From the Grass Valley (Cal.) National, LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO.
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10, 1865.

The coming month will close a year memorable in the annals of our country, and full of rich blessings, for which we should appropriately acknowledge our indebtedness to the Providence of God.

Evils of Gossip
I have known a country society which withered away all to nothing under the dry rot of gossip only. Friendships once as firm as granite dissolved to jelly, and then run away to water, only because of this love that promised a future as enduring as heaven, and as stable as truth, evaporated into a morning mist that turned to a days long tears, only because of this: a father and son were set foot to foot with the fiery breath of anger that would never cool again between them; only because of this and a husband and his young wife, each straining at the hated leash, which in the beginning had been the golden bondage of a God blessed love, sat mournfully by the side of the grave where all their love and joy lay buried, and only because of this. I have seen faith transferred to men doubt, hope give place to grim despair, and charity take on itself the features of black intolerance, all because of the spell words of scandal, and the magic mutterings of gossip.

STATE OF APPALACHIA.
At the last session of the United States Senate a bill was introduced for organizing a territorial government for the Indians in the Indian Territory, which is a preliminary step to its admission at some future day as a State.

The coming month will close a year memorable in the annals of our country, and full of rich blessings, for which we should appropriately acknowledge our indebtedness to the Providence of God. The nation has triumphed in a struggle for its existence. The oppressed have been given liberty. The hallowed scenes of peace have succeeded the horrors of civil war, and while we mourn over our dead heroes, the living ones are returned to us. Abundant harvests have crowned the husbandman's labors; the privileges of education and the benign influence of Christianity have been continued; we have been exempt from mortal plagues; prosperity has blessed the marts of commerce; we are at peace with all the world, and the future is as replete with promise as the present with blessings.

THOMAS C. FLETCHER,
By the Governor,
FAXTERS ROBSON, Secretary of State.

SAMPLE ORR
The Missouri Democrat says: This gentleman, who figured pretty extensively at one time in Missouri politics—who came near being elected over Claib Jackson for Governor, in 1860, who was subsequently a member of the old Convention, finally Register of Lands—has emigrated to Idaho. We are sorry to learn that previous to his departure he was quite unfortunate in his business enterprises. It seems that by careful industry he had accumulated quite a snug little competency—some $15,000, more or less.

At the last session of the United States Senate a bill was introduced for organizing a territorial government for the Indians in the Indian Territory, which is a preliminary step to its admission at some future day as a State. In anticipation of that day, when a name must be given to the new State, Dr. Maegowan, writing from the Indian Territory to the Geographical and Statistical Society, proposes the term Appalachia, as meriting consideration, if not adoption, and submits it to the Society for discussion. A generic term is required, which should have a geographical or historical claim to that distinction, and which would prove generally acceptable to the various tribes to whom that extensive region has been assigned. Appalachia is a term that meets these conditions. De Soto found a thriving village of that name in Alabama; the name has been applied already to a town, a river, a bay, and to the Southern portion of the Allegheny chain of mountains, which is the water-shed of the region formerly occupied by the people of the Indian Territory. They may therefore properly be called Appalachians, and their State Appalachia.

Desiring to perpetuate the good customs of our fathers, I hereby designate THURSDAY, THE SEVENTH DAY OF DECEMBER, PROXIMO, to be observed in the State of Missouri, as a day of public thanksgiving and remembrance. I recommend that the people abandon for the day their usual avocations, and assembling in their places of worship engage in such religious solemnities as to them shall seem expressive of the feelings of grateful hearts; and while we thus recognize and acknowledge the goodness of God, and render thanks and praise, let us not forget to share our abundance with the widow and orphan, and him who bears the crepe for his nation's sake.

The Registry Bill.
A bill has been introduced into the Legislature providing for the registry of voters, of which the following is a summary. It may undergo some alterations, but we have the opinion of a member that the main features of the bill will probably become a law. — [Macon Argus.

It provides that the Governor shall, on the 1st day of June, 1866, for the first general election to be held, appoint in each Congressional District, three competent and discreet citizens, who are qualified voters, as a Board of Supervisors of Registration in said district, and the board shall meet on the first Wednesday of July, preceding the general election and shall appoint a President and Secretary of their own number; and each Supervisor shall receive five dollars per day for each day engaged, and be paid also actual expenses for traveling in the discharge of his duties. On or before the first day of August next, each Board of Supervisors shall appoint three persons, who are qualified voters, in each election district in each county, as officers of registration, and transmit to the clerk of each county a list of the names as appointed, and the board, or President thereof, to have power to fill vacancies. Each Supervisor and officer of the Registration is required, before entering upon his duties, to take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed in the 6th and 10th sections of the second article of the Constitution. Each county court, on or before the first day of July in each year, of a general election, shall revise the formation of election districts, in the county, as far as the public convenience may admit, and establish the election districts by township, and by wards in cities or towns, and designate and establish the boundaries of the election district pertaining to each place of voting, and before the day of the election certify to the supervisors of registration a statement of the election districts in the counties, and the boundaries thereof.

The Governor is charged with the duty of preparing the form of the necessary registration book, which is to be distributed to the proper officers throughout the State. Provided with the proper books and forms, the registration officers are to meet in each election district between the 15th of Sept. of each year of a general election and the tenth day prior to such election, when the voters shall cause their names to be duly registered. The constitutional oath of loyalty must be subscribed at the time of registration, but this of itself will not be a sufficient qualification. If the officers are satisfied, upon proper evidence, that the candidate for registration is disqualified, they must reject him, notwithstanding he is willing to take the oath. A list of the rejected names is to be kept and published. Of course only those whose names are entered on the accepted list will be permitted to vote, although ample provision is made to see that injustice is done to none in its preparation. The earnings of the New York Central Railroad for the month of October, 1865, was $1,500,000. For the same month in 1864, it was $1,195,485; increase in favor of October this year, $304,515.
