JAMES J. HILL AS AN EMPIRE BUILDER.

JAMES J. HILL. As he appeared ten years ago. (From a late photograph)

Marvelous Property He Has Caused to Be Erected in the Northwest.

ACHIEVED FAME IN THE EAST.

How His "Kindergarten" Has Come to Be One of the Recognized Institutions of the Railroad World.

WHY HE IS THE STAR OF THE REPUBLIC.

When James Jerome Hill was in St. Louis the other day he astonished every one who met with some sort of evidence of the extraordinary fund of information he possesses. For instance, some one asked Mr. Hill about the cost of hauling coal, per ton per hundred miles. Mr. Hill not only made instant answer to this, but he was also able to tell, off-hand, the cost of hauling a ton of coal 100 miles in any railroad country in the globe.

Chatting with Vice President Howard Taft, he explained that gentleman by making a casual allusion to the mileage and rate of grain from Lincoln, Neb., to St. Louis.

Proceeding north from St. Louis on his observation tour, Mr. Hill talked about anything and everything to those with whom he was sitting in his car. He gave no evidence of observing anything from the car windows, yet before reaching Burlington, Mr. Hill had asked a hundred questions about things which he had keenly observed as the special train whirled up the line.

As refreshing and inspiring as the breeze that blow from off the great lakes of the North is the career of James J. Hill, who has won the admiration of the world by his building of the Great Northern Railway, now when he has almost reached the three-score and ten allotted to man, having attained the pinnacle of success as a railroad man, he makes no secret of his conquest.

Mr. Hill is a Scotch-Irish Canadian-American. He is Scotch-Irish-Canadian-American. He was born on a farm near Rockwood, Ontario, on September 14, 1838. His father was a North of Ireland Orangeman and his mother a Scotch-Irish Canadian-American. He was born on a farm near Rockwood, Ontario, on September 14, 1838. HILL A SCOTCH-IRISH CANADIAN-AMERICAN.

It was while thus employed that Mr. Hill met an Irish girl, beautiful and brave, whose sweet and womanly qualities attracted to her the heart of the young man. He at once arranged for the education of the girl, who had won his heart, and by the time she had completed her studies he married her. She was Miss Mary Schanley, a devout Catholic and although Mr. Hill is a Protestant, having been "cut out" for a Presbyterian ministry, all of his nine children have been brought up in the faith of their mother.

of the railroad point with pride to some church, educational or philanthropic institution which he has either built or aided in erecting.

HIS EARLY CAREER AS A STEAMBOATMAN.

But to revert to Hill's early days on the Mississippi. It was while with the parent company that the Civil War broke out. He was active in raising a company of cavalry, but the State of Minnesota refused to accept young Hill, and he returned to command his own company of volunteers.

Hill's next move was the reorganization of the St. Paul and Northern Pacific. He retained about one-third of the stock, being $200,000 in debt at that time, which would be equivalent to almost ten times that sum in these days. He succeeded in retaining about one-third of the stock, being $200,000 in debt at that time, which would be equivalent to almost ten times that sum in these days.
