

RUN DOWN FROM GRIP

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Have Cured This Form of Debility in Hundreds of Cases.

"Four years ago," says Mrs. F. Morrison, of No. 1922 Carson street, South Side, Pittsburg, Pa., "I took a cold which turned into the grip. This trouble left me all run down. I was thin, had headache much of this time, had no appetite, my stomach was out of order and I felt nervous and unstrung."

"While I had the grip I had a doctor but I really suffered more from the condition in which the influenza left me than I did from the disease itself. I felt generally weakened and miserable and the least exposure to cold would make me worse. I couldn't seem to get any better until I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I very quickly noticed a benefit after I began taking them and they restored me to good health and strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a wonderful good medicine. Thanks to them I am now in the health and have had no return of my former troubles. I recommend the pills to everyone who is ailing and take every opportunity to let people know how good they are."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured Mrs. Morrison because they actually make good, red blood. When the blood is red and healthy there can be no debility. The relation between the blood and nervous system is such that the pills have a very decided action upon the nerves and they have cured many severe nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, paralysis, locomotor ataxia and St. Vitus' dance, that have not yielded to ordinary treatment. Their double action, on the blood and on the nerves, makes them an ideal tonic.

All druggists sell Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, or they will be sent by mail postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Kept Tax Receipts Long.

Charles King, of East Liberty, a suburb of Pittsburg, is what might be termed a careful man. He has been a voter in the East Liberty district since 1857 and when asked on the last registration day if he had a tax receipt he pulled from a pocket tax receipts for the last 41 years. When asked by the registrar if he had any more he replied that if he went down deep into his "strong box" at home he might possibly find a few dating long back before the oldest member of the board was born. Mr. King is now 78 years old, having been born in Baltimore in 1828, removing to East Liberty in 1857. His first presidential vote was cast for John C. Fremont and his last for Theodore Roosevelt. He is a staunch Republican and as a contractor and brick manufacturer for half a century has contributed much to the upbuilding and growth of East Liberty.

Snakes Roasted and Eaten.

In Australia several kinds of snakes are eaten roasted. They are said to be equal in delicacy and flavor to the finest stewed eel. A traveler declares the steam from the roasting reptiles is by no means unavory.

SAM JONES

PEACEFULLY AND QUIETLY THE NOTED EVANGELIST PASSED AWAY.

DIED IN MASTER'S WORK

En Route from Oklahoma City to Cartersville, Ga. to Celebrate 59th Anniversary with Family Reunion.

Little Rock, Ark.—Rev. Sam P. Jones, the famous evangelist, died on Rock Island train No. 4, eastbound, at Perry, Ark., presumably of heart failure.

The evangelist was en route home to celebrate the 59th anniversary of his birth with a family reunion. He retired in the best of health and spirits. He arose feeling fine and talked with members of his party for some time regarding plans for the future and of the most successful meeting in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Shortly after he spoke of feeling bad and his daughter brought him hot water and he apparently recovered. Then he relapsed and in a short time it was apparent that he was very ill and all possible was done to relieve him.

When Perry was reached, reclining in the arms of his co-worker, Rev. Walt Holcomb, and surrounded by three members of his immediate family he peacefully and quietly passed away, as if falling into a refreshing sleep. Death was due to heart failure.

Mrs. Jones, his wife, and Mrs. Annie Pyron and Miss Julia Jones, his daughter, were with him at the time of death.

The body was brought to Little Rock, where it was prepared for burial. Mrs. Jones will continue east, accompanying the body.

Rev. Mr. Holcomb went to Memphis to make arrangements for a special train to convey the body to Cartersville, Ga., where burial will occur.

Rev. George Stuart, an old-time associate; Rev. Walt Holcomb and Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Mississippi, will conduct the services. Rev. E. O. Exell, the noted singer, will render old-time favorites of the noted evangelist.

Evangelist Jones died, as he often said he desired to, "in the harness, working for the Master whom he served for 35 years."

Sam Jones' Career.

Samuel Porter Jones, the most famous evangelist of his time, was born in Chambers county, Alabama, Oct. 10, 1847. He was the son of Capt. John J. and Jennie (Porter) Jones.

When he was 12 years old he was removed to Cartersville, Ga., where he was educated under private tutors and at boarding schools.

After the civil war he studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1869, and began to practice his profession with bright hopes of success, but his intemperate habits ruined his health and terminated his career as a lawyer.

After the death of his father in 1872, he reformed and, having professed religion, became a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

He had various charges in the north Georgia conference during 1872-80, and for the following 12 years served as agent for the Deatur orphans' home, which he helped to establish.

Mr. Jones devoted a great deal of his time to evangelistic work over the country. Since 1892 he had held remarkably successful revival meetings in most of the larger cities of the United States, lecturing in the summer months from the platforms of the leading chautauqua assemblies.

Sam Jones was famed for his pungent wit, drollery and fearlessness of expression. No speaker of his time was capable of investing trite subjects with such new meaning or of making his addresses striking picturesque. His sayings and aphorisms, crisp and pointed, were widely quoted and grew to be household words.

As a political campaigner, when he chose to take the stump in the prosecution of a crusade or defense of a principle, he was a most formidable adversary, his biting raillies provoking ridicule, which proved most effective in overcoming his opponents.

CURIOUS PARTISAN ADVICE.

Shaw Tries to Induce Young Men to Support Rotten Policies.

As the star Republican poll-buster Secretary Shaw is, as Artemus Ward would say, "an amiable" cuss," the trouble with Shaw is that his partisan philosophy is out of gear and will not stand the test of application to particular cases. Shaw in a speech at St. Louis, said: "I advise young men to vote for parties and not men for parties stand for principles and men do not always do so." But if the party is corrupt and its principles rotten, what is the young man to do then? And as unfortunately, the Republican machine politicians in St. Louis, and nearly everywhere else, are under a cloud and Republican reformers are declaring that Republican politicians are rotten to the core, and in many states have proved that contention, what would Shaw advise his young Republican friends to do under such circumstances?

Does he advise the young Republicans of Iowa to vote the whole Republican ticket, or would he say, if his advice could be tendered privately, vote the Republican ticket, but scotch Cummings?

All the corrupt rings advise the young voter to support the whole ticket and pay no attention to the character or corrupt doings of the leaders or candidates.

The Republican party in Philadelphia and Pennsylvania, in New Jersey, in New Hampshire, in New York, and other states, will forever be wallowing in the mire of Penroseism, of Dryden corruption, of Gallinger and Boston & Maine railroad domination, and of most disreputable machine politics in the empire state, if Shaw's advice is followed. The Republican party has come to a sorry plight even with the utmost that the reformers in its ranks can do, but when its young and enthusiastic voters are advised to shut their eyes and vote blindly for all the rascals and stand-pat policies, and all the foolish old schemers of the Shaw type who are labeled Republican, no wonder the young men balk. Shaw's advice would not only make the party a stench in the nostrils of decent people, but a political endeavor that everyone would be anxious to bury.

The Democracy is different from Republicanism, the independence of the young Democrat and his attraction to the honest and able leaders of the party, has been, and will forever be, the salvation of the party of the people. The independence of Democrats makes platforms that will stand approval and candidates that will bear the investigation that is the sole safeguard of the voters. The Democracy invites the young voter to study the former and present policies of the party, to probe the character of its candidates and aid in the nomination of able and honest ones and vote accordingly.

Roosevelt Reforms.

Railroad rate legislation and other reforms could not have been enacted without the votes of Democratic congressmen, unless Republicans had been united for them in both branches of congress. It is certain that at least there would have been no Republican majority for the rate bill in the senate if the Democrats had opposed it. When the railroads and their congressional friends saw that there were enough Republicans who would vote with the Democrats to pass the bill, they at once decided to make the best of a bad bargain and accept conditions they could not overcome. Their efforts were then turned to amending the bill so that if not rendering it unconstitutional, it would do the least possible damage to the corporations. The appeal of President Roosevelt to Senators Bailey and Tillman for aid to pass the rate bill, before he had been able to make the deal for the Allison amendment, when he then threw his allies overboard, proves that the bill could not have passed without Democratic votes.

Senator Foraker names a number of members of congress from Ohio who opposed President Roosevelt's policies, and others might be named from nearly every state who were also known to be opposed, until the fact was shown that enough Republicans would vote with the Democrats to pass some of the measures.

The statehood bill was first passed through the house, with the Democrats opposing it. It was then a party and partisan measure, but when the Democrats, senators and some Republicans adopted the Foraker amendment, giving the people of Arizona the right to vote on joint statehood. The Republican partisans of the house held up the bill until Mr. Williams, the Democratic leader, filibustered and compelled the Republican majority to accept the referendum amendment. Mr. Roosevelt found himself helpless to prevent this, because he was not backed by the Democrats, and has since advised the Republicans of Arizona to vote for joint statehood, threatening them that without they succeeded they would not get admitted for years.

The defeat of the Santo Domingo treaty is another instance where Mr. Roosevelt was defeated because his policy did not appeal to the Democrats.

There was no "fonetik fule spelling" in Bryant's address at Madison garden. It was in the old-fashioned language of the constitution and the Declaration of Independence. It was a good expression of American thought in pure English words. There was nothing radical either in the thought or the expression.

A TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

How a Veteran Was Saved the Amputation of a Limb.

B. Frank Doremus, veteran, of Roosevelt Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., says: "I had been showing symptoms of kidney trouble from the time I was mustered out of the army, but in all my life I never suffered as in 1897. Headaches, dizziness and sleeplessness, first, and then dropsy. I was weak and helpless, having run down from 180 to 125 pounds. I was having terrible pain in the kidneys, and the secretions passed almost involuntarily. My left leg swelled until it was 34 inches around, and the doctor tapped it night and morning until I could no longer stand it, and then he advised amputation. I refused, and began using Doan's Kidney Pills. The swelling subsided gradually, the urine became natural, and all my pains and aches disappeared. I have been well now for nine years since using Doan's Kidney Pills. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

KING OF SAFE-BREAKERS.

Marvelous Delicacy of Hearing Possessed by Milner James.

"Milner James was the most artistic safe-breaker in the business," said Lecocq the detective. "He is dead now. He opened in his time over 700 safes without tools or gunpowder solely by working out the combination with his delicate and patient fingers." "It took me a year," he once said, "to learn the trick of picking combinations. I studied all the locks there were and I had three safes of different makes to practice on. The ear is the most important factor in my method and it must be held tight against the safe door on a line with the tumblers. When the knob of the lock is turned slowly and one of the tumblers reaches the notch corresponding to the first number of the combination the tumbler will fall with a little click. Care must be taken not to displace this tumbler. You keep on trying the knob back and forth gently till each of the tumblers drops. Then the door opens. Hardly one man in a thousand has an ear delicate enough for this work and to be a success at it you've got to give up tobacco and alcohol."

DISFIGURED WITH ECZEMA.

Brushed Scales from Face Like Powder—Under Physicians Grew Worse—Cuticura Works Wonders.

"I suffered with eczema six months. I had tried three doctors, but did not get any better. It was on my body and on my feet so thick that I could hardly put a pin on me without touching eczema. My face was covered, my eyebrows came out, and then it got in my eye. I then went to another doctor. He asked me what I was taking for it, and I told him Cuticura. He said that was a very good thing, but that he thought my face would be marked for life. But Cuticura did its work, and my face is now just as clear as it ever was. I told all my friends about my remarkable cure. I feel so thankful I want everybody far and wide to know what Cuticura can do. It is a sure cure for eczema. Mrs. Emma White, 641 Cherrill Place, Camden, N. J., April 25, 1905."
