Chinese minister, will be the guest of the Silk Association of America and the American Asiatic association at a farewell banquet to be given in New York Thursday night.

Almost totally deaf in both ears for a period of seven years, Charles McCole, 11 years old, of Pittsburg, Pa., suddenly regained his sense of hearing when he came in contact with a "river" wife. His case had been considered hopeless.

Follow Murderers' Trail

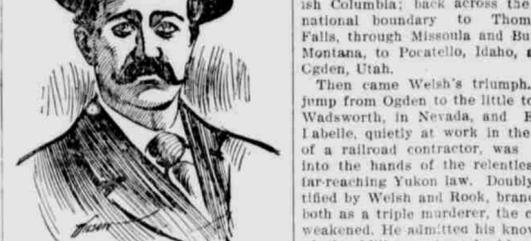

Detectives of the Northwest Spend Months in Tireless Search of Men Who Had Committed Crimes in the Yukon.

Here is a story of the most remarkable police force in the world—a story of the detectives of the British Northwest of the men who ferret out the murder mysteries of the tangled wilderness of the Yukon.

In the territorial jail of the Klondike at Dawson lie two men, whom the wonderful detectives of the Northwest charge with the murder of four men in the remote wilderness of the Yukon valley.

Their names are Victor Fournier and Edward Labelle. The murders took place on a little island in the British Yukon.

Leon Bouthillette, Joseph Guy Beau-

"Pete" Fournier, slain by Fournier, by Labelle or by both. Down below Dawson, on the American side, Gilbert Dufors was shot to death by Labelle, according to the state of Fournier.

Immediately after the murders became known the most remarkable police force on the American continent, or perhaps in the world, went to work.

Major Wood issued his instructions to William H. Welsh, one of the shrewdest and most experienced of the detective force at his command. These instructions were brief. "Run this thing down," said Major Wood.

To the Yukon police this order means "Stay with it until you know the truth and place the murderers under arrest."

At Whitehorse Welsh found that Constantine had arrived from Dawson and gone across the mountains about the middle of May. This confirmed the story of his Dawson friends that Constantine was bound for Vancouver, perhaps for Quebec.

Fournier and Labelle were both well known to the police. They were gambling house boosters both at Dawson and Whitehorse. Evil associations and unsavory reputations kept both under the eye of the service.

Then Welsh found in Peter Rook a Whitehorse grocer, a man who sold a small quantity of provisions to a boat party and who knew both Fournier and Labelle by name and by sight. And the best part of Rook's service to the case was his positive statement that Labelle had returned about July 15 to Whitehorse. To Rook Labelle said he was going to Atlin. He had evaded the police and his movements were not of record.

It was not near the last of July, Welsh impressing Rook the grocer into his service, crossed the mountains to Skagway following the trail of Labelle.

On Aug. 1 three miles from Oatville on the banks of the Yukon, another body was found. It, too, was conveyed to Dawson. No one recognized it. With the information already in hand Major Wood and his men at once and instinctively connected this third body with those of Bouthillette, Beaudoin and Constantine. It was not the body of Fournier or Labelle.

Where were they? Labelle was, in all likelihood still alive, since he had passed through Whitehorse northward; Fournier, unless murdered like the rest, could at least throw light upon the crimes.

On Aug. 24 "Pete" Fournier quietly walked into a Dawson gambling house and began to play. He unfolded a small roll of bills and bought his chips. Presently he was tapped on the shoulder. Two men in civilian clothes and two policemen in uniform wanted to see him. Fournier was surprised, but started readily to accompany them. The bills he had given to the dealer were taken by the police. One of them, the outer wrapping of the roll, bore a heavy stain of reddish black. It was blood.

William H. Welsh, Regulator of Watches. Webb C. Ball of Cleveland has received the appointment of chief watch inspector of the Vanderbilt roads. The watches of all employees of the system are required to be compared daily and regulated as often as may be necessary.
