THE HOLMAN COMPANY.

The dramatic season opened in our city last Monday evening, with Jennie Holman Company occupying the boards at Sterrett's Opera House. The opening bill was the Octoroon. Miss Holman sustained the title role, with Otto Krause as Salem Scudder. The play was well received by the audience and every one of the cast filled their respective parts up, to the A. I. This was followed on Tuesday evening with Joshua Whiteoak and on Wednesday evening with Fanchon. Sarah Jewett, Henrietta Vaders and Ada Ward, with all their brilliant support, thus far in the season, seem unable to "draw." Mr. Pratt's opera of "Zombola," which was lately presented in New York, notwithstanding all the efforts of the critics to make it at least a success desirabile, failed to meet with popular favor. Oscar Wilde's drama of "Vera," which had been awaited with impatient curiosity, was taken from the boards of New York after a run of one week. "Vera" was mercilessly crushed by both critics and public, yet Waldauer's sparkling translation of "Fanchon" the Cricket still lives—brilliant, sparkling. In Miss Holman's hands Fanchon has lost nothing. From her first entry to her last exit, she carries out to the full text, the translator's conception, and we doubt if Mr. Waldauer, had he been in the audience on Wednesday evening and witnessed Miss Holman's rendition of Fanchon, could have found fault with this charming actress, either in her reading or acting. Miss Holman we regard as a born actress. Her support is excellent in every particular, and her visit to our city has proven quite a dramatic treat.

Spain forbids us partitioning each member of the company. They are all up in their business, and we are glad to say that they are void of being "tough" which is usually the case with many of the troups on the road. Mr. Holden, the violinist, is a most excellent performer. The company continue at the Opera House the remainder of the week.

A ladies and children's matinee will be given Saturday afternoon. A sparkling program will be presented.

A PLEASANT EVENING.

Notwithstanding the enjoyment and the fatigues of the day, a crowded house assembled at the Christian Church Saturday evening. It rarely was not the epicurean attraction of cake and iced cream that drew it; rather, we think, the intellectual refreshment of the program. This fact is highly complimentary to the town, as to the young people who can, with so short preparation, furnish such excellent entertainment.

It is right that the young of our town should receive encouragement for any profitable public efforts they make. It is undeniable that we have superior elocutionary and musical talent here, and what could be more proper than that we should give it help and development by our presence and attention on such occasions?

We are glad that such opportunities should be furnished by any church, and think that the work itself might be considered, in some sense, missionary.

This music and reciting were all good and listened to attentively. Lulu Dobyns was first, and considering her age, recites well. With careful training her voice will be beautiful and her movements graceful. Miss Evans has been so frequently before the public that her talents are universally recognized. Should she devote herself to elocution we believe her success would be undoubted. She was fully in articulation and the quality of her voice, both of which can be remedied only by practice. "Rock of Ages" by Belle Cottrell was the best read piece of the evening. Her voice was well adapted to the piece, and her conception of it perfect and almost as well executed. Her voice is capable of being made up of. Miss Emma Hershberger did well, and should be commended on the selection of her piece. The sentiment was good and appropriate.

The music was pleasant and good. Songs by Miss Emma Cottrell and Chesbro were beautiful, as well as the one by Miss Hill. Not to Maggie Perkins, must be conceded the premium of music. Her articulation was so perfect that not a word was lost, while she, with amazing independence, played her own accompaniment.

CUMMINS-CAROTHERS.

The cozy church of the Presbyterians in our city was the scene last Tuesday evening, the 31st inst., of the nuptials of two of our well known and popular young people of Oregon, Mr. James E. Cummins and Miss Ida Carothers. The church was elegantly and tastefully festooned and was filled to its utmost capacity by the numerous invited guests and well-wishers. The ceremony, brief and impressive, was made more solemn and significant by the presence of Rev. T. D. Roberts, and was pleasingly and gracefully accomplished according to the beautiful ritual of that church.

The bride, is a graceful blonde, and most charming lady, she has only lived among us for about two years and in that short time she has gained the love and esteem of many and has endeavored herself to the young people by her amiable disposition. She is a singer of some note and has been one of the greatest attractions at the M. E. church with her excellent voice, and as choir organist. She was attired in a fawn colored gros grain silk, trimmed in passementerie, decorated with Spanish lace; her ornaments were natural flowers.

The groom, Mr. Cummins, is one of our best known society young men. His reputation among his friends is that of a hale fellow, well met; he has been among us since childhood and is highly respected by all as a worthy example of a pure and noble young man and his numerous friends unite in congratulations on this occasion. Mr. Cummins, was attired in the usual full dress suit which the American bridegroom delights to deck himself. The young couple looked happy as they moved up the aisle to the inspiring strains of the wedding march played by Miss Emma Cottrell.

A large number of elegant presents were sent to the happy couple among which were:

PINKSTON-COLLINS.

A few of the most intimate friends of the contracting parties met at the residence of Mr. Henry Shmits at 8 o'clock last Sunday evening to witness the marriage of Miss Mary Collins to Mr. Ed Pinkston, both of this city. The bride is well known to all our citizens. Few young ladies in our community have more friends than the bride of Mr. Pinkston. The groom is also well and favorably known in our community and may be regarded as a great favorite with all classes. He has ever been a resident of our city, and is one of the firm of Hohitzel & Pinkston, lumber dealers. At the hour appointed the couple entered the parlor and stood before Rev. S. Carothers of the M. E. church. The bride and groom joined hands and the solemn vows were pronounced that made them husband and wife. After a few days visit among friends, the happy couple will go to housekeeping in their new and elegant

WELCOMING A DEBUTANTE.

Another grand social triumph may be scored for our pleasant little city. The delightful party given on last Friday evening at the residence of Prof. O. C. Hill, was such an event as seldom occurs. The affair was given by Prof. Hill and Mrs. Hill, for the purpose of introducing their daughter, Carrie, into society, it being the seventeenth birthday of the charming debutante.

The assembled guests composed a society at once elegant, dignified and refined, admission into whose charmed circle is a prize that may well be coveted.

The Professor and wife stood at the main entrance and received their friends, and after exchanging words of welcome, presented Miss Carrie, the debutante, their only daughter. Miss Carrie wore a toilet that was elegant because of its simplicity. It was a cream colored skirt milled trimmed in black velvet loops, and a blue silk jersey waist.

To describe the dresses worn by the ladies who called, would be to enumerate every shade of blue and every fabric which the fashion of the season recognized.

After the formality of "receiving," was concluded, vocal and instrumental music, readings and recitations etc., occupied the attention of the members of the company until a late hour. The entertainment afforded was befitting the company, and a perusal of the names of those to whom invitations were sent which follow, will lead one to believe that the expression means a good deal.

HAPPY HARVESTERS.

The Harvest Home and Old Settler's Reunion a Success.

A Grand Display of Fruits, Vegetables, etc., by the Horticultural Society.

The Horticultural Society Meeting and Old Settler's Reunion at this place on last Saturday, brought together one of the largest and most orderly gatherings that has ever assembled in our beautiful park. At an early hour the people from all parts of our county began gathering in the court house park, and the crowd kept increasing until the middle of the afternoon. About ten A. M. the stately form of Hon. James L. Allen, arrayed in his "best bib and tuck," which told the large crowd that he was the chief of all; that he was the foreman, and to have charge of things. Mr. Allen has a magnificent presence that points him out as a commander, and being the possessor of intelligence and firmness, he successfully conducted his part of the great Harvest Home exercises, as to have the best of order. Mr. Allen as chairman made a very appropriate introductory, in closing which he introduced the Rev. S. Carothers, of the M. E. Church, who offered a few well chosen words in prayer.

The principal address of the forenoon was delivered by Judge H. S. Kenney, of Savannah, the synopsis of which is as follows:

What is it that makes a home in this country more desirable than in any other, and why do Americans glory in the title of an American Citizen? It is because of the unspangled prosperity of the country. Its fertile soil, its abundant resources, its liberal laws, which facilitate and encourage all kinds of industry, and cherish and sustain a liberal system of universal education, and which lay a premium upon the productions of thought, ingenuity and skill. We may congratulate ourselves upon the accident of birth, or other circumstances that cast our lot in a land like this, where there is so much to be proud of and so little to be condemned. The territorial domain of the United States is, in all, the grandest country in the world. Its topography is varied and beautiful. Its mountains and mountain ranges and its valleys, its hills and dunes, its extensive forests, and its broad prairies, its lakes whose waters are as clear as crystal, its majestic rivers capable of floating the largest craft, and its sparkling streams and rippling brooks, coursing in every direction, present to the eye one continuous sublime and picturesque landscape. And its varied climate, rich fertile soil and its mineral wealth, all contribute to make the natural resources and capacities of this country second to none other on the face of the globe.

Take a belt of country extending from the Atlantic Ocean to the Pacific, on this latitude, and we have the most desirable climate, the richest and most productive soil, and the finest fruit growing country on the continent.

And if you take a block of country here in the Missouri Valley about two hundred miles square—say fifty miles square in the southwest corner of Iowa, fifty miles square in the southeast corner of Nebraska, the same amount of territory in the northeast corner of Kansas, and the Platte Purchase in northwest Missouri, and we have a district of country, that for general purposes—agricultural, horticultural and all kinds of husbandry—has no equal on this latitude, and we have the finest soil, the richest and most productive soil, and the finest fruit growing country on the continent.

But eating bread in the sweat of the face, and compelled to earn a living. Some are the tillers of the ground, some the keepers of sheep, some dwell in (tent) houses and have cattle, and some handle the harp and organ, and some are artificers in brass and iron, and wood, some are architects and some are builders.

The Judge then spoke of the division of labor, saying that all necessary labor is honorable, and that the public welfare demands that all useful industries shall be allowed to expand freely, each in its own proper sphere, and that modern civilization owes its wonderful prosperity to what might be called a division of labor. That all inventions of machinery, works of art, and the applied sciences, have been invented, devised and developed to aid and assist the laborer in the execution of his life's task, making his journey through life less cumbersome and more comfortable and happy.

He said that capital and labor are dependent upon each other for success, and both were essential to the prosperity of the country. The great enterprises and industries of the country require the combination of capital and investment of labor. That all inventions of machinery, works of art, and the applied sciences, have been invented, devised and developed to aid and assist the laborer in the execution of his life's task, making his journey through life less cumbersome and more comfortable and happy.

MANY CITIZENS.

We are provided with several able bodied weather prophets, but so far they have been almost a failure in bringing a rain—only a few drops on Sunday last.... Webster commenced his school at Nick's Grove on Monday last, and reports twenty to twenty-five pupils.... Frank Ott, H. E. Our school master, Silas Busher, was in our burg on last Saturday. The school will not commence until October.... Quite a number of our citizens attended the Harvest Home at Oregon Saturday and express themselves highly pleased.... Ask George Webster how he gets his girl into the house when he has been out lugging riding and comes back and finds the doors locked?

REMEMBER.

This is the huge hat at the theatre. The theatrical season has just opened, and it is well not to forget the big hat at the theatre. There is no greater nuisance and none easier to be abated, if you have any sort of consideration for the people who happen to have seats behind you, please leave your big hats at home. They have no business in a crowded auditorium where people have to look over one another's heads.

ANOTHER.

A second nuisance at the theatre that we may as well call attention to and which will bear illustrating, is the habit some people have of talking incessantly during the performance. This bad habit is indulged in by very many going ladies and gentlemen who would not like to be called ill-bred, and yet we do not know of a more ill-bred thing than to indulge in it. Even if you yourself do not wish to hear what may be said on the stage there may be some one in your vicinity who does, and that somebody ought to be given a "chance." Please paste both these pictures in your hats.

KIND WORDS.

Portland, Oregon, Aug. 25th. Variety is the spice of life. We have been using that condiment for the past month east of the mountains and have now got back to this city, where we wish to meet the dear old "SENTINEL" again. It gladdens my heart for old memories sake to see that name at the head again. Hope you may each have abundant success and will do all in my power to help you. We look forward to its visits with great pleasure as the connecting link that binds us to old Holy Success to you in your new enterprise, and may yours be a winning card. Your friend, W. R. SPRINGER.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned citizens of Holt county will meet at the Milton school house in West Lewis Township on the 10th day of September, 1883, for the purpose of taking into consideration and investment means to make a levee against the Missouri river, from the mouth of Big Tarkio to the White Cloud Ferry landing on the east bank of the Missouri river.

NEW POINT.

We are provided with several able bodied weather prophets, but so far they have been almost a failure in bringing a rain—only a few drops on Sunday last.... Our farmers are busy at present working the roads and listening to the hum of the threshing machine.... Wm. Price appears upon the sick list since camp meeting.... D. C. Webster commenced his school at Nick's Grove on Monday last, and reports twenty to twenty-five pupils.... Frank Ott, H. E. Denny's engineer, with an accident Saturday last while oiling the engine; he got his hand caught, bruising his fingers pretty badly.... The bridge southeast of town, which has been out ever since the high water, is again accessible.... T. O. Felix started for Columbia, this state, on Wednesday last, where he will attend school.... Our school master, Silas Busher, was in our burg on last Saturday. The school will not commence until October.... Quite a number of our citizens attended the Harvest Home at Oregon Saturday and express themselves highly pleased.... liberties of the people and establish capital as a despotism; neither will it do to allow the laborer to set the price of his labor and compel the employer to pay it, this would destroy the law of contract, and the right of property and establish communism.

The Judge said that the citizens of Holt county, as well as all producing countries, want and must have cheap, safe and speedy transportation for their surplus produce in order to obtain a reasonable compensation for their labor, and this must be had in the railroads, which have penetrated every quarter of the globe and appropriated the entire inland carrying trade. Heavy freights, when time is not important, may be carried by water routes cheaper than by rail. Time is so important now in all commercial and business transactions, that the railroad is given the preference when both routes run side by side, even at a greater cost, except as to a few things. Railroads have a monopoly of the business along their lines of road. This cannot well be avoided, on account of the danger occasioned to life and property by competing interests, by rivalry in operating a track by men whose interests conflict with the public interest. It is thought that the public welfare requires that a railroad should have a monopoly of the business along its line with all its attendant evils, but that the state which has conferred upon it such extraordinary power over the vital elements of public prosperity, should also exercise the right of controlling its power so as to always make it conducive to the public good. We have in this state passed laws regulating their charges for the transportation of freight and passengers, and many obligations and duties upon them which are necessary for the protection of the public welfare, and we may impose still others if found to be necessary.

In the afternoon the principal address was delivered by Professor O. C. Hill, of this city, which was a most excellent address and was well received by the audience. Considering the extreme heat and vast amount of dust flying, the audience are entitled to great credit for the excellent order and attention given the orators.

Mr. Murray of the Horticultural Society also spoke, his speech being full of interesting facts. Mr. Murray is one of our live horticulturists, and his selection was a most wise one. The Holt County Cornet Band was in attendance in full force, and discoursed some sweet music, for which it has become the favorite of this section of the state.

The Oregon Glee Club rendered several pieces of vocal music in a manner highly entertaining to the audience, and which was received with marked appreciation.

The Horticultural display was, without the largest ever made at any time in the history of our city—if not in the county. Particularly noticeable were the displays made by Mr. N. F. Murray, J. N. Manifee, George P. Lukhardt and Wm. Brodbeck. For one to look upon the display made here by our fruit growers, well can he exclaim truly "We are in the Eden of the West."

Wm. Brodbeck exhibited thirty-two varieties of apples, three varieties of pears and varieties of wheat. Master Charles Walters exhibited a variety of apples and peaches. Cornelius Holtz exhibited twenty-four varieties of apples on exhibition. Mr. Gilbert had eight varieties of apples.

A. J. Castle put on the table four varieties of wheat on the table. Mr. Jacob Harmon had a magnificent sample of wheat on hand. Wm. Forney a fine sample of honey. L. M. Kaulf three varieties of apples. M. M. Soper tomatoes. Andy Burry corn.

T. B. Curtis thirteen varieties of apples. M. Spooner two varieties of grapes. Charles J. Benbeck, twenty-two varieties of peaches and one variety of cherries. F. M. Ray, sixty-two varieties of apples, one of tomatoes, seven of peaches, five of pears, six of potatoes, eight of wheat on hand.

C. Geo. Lukhardt made a handsome display of twenty-two varieties of peaches and seventeen varieties of grapes. Mrs. Wm. Gibson made by far the finest exhibit of onions. Mr. J. H. Whitmer exhibited some amber sugar of his own manufacture, which created no little attention.

Clara Bennett, pears. Y. Manifee exhibited thirty-five varieties of apples, four of pears, twenty-four of potatoes, three of grapes, two of blackberries, three of corn, one of pumpkin, three of squash, five of beans, one of cranberries, two of peaches, one of cucumbers, one of plums, one of tomatoes.

Kunkel & Sons, of the Dutch Mills, made a very fine exhibit of flour, cloth, flour, etc. Miss A. Geo. Kunkel was awarded the premium for the best bouquet. The following premiums were awarded: For best general display of farm products—J. N. Manifee, $5.00. For best display of corn—B. F. Potter, $2.50. For best display of wheat—Jacob Har, $1.00. For best display of oats—Charles May, $1.00. For best display of apples—N. F. Murray, $1.00. For best display of five varieties of apples—Brodbeck, $1.00.

There was a large attendance of the ladies, and while many show signs of being tired, yet many are still actively as full of vigor as in the forenoon. Among those present we
