President's Message to Ask for Co-operation as An After-War Remedy.

WILL AID RAILROADS

Maximum Work Possible Only With Minimum Unrest, Is the Keynote.

By ROBERT J. BENDER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A call to American business to meet the unprecedented conditions after the war will be the keynote of President Wilson's message to Congress, Tuesday, December 5. Wilson is completing the message today.

The President believes that the country's industry can do a maximum amount of work only when there is a minimum amount of industrial unrest. He will emphasize this in his appeal to the employe and employer for more co-operation.

President Wilson has formulated plans for rendering practically impossible strikes of all kinds. He will urge a completion of a program similar to that proposed in his last message to handle such situations as the threatened strike, growing out of the demands of the railroad workers.

Wilson will also urge Congress to give careful consideration to possible legislation which will aid transportation systems to improve to meet the additional stress under which they will be placed at the close of the war.

CALLS NEW SCHOOL AFTER POET

Columbia Board Chooses "Eugene Field" Over "Sallie Flood."

Eugene Field School—this was the name adopted unanimously by the Board of Education last night for Columbia's new ward school after two informal ballots were taken, in which the votes were divided between the former student in the University and well-known children's poet and Miss Sallie Flood, who as a teacher in the Columbia schools is remembered by many Columbians for her earnest devotion to her work among the children.

Suggestions for a name for the new school were sent to the board. Among them were Sallie Flood, Eugene Field, George Washington, Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, McAlester, Frances B. Cochran, Webster, Franklin and Madison.

In the discussion on the two important names, much deserving tribute and praise was paid to Miss Flood. However, favor increased for Eugene Field when it was shown that this name means something all over the country.

Eugene Field came to the University in 1871 with his brother, Roswell M. Field. He entered as a junior, having had work in Williams and Knox colleges. At the end of his first year in the University, he walked into a printing shop and declared his intention of editing a newspaper. This was the old University Missourian. He was helped in this project by his friend, E. W. Stephens, and the first issue appeared June 23, 1871, with Eugene Field as literary editor.

FAVORS WATCHING BREWERS

Mrs. C. P. Algeo Tells W. C. T. U. of Plans for the Legislature.

In her talk at the W. C. T. U. meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. C. P. Algeo said in closing: "It is expected that the brewers will expend a big sum of money and all the influence they possess to prevent the passage of the prohibition bill. It behooves the prohibition people to be ready with money for the best talent in law to see that there is no corruption, no bribery, and also to have fearless, sincere lobbyists on the ground to point out the gains to the state in having it free from liquor when the bill comes up for discussion and for the final vote."

NEW CHARGE IN CASE

Detectives Say McDaniel Children Were Drugged—Defendant Is Unmoved.

By United Press
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 21.—That the three McDaniel children were drugged was the charge today in the murder trial of Oscar McDaniel, held for killing his wife July 15. Detectives testified today that McDaniel refused to give aid in clearing up the murder mystery, thus adding to the circumstantial evidence against the defendant.

The state admitted that there was considerable weakness in the chain of circumstantial evidence. It admitted that the testimony of Mrs. Luke H. Moss and Miss Aillene Moss, mother and sister of the murdered woman, was based almost entirely on hearsay and therefore would probably not be allowed in the records of the court.

When the night-gown worn by the murdered woman on the night of the crime, a dainty, filmy bit of lace, covered with blood spots, was exhibited before a crowded court room today, McDaniel was unmoved, showing no signs that he felt any interest in what was going on. He smoked a black cigar as he gave his attorney's advice.

A piece of bone as part of the skull of Mrs. McDaniel was introduced as evidence by the state during the examination of Sam Townsend, a Burns detective attached to the Kansas City bureau. At the time of the murder Townsend was in St. Joseph. He told of examining the room of Mrs. McDaniel and of picking up the piece of skull from the floor.

WILSON BANQUET IS GIVEN UP

Celebration Abandoned Because of Small Sale of Tickets.

There will be no celebration of the Wilson victory tonight. The banquet committee of the Boone County Democrats, which had charge of the arrangements for the dinner tonight, met yesterday afternoon and because of the slow sale of tickets and the apparent lack of interest decided to give up the banquet. No other plans for a celebration have been made.

"The sale of banquet tickets was not large enough to warrant giving the dinner," J. E. Boggs, a member of the committee, said this morning, "so the committee found it necessary to abandon its plans. There was also some discussion as to what kind of celebration should be held. While many were in favor of the banquet, there were those who insisted that we have a rally."

WILL NOT AWARD CLASS TITLE

C. L. Brewer Calls Off Football Game Between Freshmen and Seniors.

No official football class title will be claimed this year. The freshmen and the seniors were to have played yesterday, after postponing their game innumerable times. The game was first scheduled to be played while the Varsity football team was playing the Aggies at Manhattan. It was postponed because a number of the seniors were on the Varsity squad.

The game was supposed to have been played yesterday afternoon, but the two teams disagreed on the time for playing and the eligibility of some of the players. C. L. Brewer settled the controversy by calling off the game.

PRESIDENT SUZZALLO OF WASHINGTON HERE

Executive of Western School Studies M. U. Journalism Policies.

AT FOOTBALL SCHOOL

Coach Dobie's Eleven Hasn't Met Defeat In Last Nine Seasons.

When a president of a great university is far away from home and is urged to boast about his school, what does he say? Perhaps he enumerates the academic advantages, the scholarship records or the high standard of the faculty members, but if he happens to be the executive of an institution such as the University of Washington at Seattle, as is Henry Suzzallo, who was in Columbia today, he can mention that the school's football team hasn't met defeat in nine years. The standing of his university is established without delay.

President Suzzallo was not in Columbia to study Missouri football methods. Coach Dobie needs no assistance.

Doctor Suzzallo and his wife arrived at 1:45 o'clock today from the East where they attended a conference of university executives, and where Doctor Suzzallo met President A. Ross Hill who is an old friend. The visit to Columbia was for a conference with Dean Walter Williams relative to policies to be followed in a school of journalism. Two vacancies have occurred recently in the faculty of the Washington department and President Suzzallo is trying to fill them. There are 226 students in journalism at Washington.

"If I'm supposed to boast about the University of Washington, I'll begin by saying that the University of Missouri obtained one of our most highly valued men when E. J. McCaustland left our school to become dean of the School of Engineering here."

The University of Washington is the second largest institution in enrollment west of the Mississippi River, according to President Suzzallo, the largest being the University of Minnesota. The student body at Seattle numbered 4,600 last year. The campus of the university is one of the most beautiful in the United States, the President says. It is situated between two lakes, on hills overlooking Seattle, and is covered with giant forest trees.

"Our school of forestry is, I believe, the best and most practical in the country. The work is especially beneficial because of the forestry industry in the state. We also have a fine law school, and a good graduate department."

President and Mrs. Suzzallo left at 4:30 o'clock for Seattle.

DEUTSCHLAND DEPARTS AGAIN

Undersea Freighter Will Pass Scene of Accident Before Dark.

By United Press
NEW LONDON, Conn., Nov. 21.—The German undersea freighter, Deutschland made her second departure for her home port of Bremen at 2:35 o'clock this afternoon. Escorted by two tugs, which were to accompany her to the three-mile limit, she passed out of the harbor to the accompaniment of cheers of many spectators, shortly after 2:30. Once out into the main stream, she slowly swung about, pointed her nose toward the sea, and steamed away.

With the tug Alert alongside the big merchant submarine, she was soon nearing the open sea.

There was no secrecy incident to the departure today.

At 2:40 the Deutschland passed Fort Crumball and was headed for the south. The submersible will pass the Race Rocks, where she collided with a tug, about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, judging by the speed she was making. She will be able to clear the Race well before dark and will then have the benefit of the night for a fast dash beyond the three-mile limit.

The Deutschland passed out into the sound shortly after 3 o'clock.

Sears-Roebuck Hasn't Leased Lot.

E. Hatton, who owns the theater, and W. E. Farley, who owns the lot. The present lease, according to Mr. Hatton, has two more years to run.

RETURNS FOR A VISIT AFTER LONG ABSENCE

James E. Cox, 71 Years Old, Is Still Healthy and Active and Likes to Hunt.

NOT HERE SINCE 1875

Notes Great Change in Columbia and Is as Proud as of His Home Town.

A happy old man, past the 70-year mark, one who has partaken of the best in life and given the best in return, who was once boyant, but is now old—such is James E. Cox, who returned to Columbia Saturday night to visit his sister, Mrs. F. M. Johnson. Mr. Cox left Boone County forty-one years ago. With the exception of four years spent as registrar of deeds at Jacksonville, Ill., he has spent the entire time in the West. To use his expression, he just "dropped in for a short visit to the scenes of his childhood."

Mr. Cox is actively engaged in business, being a paper-hanger and decorator at Wymore, Neb. He is yet active, regardless of his seventy-one years. Hunting and fishing are sports of which he is fond. He characterized himself as an "old man having a good time."

Father in the Rush for Gold.

His father, Thomas H. Cox, went West in 1850, after the first rush for gold and died in the following year. Mr. Cox still has in his possession letters written by his father to his mother here, telling of his trip across the plains. The party with which he was traveling was attacked by Indians several times. On one occasion the travelers were compelled to surrender their entire stock of provisions to avoid massacre. Mr. Cox and his sister read and re-read these letters, and they both treasure them highly.

"Returning to Columbia is just like a visit home," said Mr. Cox. "I was surprised to find so many of my old friends still living, friends who have the warm-hearted sympathy that only old folks know. I expect to stay here until I have had my visit out; then I shall return to Nebraska."

"Columbia's growth and improvement are marvelous. The town I left forty-one years ago had no indication of ever becoming the Columbia of today. I have found many boyhood friends, and we have brought to life many tales of the 'old days.' The University is one of the greatest institutions in the West."

He's Proud of Columbia.

Mr. Cox is proud of Columbia even as he is of his "home town," Wymore. He asked for a list of all the educational institutions here, to show to his paper at Wymore.

"Though fond of the out-of-doors, the more strenuous work of pioneering and fighting Indians has not been my vocation. I attribute my good health to the amount of time I spend hunting and fishing. I would rather do that than anything I know of."

While here Mr. Cox shouldered a gun and spent some time in the woods shooting quail and rabbits.

The visitor was born on a farm three miles east of Columbia. He was only 4 years old when his father went West in search of gold, never to return alive. He and his sister are the only living members of the family. Their father was a native of Kentucky; Mrs. Johnson was born here.

Frank Johnson of the Palmer-Johnson Hardware Company and William Johnson are nephews of Mr. Cox.

R. R. STRIKE UNLIKELY

Adamson Dispute Causes Uncertainty About Walkout Expected January 1.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A general railroad strike January 1 may not follow as the result of the present situation growing out of the Adamson Law dispute. This interpretation was placed this afternoon on rumors of statements made by Chief Stone of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers that the question of a strike "will be answered later."

The element of doubt regarding the remarks of Stone grew out of the fact that last week in New York the chiefs said there would be a strike if they did not get a real eight-hour day. Now it is believed that the brotherhoods will be contented to await a test of the constitutionality of the Adamson Act.

The brotherhoods are shrouding their movements in deeper secrecy than that which marked their program last summer. Today the leaders of brotherhoods are in Baltimore to speak before the convention of the American Federation of Labor, a move that portends co-operation between them to force an eight-hour day in all branches of railroad service. At the same time the Department of Justice and the legal department of the brotherhoods are ready for the opening of the test Thursday, when the Union Pacific and the Santa Fe will start their suits in Kansas City.

HEIRS CONTEST WILL OF UNCLE

Suit Filed in Circuit Court Alleging Newland Was of Unsound Mind.

A suit has been filed in the Circuit Court by Mrs. Melissa J. Hern of Huntsdale and Polly C. and Miss Julia W. Gentry of Columbia contesting the will of their uncle, L. S. Newland, of near Huntsdale who died January 1, 1916. The petition states that Mr. Newland, dying without direct heirs, left his entire property to his wife; that she died eleven days later leaving no will and that fifteen defendants, relatives of hers, claim the property. The plaintiffs claim that Mr. Newland was of unsound mind when he made the will and was unduly influenced. The case has been set for the January term of court.
