GRAND RAPIDS, SUNDAY APRIL 25.

Only the eggsact truth should be told today.

The Roll Call of the veterans in our Soldiers Homes here will be of great value to the members of the G. A. R. throughout the State.

It is needless to allude to the boom the TELEGRAM-HERALD is having. Our advertising columns, our exchanges and the general public all attest it.

If the new Chinese Minister had reason for complaint at his treatment in California, he has, we should judge, been pretty well compensated by his treatment since he left that State.

New York continues to clamor for coast defense, and the Herald says it will only take a few minutes to make New York harbor the securest in the world. Let us see; wasn't it the Herald that was sneering at the demands of the West the other day because money was asked for harbor improvements on the great lakes? We think the government has done enough for New York. Give the rest of the country a show.

It is reported that one of the New York street-car strikers remarked the other day, "We want to show our power." Such expressions as these will not help strikers to succeed. The expression of such a motive must turn public sympathy to the defeat. The public is affected, directly or indirectly, by every strike, and it will not make sacrifices for the sake of permitting a set of men to show their "strength."

Whether GLADSTONE is successful or not in carrying his home rule for Ireland through he has forever killed oppression and coercion in the Emerald Isle, and this alone is sufficient to stamp him as one of the saviors of the Irish race. We do not believe that it will go through; the exclusion of the Irish members from Westminister will be the fatal error; if this single clause in the bill is modified or stricken out we believe the bill will pass.

The Reed City Clarion has the stomach-ache badly over the statement in this journal on Wednesday last that "Rev." BARKER and CHAS. H. HOLDEN, of that city, were here mingling with Democratic politicians at the Morton House. In order to quiet the Clarion people until "Rev." gets back, so that they will not think he is a copper-headed traitor that ought to be hung, we will say that the gathering was before a marble slab—not a gravestone.

Senators EDMUNDS and HOAR have the best of reasons for advocating open executive sessions of the Senate. Had the sessions been open they would not have been called by the Veterans Rights Union to refute the statment made by a correspondent that they cast slurs upon the soldiers of the late war. Under the rule of secret sessions Senators are placed at the mercy of unprincipled correspondents. The correspondents may say what they wish and the Senators must remain silent.

THE LEGAL DOCUMENTS.

Mr. GROVER CLEVELAND, President of these United States, is about to be married. Inasmuch as the Senate of these self-same States has seen fit heretofore to demand all papers relating to appointments, and, indeed, all documents pertaining to business for which we elect a President and pay him a salary of $50,000 a year to attend to, it is no more than right that the Senate shall demand the production of documents showing that Mr. CLEVELAND's engagement to be married is a proper and a legal one from a Republican official standpoint. The minister who performs the ceremony, moreover, should be required to give bonds to the Senate that he does not read the service from a dictionary or a copy of Peck's "Bad Boy." Will Mr. EDMUNDS demand the documents? We shall wait and see.

THE HOUSE OF MOROSINI.

Miss AMALIA MOROSINI, who was attacked by a dog a week ago last Wednesday, sailed for Paris on Thursday of this week to receive treatment from M. PASTEUR. It appears that she is not at all positive whether the animal bit her or only scratched her with his claws. Her father keeps a private kennel, and the whole family are so fond of dogs that most of them enjoyed being bitten repeatedly. The father wears a beautiful scarf pin, which he took from which his son used the poison; JULIA, the eldest daughter, does her father one better and wears two scarf pins. And AMALIA had two fingers bitten off last year. When AMALIA was strolling on her father's estate the other day she attempted to pet a tiger which she saw across. The animal growled at her and left some deep scratches on her nose, but she was unable to decide whether he bit it with his claws or whether he bit it with his claws or his teeth. The animal afterward proved unwilling from rabies, and the family physician advised that the young lady go to Paris for treatment.

THE WORKINGMEN AND THE POLITICIANS.

It is a recent thing that any consideration, at all, has been accorded to the vast army of wage-workers of which our population consists. For many years this class of our citizens knocked in vain at the doors of Congress, to be allowed admission, and to secure, by appropriate legislation, some recognition for themselves. The record of the doings of our national legislature for the past twenty years is one continuous record of "hope deferred" so far as our artizans, mechanics and artificers are concerned. When the proposition was first made a few years since in the House of Representatives, to establish a committee on labor, it was contemptuously rejected. What means it now, that the fuglemen of all the political parties are fairly tumbling over each other in the race to see who will be the first to obtain favor with the labor associations? Why is it that the large number of Senators and Representatives who so lately were subject to the beck and nod of monopoly, should so suddenly become the fidus Achates, the ally, the friend and the particular champion of the laboring man? It is simply because the labor organizations have at last attained that degree of perfection that they are able to command and control an important element in our national affairs, viz: votes. A former bitter adversary does not change sides and become, all of a sudden a bottle holder and an advocate without some cogent reason therefor. Public men, whose whole lives have been one long-continued effort to oppress labor, do not suddenly change front and begin to yell the loudest for the workingman, without some rationale for it. It is pure and unmitigated selfishness which leads many of these demagogues to change front. They see that the time has come when they will be dethroned and deposed from power, and in order to be retained, like fawning sycophants they bow down in adulation before the machine.

Laboring men should be very chary in attaching themselves to these self-constituted friends. For years the people have submitted to the most outrageous tariff laws that were ever endured by a suffering public. These laws have been the bane of the people, and particularly of the workingman. While confining our wage-worker in his purchase of the necessaries of life to the productions and manufactures of the United States, at the same time this tariff has allowed the manufacturers, who are benefitted by it, to go abroad and import by the thousand the cheap labor of all countries to come to our shores, and take the places of our honest, hard-working toilers. And now we are represented with the anomalous spectacle of the very men who forged these chains to enslave us, coming forward as the satellites and votaries of the workingman.

We believe that labor organizations are of vast benefit to their members, and are demanded by reason of the combinations which exist, and have existed, of capital. But we warn the workingman to beware of the politician. Do not suffer yourselves to be made puppets and cat's-paws, in order that some office-seeking demagogue may pull the chestnuts out of the fire.

A conference will soon be held in this city having reference to a consolidation or fusion between the Knights of Labor and the Grangers. This may be an excellent thing for both orders, and if so, it should be accomplished. But we suggest to the Knights of Labor to be fully satisfied of that fact before it is done. Watch well for the crafty hand of the politician; keep the good of your order in mind as your guiding star, and do not allow yourselves to be made tools of to further the ambition of designing men.

"THE LEISURE CLASS."

A New York exchange calls attention to the extravagance of what it terms "the leisure class," and asks whether it is a "healthy state of society that allows the existence of such a class, and permits the monstrous inequalities by which the leisure class profits." By the leisure class is meant not tramps and lazy men generally, but those who, having large incomes, do nothing but spend them in pleasure enterprises. For example, a member of a coaching club in New York makes up a party for a trip in the country behind four horses, to be gone ten days, sending twelve horses ahead for relays, and expressing baggage to points along the route. This is a comparatively small matter. Another young sprig of aristocracy is fitting up a yacht, to be manned by a crew of thirty or forty men, to take a party of guests on a pleasure excursion to Madagascar. His expenses are estimated at $700 or $800 a day. Another gentleman of leisure has engaged two cars to take himself and twenty friends to Yosemite Valley and back by way of New Orleans. The knowledge of such facts as these does not tend to give the man who works hard every day for a dollar a day the feast which a contented mind is said to be. And yet these young spendthrifts must have a little sympathy. They have had wished upon them, and know nothing of the enjoyment of a good night's rest after a good day's work. They are the spoiled sons of foolish fathers. Furthermore, these fellows are generous, and their generosity goes largely to the employment of labor. In reality it is upon the fathers, who have ground great fortunes from the laboring men, upon whom censure must fall. Of course the young men might put their money to much better use if they knew how, but they do not, and they are very useful in distributing the wealth which their fathers have clutched and hoarded. While, therefore, a laboring man has a right to feel some contempt for these young bloods, he must not regard them as utterly without function in the world.

A Davenport, Ia., man was converted the other day and groaned so long and loud over his sins that he was arrested and fined $10 for disorderly conduct. We advise the man who shouts "AMEN" in church Sunday mornings to paste this in his hat.

COLLAPSE OF THE GOLD BOOM.

The proceedings of Congress during the past few weeks fully demonstrate that any effort to suspend the coinage of silver will be futile. This is pleasing information, and ought to make the heart of every citizen of Michigan glad. A Senator of the United States, who was a candidate recently for one of the highest offices in the gift of the people, lately stated that he had mast red the financial question in a week's study. This same gentleman it was who a short time ago concluded a speech in the Senate with "Lay on MacDuff, and be he damned who first cries, Hold on! I've got enough." If we were to test his knowledge of finance by his degree of familiarity with the writings of the great dramatist, we ought not to be surprised at the jackastical jargon that occasionally emanates from the thick skulled pate of an honorable Senator, denominated "A Solution of the Silver Question."

Candidly, the matter of the suspension of the silver coinage is one of vital moment, and never more so than when the creditor class seek to contract the volume of money, and thereby enhance the burden of all debts; which is the condition of things at present. To withdraw the government's monthly demand of about two million dollars worth of silver, which a suspension of coinage would do, would further depreciate the bullion value of the silver dollar, and we should be swept on to the pandemonium of a gold standard, with fearful velocity. If that time should come, when the estimation of all debts, national, state, municipal and individual, should be computed on the basis of the value of the gold dollar, the result could not fail to be the most disastrous imaginable. The burden of all indebtedness, whether public or private, would then be increased at least 20 per cent; and the man who, in former times, had borrowed $100, would be called upon to repay his loan in money worth $120. It does not take much reflection to conceive the far-reaching havoc such a policy might bring upon us. The principle argument used by the "gold bugs" is, that because the intrinsic value of the silver dollar is but about eighty cents in gold, that great danger exists lest we should be reduced to a silver standard, and thereby depreciate the earnings of all wage-workers, and appreciate the prices of all commodities. That state of things would be deplorable; but, is it likely to happen? Most assuredly no; if we are to be guided, in that assertion, by the facts. That no such condition exists now is a complete answer to such theoretical sophistries. The intrinsic value of the silver dollar is something less than eighty cents today; the government is coining from two to three million dollars worth of silver a month, and in the face of all this, the silver dollar circulates side by side with the one of gold, which is intrinsically worth twenty cents more. These facts are worth volumes of conjecture. We know we have silver and gold coins today, and each is an equal medium of interchange with the other, and each equally as much of a legal tender as the other. Why, then, is it necessary to commence the cry of "Wolf!" when there is no wolf? Our amount of silver circulation is not at all proportionate to that of many other equally important nations. It were far better to put up with the trival embarrassments of an enforced coinage of silver, and to "bear those ills we have, than fly to others that we know not of."

It is idle for the anti-silver advocates to say that the present coinage act is continued entirely in the interest of the bonanza silver kings, who have tons of silver to dispose of. It has a further-reaching effect than that; it involves the prosperity and happiness of a large number of our citizens, and the well being of the government. The suspension of silver coinage would greatly benefit the bondholder and the creditor, by enhancing the value of his securities 20 per cent; but of that class, the majority of the people in the great West are not composed. And it is not for the Eastern bankers and capitalists we speak, when we say we relish the news from Washington, that all efforts to demonetize silver under the cloak of a suspension of coinage, are likely to fail.

SPLINTERED JEWELS.

The Great Eastern circus will strike Michigan next week. Lock up your old junk.

A new way to cure corns—shoot 'em off with a horse pistol like a Hot Springs, Ark., man did.

Parsons Downs, of Boston, does not seem to be downed. He is like a rotten cork—bad as he is he will still float.

A Lathrop, Cal., infant has four ears. Senator Palmer had better engage it to place its ears to the ground for him.

Sarah Bernhardt has gone to London. If she promenades any the people will imagine her a perambulating slice of London fog.

A Chicago man resigned his position in the postoffice because he did not have time to pray. He is looked upon as insane by his friends, but he isn't.

The ministers of Cleveland, Ohio, are preparing to boycott Sunday newspapers. No doubt they will feel agrieved, however, unless a reporter is sent around to write up their sermon.

President Cleveland is mad because the newspapers are commenting so much on Miss Folsom's pearly teeth and pomegranate lips. Can it be that Grover thinks the boys are slighting him?

A medical journal gravely announces that water is a breeder of malaria. This is superfluous information. A great many men are aware of the fact, and hence never used water except to wash with.

The Chicago Evening Journal describes the strikers as being like church bells—striking only with their tongues. The Journal's simile is not a good one, as anybody who works all Saturday night and has to listen to the bells of a Sunday morning will freely testify.

BLUE CLOTHING HOUSE.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

It would appear from next week's announcements that Manager Powers proposes to wind up the season with a rush of attractions and the stage at Powers will be kept warm every night this week after tomorrow. M. B. Curtis, the round and rosy comedian, will appear, as has been before noted, in his well-known "Sam'l of Posen" on Tuesday evening and follow with his comparatively new play, "Spot Cash." He brings a splendid supporting company headed by his wife, the fiery Frenchwoman, known on the play-bills as Albina De Mer.

On Thursday evening Haverly's American-European minstrels appear at Powers' and the frolicksome forty or fifty or sixty, as the case may be, will, of course, give our minstrel lovers an evening of rare fun. The "Black Watch" will be one of the attractions of the performance, but it cannot be seen on tick.

As many as 9,999 critics have engaged themselves to "sit" on Mr. Henry E. Dixey. That young man continues, however, to make several hundred dollars a week—and he saves it. Perhaps this is what is the matter with the critics.

Last (Saturday) night the 1,500th performance at the Taber opera house, at Denver, was celebrated when a silk banner was given as a souvenir. Mr. Taber may wear embroidered night shirts but he "gits thar" just the same.

Sol Smith Russell will depict the woes of "Felix McCusick" at the Academy of Music, Chicago, all this week, he and Manager Berger having passed Holy week in meditation and prayer at Milwaukee.

"The Chimes of Normandy" with Etta Berger Brezee as Serpolette will be presented at Jackson Monday and Tuesday evenings to large houses, nearly all the seats having been sold in advance.

An item from Bay City says that "Madam Revell's British Blondes played to a big mule business." Male was meant but it was a clever hit of the compositor. He ought to have his pay raised.

Genial, ever-young George C. Boniface will be with us Friday and Saturday evenings and will present his happy creation of Badger in that old-time realistic play "The Streets of New York."

Tellula Evans has her picture this week in the New York Mirror. She looks as if somebody was trying to strangle her with a towel.

Mlle. Shirthoff, the great Russian actress, is coming to America. It is to be hoped she will wear a Prince Albert coat.

An amateur opera company is to play "The Lost Head" in Brooklyn. They shouldn't have any trouble about it.

Mrs. Beerbohm Tree is a celebrated English actress. Mrs. Tree's name has a wicked sound in America.

Eddie Solomon is writing a new opera. It is to be hoped there will be no attraction for dudes in it.

M. Zola is said to be coming to America as a star. The Board of Health is warned.

PULSE OF THE PEOPLE.

Feels That Injustice Has Been Done.

To the Editor of the TELEGRAM-HERALD.

GRAND RAPIDS, April 22, 1886.

SIR:—In your Saturday morning's issue appears an article relative to the sale of revolvers to boys, which states a few facts and distorts others in a manner calculated to reflect seriously upon our intesrity as business men and law-abiding citizens. Your reporter called upon us, and asked if we made a practice of selling revolvers to boys. We told him that as a sporting goods house we carried revolvers as a part of our legitimate stock, and sold them to both men and boys, of the proper age to handle them, as we presumed every dealer in town did who handled this class of goods. We told him that knowing of a statute prohibiting the sale of firearms to boys under thirteen years of age, we had invariably made it a practice to refuse selling to such and never had knowingly violated this statute. There might have been instances where we were deceived by purchasers, but we exercised great caution, knowing the danger from a careless use of such tools. Contrary to this statement, your reporter says that while he was present a boy, apparently not more than twelve years of age, came into our store, purchased a revolver, and went away without a question as to his age: and this he offers as evidence against us. Evidence unquestionable, because he saw it with his "little eye," and his little heart conceived the idea of using it as a clincher to the whole tirade against us. Now the facts are: This boy, who was actually fourteen years of age, purchased a revolver of us the day previous, with the knowledge and consent of his father, and came in the day the reporter was present to exchange it for another, more expensive, paying the difference, all of which was by advice of the boy's father. Your reporter further states that a boy eleven years of age was sent to our store to purchase a revolver; he does not say that the boy secured the revolver, but leaves the public to infer that. We will say that he did not. Now, why we should be singled out from amongst all the dealers in town for this sort of gratuitous advertising we do not know. We certainly feel that an injustice has been done us, and simply ask that you allow the same freedom to our statement in your columns. Respectfully,

GLIDDEN & LOUCKS.

HELP YOURSELF.

To Make Up an Opinion on the New Daily —What Some Michigan Journalists Think.

A Great Newspaper.

The Grand Rapids Telegram has changed hands, and will now appear, independent, and under the management of Lloyd Brezee. It is the general impression that Brezee will make it a great newspaper.—Grand Haven Courier-Journal.

A Live Daily.

The Grands Rapids TELEGRAM-HERALD came to hand last Saturday. It has all the advantages of the two papers combined, and publishes the Press Dispatches. It is a lively daily and as long as Brezee is at the helm it will continue so.—Reed City Clarion.

Best in Michigan.

Mr. Lloyd Brezee, the noted editor of the Grand Rapids Herald, who also has edited papers in Detroit and elsewhere, has purchased the Grand Rapids Telegram and consolidated the two, making the TELEGRAM-HERALD one of the best morning dailies in Michigan.—Le Roy Independent.

A "Double Team."

The Grand Rapids TELEGRAM-HERALD—the new consolidated journal of that city—has been coming to our table for a week, a neat, bright, newsy paper. Lloyd Brezee is an indefatigable editor and Grand Rapids may well be proud of this "double team" in journalism.—Benton Harbor Palladium.

Bright and Sparkling.

The Grand Rapids TELEGRAM-HERALD under the new management of Lloyd Brezee is greatly improved, and comes out as bright and sparkling as a "dollar of the daddies" just struck from the mint. And may it be as numerous as a circulating medium.—Quincy Herald.

The Very Best of Papers.

The Grand Rapids Telegram has been purchased by a stock company and consolidated with the Herald, Lloyd Brezee taking charge of the new enterprise, which is called the TELEGRAM-HERALD. The first number has made its appearance, and it is just what everybody knew it would be, a handsome, lively, wideawake paper, having the United Press dispatches, and making the best paper Grand Rapids ever had. It will be independent in politics, and will be a readable paper.—Cadillac News.

CURIOUS THINGS IN CURIOUS PLACES.

Mrs. Mary Hearn of Walton county, Georgia, has a rolling-pin which has been in constant use for 170 years. It is as good as new.

Bob Griffin of Washington, Ga., saw eleven wild turkeys feeding in a bunch. He fired both barrels of his gun and killed seven. P. S.—It is not known whether this is a lie or not.

George Sample, a clerk at a drug store at Ironton, O., while making blue fire in a mortor, let the pestal fall and caused an explosion. The man was blown to fragments and the store was wrecked.

Clarence Keifer, a conviet employed in a coal shaft at Birmingham, Ala., escaped by climbing a wire caple 1 1-2 inches in diameter and 204 feet long, extending from the bottom of the shaft to the surface of the ground.

A man of Chapinville, Conn., has invented a crank attachment to a wheel of his wagon which runs a churn dasher when the wheel is in motion. When the cream is ready he puts it in the churn and takes a ride. He returns when the butter has "come."

The proprietor of a leading saloon in Washington ordinarily has a quantity of chipped smoked beef on his lunch-table. His patrons were recently surprised to find smoked herring substituted for the beef. Indignant inquiries revealed that the change to fish had been made in observance of Lent.

A Rather Startling Costume.

The sensation of the production of "Sylvia" at the Academy of Music, says a New York letter, was when Mme. Carozzi, in the character of Cupid, threw off her red tunic and revealed herself to the other characters in the play. She is a French woman of the pouter-pigeon build. She was dressed entirely in flesh colored tights, with the exception of a small and narrow scarf which fell from one shoulder to her hip. There was a sort of gasp from the audience when she pulled off her tunic, and a spasmodic and instantaneous reach for opera glasses. Then it was discovered that Mme. Carozzi was not entirely nude, but that she wore a clinging silk jersey of precisely the same shade as her skin. It was a decidedly risky costume, but it was a success.

Is It a Sign of Cholera?

Many residents of Cleveland, Ohio, are much alarmed over the appearance for several mornings past of a thick, blueish fog which appears to issue from the earth. Its presence is regarded by persons conversant with its previous appearance here as ominous of an approaching epidemic of cholera. It is a singular fact, cited by those who went through the cholera plagues of 1866, and earlier years, that this same blueish fog has always preceded an outbreak of the dreaded scourge, and that it has not been seen in this city, until this week, since the last cholera epidemic. Scientists here, whose attention has been called to the fact, believe that conditions favorable to the creation of this fog are favorable to the spread of cholera contagion.—Cleveland Leader.

THREE LITTLE DUDISH FOOLS.

Three little dudes all on a spree,
Three little canes and three little hats,
Three little straws with a sangaree—
Gay little dudes are we.
Three little dudes all on a bat,
Three little skulls piled in a hack,
