SATURDAY JUNE 4, 1898.

Some Kentucky cavelrymen filled uwith Kentucky's most calebrated drink and then attempted to clean out a crowd of Afro-Americans, without any provocation. The Afro-Americans raturally objected and repulsed the cavalrymen. who rushed to camp and soon returned with armed reinforcements to the number of 150 for the purpose of teaching the "niggers" a lesson. They grabbed the first man they met and were preparing to lynch bim, although he had had noth ing to do with the affair, when Governor Bradley, who happened to be in Lexington heard of the trouble and hurried to the scene. He cried out: "where are the soldiers?" "Here we are" some of them shouted, "we are all soldiers. "Then it is your duty to suppress, not incite mob violence," said the governor. He continued speaking a few minutes and his words had the desired effect. The innocent man was released and the soldiers (?) returned to camp. Governor Bradley is the right kind of a man to be the chief executive of the heilish commonwealth of Kentucky.

THE APPEAL believes that there should be no color line in the U.S. Army. There should be no such thing as "white regiments" and "colored regiments," white men and black men should be allowed to fight in the same ranks in defonse of their common country.

GENERALS OF THE NAVY

William A. Kirkland, commandant of the Mare island navy yard, San Francisco, retires July 3, 1898.
Joseph N. Miller, commanding Pacific station, retires Nov. 22, 1898.
Montgomery Sicard, on duty in the office of the secretary of the navy, retires Sept.
30, 1898. Edmund O. Matthews, president of the naval examining board, retires Oct. 24

Charles S. Norton, commanding Washington navy yard, retires this year.
Francis M. Bunce, commanding Brook-lyn navy yard, retires this year.
Officers of the navy may be retired on their own application after forty years' service, and those above the rank of Heu-tenant commander must retire upon their reaching the age of sixty-two. Those be-low that rank are retired for physical or mental disability. The pay of retired nava. officers is three-quarters of their sea pay of the rank they held at the time of their retirement. At sea a rear admi ral receives $6,000 a year; on shore duty, $5,000, and on leave or waiting orders, $4,000. Commodores are paid $1,000 less in all three lines of employment.

Retired officers of the navy cannot be assigned to active duty except in time of war, and the purpose of the administra-tion so far has been not to assign retired officers in the army and navy to field or sea duty, but to let these posts of danger be held by those still on the active list. Of course, such work as the command of the mosquito fleet along the coast is ex-cepted. This has been given to Admiral Erben, who was retired four or five years

Until the second year of the Civil war the highest naval rank was that of cap-tain, though generally the title of com-modore was given to a flag officer who commanded a squadron. In 1862 the rank of rear admiral was created by congress, and to this grade were appointed Farragut and three other active captains and about a dozen retired captains. In 1864, for his capture of Mobile and subsequent successes, Farragut was appointed to the newly created rank of vice admiral, and later D. D. Porter and Stephen C. Rowan were given the same rank. After the war ended congress went a step further and made the grade of admiral and to this grade promoted Farragut and Porter. There was a special provision of the laws creating admirals and vice admirals which caused the grades to die with the men holding them. When Porter and Farragut vacated their commissions as vice to accept the higher office, it left Rowan the only holder of the second place, and upon his death in 1890 the office lapsed. Farragut died in 1870, leaving Porter sole possessor of the commission of full admiral, and upon his death in 1891 both grades were vacated until congress shall revive them, perhaps, for heroes of this war.

There are many women who never had one intrigue, but there are few who have had only one.-Rochefoucauld.

How did it happen that the old-fashioned, laborious way of washing was ever given to woman as her particular work? It's an imposition on her. She ought to have had only the easiest things to do—and men, strong, healthy aen, ought to have taken up this washing business.

Now, here is a suggestion. In those families that still stick to soap and make their washing business.
