

DAILY PIONEER.

SAINT PAUL:
TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 29, 1854.

Strength of the Know Nothings.
The best expedient for recruiting the ranks of any association, is by exaggerating its power; yet some of the public journals, while affecting a great detestation of the secret societies of the Know Nothings, speak of them in a tone of respect which indicates any other feeling than hostility. Thus, these papers tell us that the Know Nothings are already very numerous, and that they are destined to control the politics of the country. Any conjectural estimate of the present strength of the Know Nothings must be utterly unreliable in the absence of any basis of computation. In some instances where parties have been nearly balanced, these skulking fellows have contrived to determine the result by voting as a unit, but in no case have they elected a candidate of their own. Of their increase, we are altogether incredulous. They are already decaying, and soon an unpleasant odor will be the only memorial of the defunct body. No one idea association can long survive, especially if that idea be inherently corrupt and vicious. There is too much honesty and too much intelligence in this country for the success of any such mischievous conspiracy. The Czar's bonapartism may conceal themselves in the darkness of American despotism, but Know Nothingism cannot live in the light of American liberty. Like some rank and noxious weed it may flourish for a day, but decay and corruption will soon overtake it. With intelligent men contempt for its imbecility is as strong a feeling as detestation of its character.

Half a Century in Bed.

The New York Observer states that Susan Pierson, of Bridgehampton, Long Island, died in February last, at the advanced age of seventy-two years, during fifty-two of which she had not set her foot upon the floor. During that period, the extent of her travels, with the exception of a year spent in a neighbor's house, was from one corner of a room to another, in the arms of some strong man. This change was attended by a loss of voice, from which she did not recover until after a night's repose. The best medical skill was unable to restore her health, or even to enable her to sit upright in bed. "Aunt Susy," as she was called, was an humble, truthful child of God. Knitting was her almost constant employment, and her Bible was ever by her side. During the entire term of her confinement she received the untiring attentions of a sister, who survives her, and is now 80 years of age.

There are veins of poetry running through some editors, which cannot be controlled. Sometimes they spurt out one way and sometimes another. But the most feeling dashes are those that run through the pocket, like the following from the Fall River News:
Breathes a man with soul so dead—who never to himself hath said—I will my district paper take, both for my own and family's sake? If such there be let him repent—and have the paper to him sent—and if he'd pass a happy winter—he in advance should pay the printer.

AN EVIL LIVER.—They say that Nicholas is laboring under a liver affection—the only sort of affection of which his nature is capable. It appears, therefore, that the Czar is troubled with bile; and there can be no doubt that he complains bitterly of Gaul.—Punch.

The "Nebraska Palladium" is the title of a paper issued at Bellevue, Nebraska Territory.

A mill has been started at Skaneateles for the manufacture of coarse paper from straw and cornstalks.

DANIEL E. SICKLES, Esq., Secretary of the American Legation at London, arrived at Washington on Tuesday evening.

GEO. B. CLARK, of Buffalo, has sold the first trotting mare "Belle of Saratoga," for $5000, to a gentleman of New York.

READING BOOKS!

SANIEL'S NEW SERIES.

HAVE you seen them? They are admirable books.—All the teachers who have examined and used them attest warmly their singular fitness for the purposes of the school room.

They are, in fact, the carefully considered results of the most ample experience in teaching, and are accordingly adapted admirably in every way to the wants and powers of the learner.

Here in the onset are no "dull arguments long drawn out," to prove that "the picture of a cat is not a cat," that "the picture of a horse is not a horse," that "the picture of a cow is not a cow," and other information equally valuable and appropriate in a school book for a child.

On the contrary, the child is assumed to have common sense, and to need instructions in what is useful and suited to his years. He is not therefore puzzled on the start with long words and abstract definitions, and wearied out with reading, or attempting to read, what is without interest, beyond above his capacity, and without interest, because unprofitably dull.

In Sanuel's New Reading Books, every step in the process till the very last, is plainly preparatory to the next. The pupil is pleasantly and profitably conducted through lessons consisting of one, two, three, or more syllables in regular succession, all containing matter full of interest, moral and instructive, yet highly entertaining; and besides so arranged as while merely teaching him to read, to imbue his mind with the most wholesome thought, and develop and strengthen his mental powers.

Teachers, examine them, and judge for yourselves. The teachers throughout the Territory can have a set of the above books for examination, by calling on W. S. COMBS, near the American House, who is the only authorized agent for Minnesota.

THE attention of the citizens of St. Paul is earnestly called to the fact, that the OAKLAND CEMETERY ASSOCIATION is now duly incorporated and organized according to law.

That they have purchased forty acres of land, within a mile of the Capitol, beautifully situated, undulating, and dotted with groves; and have had the same laid out on a comprehensive plan, into burial lots, with proper avenues, walks, &c.—and that all the preliminary steps having been properly taken, and deeds, plats, &c. duly filed or recorded, that the Association is now prepared to dispose of lots to all who desire a beautiful, safe, and permanent resting place for their loved ones.

The law under which the Cemetery Association was incorporated contains the following section:

Sec.
