MRS. W. C. PATTON IS THROWN FROM RIG IN RUNAWAY

Wife of Well-Known Doctor Saves Self by Jumping as Horse Leaps Fence.

ANIMAL FRIGHTENED BY BOYS AT PLAY

Buggy is Upset and Almost Demolished When Dragged Through Fence.

Mrs. W. C. Patton, of 409 Themis street, wife of the well known physician, narrowly escaped death or serious injury late yesterday afternoon, when her horse ran away, on the Bloomfield road, near the outskirts of the city. The animal jumped a fence into a pasture, upsetting the buggy and hurling Mrs. Patton to the ground. She escaped with a few minor bruises.

Mrs. Patton had spent the afternoon as the guest of Mrs. Robert Giboney and family, on the Bloomfield road, just a half mile west of the city limits. She drove the family horse, which has always been regarded as a gentle animal.

Mrs. Patton left the Giboney residence shortly after 5 o'clock to return home. She had just crossed Louisiana avenue, the western boundary of the city, and was driving east on Bloomfield, when the horse suddenly became frightened.

Being a large animal, he instantly became unmanageable and plunged from one side of the road to the other. In spite of her heroic efforts to check him, the animal got away from her control and started on a mad dash east on Bloomfield.

Fearing that he would collide with a vehicle driving out of the city, Mrs. Patton attempted to bring the horse to a stop by turning him into the rein. She turned the excited horse into the fence, but instead of checking his flight, she only aggravated her danger.

The horse reared and leaped over the fence, dragging the buggy with him. As it was drawn through, it upset, throwing Mrs. Patton out. She retained her presence of mind and jumped just as the vehicle started to topple over. Mrs. Patton fell to the ground a short distance from the buggy as it turned bottom side upward.

The impact liberated the horse and he dashed across the open field, but was captured a short time later by several men who had witnessed the runaway. Mrs. Patton was only slightly bruised.

The top of the rig was demolished and it was otherwise damaged, but the horse was not hurt.

The physician's wife was congratulated on her escape by her many friends last evening. She attributed the runaway to the horse becoming frightened at some boys who were playing along the roadside.

"He is not a fractious animal," said Mrs. Patton, "and I never once thought of him running away. I was driving slowly and when he shied, I tightened the lines and thought I would check him. But he seemed to become more frightened all the while. I knew that Bloomfield road is a much traveled thoroughfare at that hour and I was afraid he would collide with an auto or wagon, and I therefore attempted to bring him to a quick stop by turning into the fence. When he jumped the fence and the buggy overturned, I thought only of escaping, and I leaped out."

This was the second accident experienced by Mrs. Patton this week. While driving along Main street, in front of the Glenn store, Monday afternoon, a street car slid into Mrs. Patton's buggy, upsetting it. She was thrown out, but she saved herself by jumping. She was badly shaken up, but not hurt.

TALKS TO TEN-PIN PLAYERS

S. L. Drake, President of St. Louis Association, Tells of Handicaps.

Desciples of Henry Hudson, of the Half Moon, or the Cape's ten-pin players, last night were addressed by S. L. Drake, vice president of the St. Louis Bowling Association, at the Broadway Alleys.

Drake explained the system of handicaps that he says has made bowling popular in St. Louis, and a system similar to that used there will be introduced among players in the Cape. The bowlers proposed to organize for a tournament last night, but following Drake's talk, they decided to wait a few more days until the handicaps may be worked out before effecting their team organizations.

J. W. Ellis of Ste. Genevieve came down to the Cape yesterday to visit friends and transact business.

SOUTHEAST MO. DEMOCRATS TO ORGANIZE CLUB

Harry Alexander, Leader to Call County Chairman To Cape Soon.

TO ATTEND ST. LOUIS BANQUET IN A BODY

Proposed Club is Outgrowth of Rally, Oct. 14—Will Boost Party Spirit.

As an outgrowth of the demonstration of party spirit at the Southeast Missouri Democratic rally held in the Cape October 14, last, a permanent Democratic club is being organized to cover entire Southeast Missouri, it was learned last night.

A meeting of county chairmen from the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congressional Districts together with many other leaders in the party will be held soon in the Cape to effect the organization of the club.

Harry E. Alexander is at the head of the organization work. One of the important accomplishments that the club will endeavor to bring about will be the representation of Southeast Missouri Democracy at the Jackson Day banquet in St. Louis, January 8, with a special trainload of delegates.

The series of Democratic rallies that have been held in the last few weeks in all parts of the State will culminate with the Jackson Day banquet at one of the St. Louis hotels.

The banquet will be held on the anniversary of President Andrew Jackson's birth, January 8, and delegations from all parts of the State will be present.

The party leaders in St. Louis now are working on detailed plans for the event. The Southeast Missouri Club will begin working to enlist a special trainload of Southeast Missourians to go in a body to the banquet, as soon as the organization is effected in the Cape.

Other interests of the club will be to boost the party mass meetings, obtain speakers for Democratic gatherings within the next year, and do everything that a political organization of its character might do to further the interests of the party.

The proposal to organize a permanent club in this section of the State followed closely upon the heels of the successful rally that was held here Democrats who attended the rally have been talking the matter of a club almost constantly and at the end of a long series of small conferences, Harry Alexander was asked to lead definite work to obtain that end.

Alexander was named to start the organization in a definite way because of his leadership in staging the biggest political gathering ever held in this part of Missouri.

As chairman of the Arrangements Committee for the Cape rally, Alexander engineered the gathering to a

HAARIG MOVIE DEAL IS DECLARED OFF

Men Break Over Style of Balcony to be Installed.

Plans for the construction of a new moving picture theater in Haarig that would eclipse anything in the city of that character are all off, it has been learned.

J. W. Gillingwater, who proposed to manage the prospective show, and Tony Haas, who was to build the theater, have been unable to reach an agreement concerning the specifications for the showhouse and the negotiations are at an end, it was announced by one of the men who was to be financially interested in the venture.

J. A. Kinder was to be a party on the lease of the theater, to act as a bondsman. The house was to be erected on the south side of Good Hope street, adjacent to the C. W. Stehr Mercantile Co. Haarig business men looked forward to its premiere with much enthusiasm.

The misunderstanding and break between Gillingwater and Haas occurred over the question of the kind of balcony to be installed. The house was to be of fireproof construction and Gillingwater asked that the balcony be suspended from the ceiling by rods instead of bolstered up from beneath with pillars that would tend to obstruct the view of those in the rear part of the first floor.

It is said that Haas favored the kind of construction in which the columns would be employed and that the men broke off negotiations on that point.

"stem-winding" success. He was virtually automatically called upon to start the new club.

He already has written letters to each county chairman in the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Congressional Districts asking their opinion upon the proposed club and what they feel their counties may do to support the organization.

The letters were sent out but recently and scarcely any replies have been received. Democrats who have traveled through Southeast Missouri since the rally and talked "club" to party men, declare that the prospects of building up a tremendous working organization are fine.

U. S. Deputy Marshal Geo. Orchard, who was in town the other days, says that in his conversations with party men, he finds everyone to whom he has mentioned the subject, is an enthusiastic supporter. J. H. Richardson, of Bloomfield, Deputy U. S. Revenue Collector, makes the same statement.

As soon as Alexander receives replies from the county chairmen to whom he is writing, he declares he expects to call a meeting of those leaders whose names may be suggested, to get the club started.

It is proposed to name the club "The Southeast Missouri Democratic Club." The following county chairmen have been taken into the conference by correspondence:

James A. Kinder, Cape Girardeau County.

T. A. Caldwell, Marble Hill, Bollinger County.

W. A. Patney, Van Buren, Bollinger County.

W. L. Townsend, Festus, Jefferson County.

F. Allbright, Fredericktown, Madison County.

T. D. Shriver, Centerville, Reynolds County.

E. T. Eversole, Potosi, Washington County.

W. W. Wynn, Piedmont, Wayne County.

E. E. Swink, Farmington, St. Francois County.

M. E. Logan, Bellevue, Iron County.

Dr. F. E. Hinch, Ste. Genevieve County.

Dr. F. M. Vessels Perryville, Perry County.

G. W. Johnson, Ava, Douglass County.

Senator C. P. Hawkins, Dunklin County.

Dr. J. C. Davis, Willow Springs, Howell County.

H. S. Cochran, Charleston, Mississippi County.

Harry Riley Jr., New Madrid County.

Nick Shanks, Gainesville, Ozark County.

R. A. Young, Alton, Oregon County.

Everett Reeves, Caruthersville, Pemisecott County.

Arthur Chrismon, Benton, Scott County.

J. W. Ferris, Bloomfield, Stoddard County.

Willis Wiley, Hurley, Stone County.

Albert Parnell, Branson, Taney County.

A. M. Page, Ozark, Christian County.

Ernest Bacon, Poplar Bluff, Butler County.

D. C. Cunningham, Doniphan, Ripley County.

MRS. NANCY YATES, 75, IS DYING AT FARMINGTON

Widow Attempted to Kill Herself in Cape by Eating Tacks and Then Jumping Into River.

Mrs. Nancy Yates, 75 years old, a widow who was taken to the State Insane Asylum at Farmington last February after she had attempted to kill herself by swallowing tacks, and jumping into the river, is dying at Farmington, according to word received yesterday in the Cape.

Mrs. Sarah Bond, sister and legal guardian of Mrs. Yates, early this morning departed for Farmington to be at her sister's side, in response to a letter received from the superintendent of the institution there.

Mrs. Yates and her husband formerly lived on a farm in Wayne County. Her husband died about two years ago. In settling up his estate it was necessary to sell the farm to satisfy a mortgage and Mrs. Yates began living with relatives in various parts of the Middle West.

When the estate was settled, there was about $2200 left for her. She lived with Mrs. Bond in the Cape for about six months, but on account of her attempts upon her own life, it was found necessary to remove her to the State institution as a pay patient.

She has a brother and four children living.

At one time, when she was living with Mrs. Bond, she narrowly escaped injury by being run down by a wagon as she sat on the curb in the street in front of the home.

TYPHOID PATIENTS IN NEED OF FOOD

Mrs. R. B. Andrews Asks Aid For Smith Family in South Cape.

Mrs. R. B. Andrews, wife of the South Cape merchant, is caring for Silas Smith, his two daughters and one son, who are ill with typhoid fever. Smith is just recovering from the disease and his two daughters and son are in a serious condition.

Mrs. Smith has escaped the fever, but she has overtaxed herself in her efforts to take care of the four members of her family. They are almost in destitute circumstances, and if it had not been for Mrs. Andrews, they would have suffered.

The family live near the old slaughter house in the extreme southern end of the city. Smith has been employed by the Leming mill and worked for that company until he became ill. He was the first member of his family to be stricken. Then his eldest daughter, who is 13 years old, became ill. A few days later his son, 5 years old, was stricken and then his baby daughter, 4 years old.

There was but little money in the house when the head of the family became ill. Mrs. Smith was as economical as she could be, but the funds soon were exhausted.

The Smith family have patronized the Andrews store ever since they moved to South Cape. When they failed to appear at the store for several days, Mrs. Andrews wondered whether sickness kept them away, and finally she went to investigate. She found Mrs. Smith trying to take care of her household of patients, although she was almost ill from overwork and lack of food.

Mrs. Andrews, who is noted for her charity work, hastened back to her own home, and returned a short time later with some food. She then supplied fresh clothing for all of the beds. She has been making several visits to the Smith home each day since then, and like the raven, she always bears a gift.

Mrs. Andrews reported to The Tribune yesterday that the family needed food and clothing. She said Mr. Smith would soon be able to help about the house, but would not be strong enough to return to work for several weeks. They have lived in the southern part of the city for more than a year and bear an excellent reputation.

BRIDE AN HOUR IS HURT IN AUTO

Mrs. Clyde Soule, Formerly Audrey Border, Has Back Wrenched.

An hour after Miss Audrey Border, a divorcee, became the bride of Clyde Soule Sunday night, she was injured in an automobile collision on Broadway, in front of the post office. The Soules were in a machine with Capt. and Mrs. Wilson Bain. The car was smashed into from the rear as it stopped in front of the post office.

Mrs. Bain also was severely shaken up by the collision and had her neck badly wrenched. Mrs. Border has a badly wrenched neck and back.

The marriage of the young couple forms the culmination of what may be termed a true "boarding house" romance. They met each other but two months ago and were introduced to each other by Capt. Bain.

Miss Border this summer was secretary to J. T. Nunn Jr., secretary of the Fair and Park Association. Her office was in the Houck Building, adjacent to that occupied by Capt. Bain.

Bain, one day took Miss Border to dinner with him at the Cunningham place on Independence street. As the couple sat down at the table, Capt. Bain saw Soule, who at the time had been in the Cape but a short time and was a stranger to him at the Cunningham table.

Soule is in charge of the International Correspondence School work in this district. He came here two months ago from Harrisburg, Ill.

Bain introduced himself and then introduced Soule to Miss Border. From that moment Soule was a suitor. Sunday night he called Bain up and asked Mr. and Mrs. Bain to accompany him and Miss Border to Jackson.

The party motored to Jackson where Soule and Mrs. Border routed out Recorder Siemers and Rev. Lynn F. Ross, who issued the marriage license and performed the ceremony.

Soule formerly lived in Salina, Kans., where his father is a wealthy land owner. Miss Border, who was divorced from her husband some time ago and given her maiden name, has a daughter, Delores, who is attending school at the convent.

When the motor party returned to the Cape, Capt. Bain stopped his machine at the post office. His wife started to get out of the machine to take of W. A. Beal, of Jackson, a negro, struck the bridal car.

The rear light of one car and the forward light of the other, together with both fenders, were damaged slightly. Bain forced Beal to put up $8 to bear the expenses of repairing the bridal car, asserting that the blame for the accident rested upon the negro. The negro, however, asserted that the proper stop signal had not been given and that the Bain machine did not pull into the curb. No arrests were made. A negro woman was driving the Beal car.

Dr. Boccacio Has Given His Magic Liniment a Trial

Gus Hanny Cures Skinned Shin and Then Recites Famous Tribute to Aagler.

Just because Gus Hanny can recite his own composition, entitled "Dr. Boccacio and his wonderful liniment," he was mistaken for a doctor of medicine over in an Illinois fishing camp last Friday night, and administered to the lame and the halt.

A party of Cape sportsmen, including Joe Nunn, M. A. Dempsey and others, went over into the Egypt country to cast for bass in a lake. They spent two days and nights there. J. E. Parker, an elderly angler and nirod from the Sucker State, was in the camp.

While climbing a bluff, Parker fell and crippled his right knee badly. There was no medicine in camp and he could only hope that a physician would pass. Late that evening, Gus Hanny rode into camp.

"Well, here is a doctor at last," remarked Joe Nunn to Parker. "I am saved," cried Parker in delight.

"He has a famous liniment which is sold in every town in the world," chirped Nunn.

"I hope he has a gallon of it," growled Parker, fearing that the physician may have sold out.

Nunn called Hanny aside and informed him that he would be called upon to treat a skinned shin. He agreed.

"Dr. Boccacio, this is Mr. Parker," said Nunn, as he brought the men together.

Parker bowed very low, and as he raised up, he extended his injured limb and grunted savagely. "Ah, ha," gaped Hanny, impersonating a real doctor.

Then he looked the limb over, called for some cotton and then pulled out a bottle of benzine, which he told the patient was liniment. He bathed the leg in the liquid, wrapped it snugly and the pain began to subside.

That evening, while a party was playing cards, Mr. Parker spoke of the wonderful healing qualities of the liniment. "Dr. Boccacio, I would like to have you tell me something about your famous remedy," said Parker to Hanny.

Hanny shoved back his fedora, tweaked his mustache and then recited that famous tribute to "Dr. Boccacio and his wonderful liniment."

Those who have heard it will get the joke.

Louis Bay, a carpenter living on West Broadway, next Sunday will go to Perryville, where he will be married to Miss Apollonia Doerr of Perryville. Bay came to the Cape from Perryville some time ago. He and his bride will return to the Cape and will be at home at 722a Broadway.

20 DEAD, 50 HURT, IN NEWYORK FIRE

Young Factory Girls Burn to Death as Flames Take Wooden Building.

New York, Nov. 6.—Twenty men and girls were killed and more than 50 others were injured, according to police, in a fire that swept through a four-story wooden factory building on North Sixth street, in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn today.

Within a short time after the fire was discovered eight girls had been burned to death on the fire escapes, while several others, police say, had met a similar fate before they could reach the escapes. The fire started close to the stairs on the first floor and spread so speedily that escapes by the stairs from the upper floors was entirely cut off.

The upper floors were occupied by a shirt concern and a cloak manufacturing company. Fully 250 operatives, mostly young girls, were at work there, it was stated, when the fire broke out. It was among these employees that most of the casualties occurred.

Fifteen bodies, nearly all girls, had been carried out of the building at 3 o'clock. Firemen said several other bodies were lying just inside windows opening on the escapes. They estimated the number of dead would reach at least 20. At this time, part of the roof collapsed, interfering for a time with the recovery of bodies.

Nearly all the employees of the E. L. Diamond Candy Company on the ground floor left the building at noon. It was close to 2 p. m. when a girl employed in the office of the candy company started from the building and found smoke pouring into the main hallway from the stairway.

The girl notified her own firm, as well as the Essex Shirt Company and the B. L. U. Tailoring Company, which occupied the upper floors, where fully 250 persons, mostly young girls, were at work.

FINES MAN AS WIFE BEATER

Julius Chappius Pays $1 and Costs of $10.80 in Willer's Court.

Justice of the Peace W. H. Willer late Monday night fined Julius Chappius $1 and costs amounting to $10.80 on a charge of beating his wife, Mrs. Grace Chappius. The warrant against Chappius was issued on the complaint of his wife.

The Chappius family lives in the rear of No. 2 Main street. After the fine had been imposed on him, Chappius made the payment.

LANNEY TO PUSH WHEELS OF JUSTICE

Attorneys Are Told Cases Must be Tried as Set on Second Day.

Judge R. G. Ranney this fall has determined to take a hand in the business of expediting justice and remove the "brake" from the wheels of the November term of Common Pleas Court.

He has made it plain to attorneys who have suits on his docket that habitual and time-honored delays in "going-to-trial" are going to come to an end. The Judge emphasizes the fact that cases must be tried when they are called in court, and the business of attorneys going to the bar and asking for a continuance on "mutual agreement of the parties" is going to meet with a deaf ear unless a valid reason is offered.

In order to eradicate the delays in the trial of cases, a change has been made in the manner of setting the case for trial in the first place. Heretofore, the cases have been set by the clerk of the court when he makes out the docket. It often has been the case that the time set for trial of a case in this way has been manifestly inconvenient for all the parties concerned in the law suit.

Consequently, the attorneys have put in an appearance at the court and asked for a continuance for perhaps a week or two weeks, stating to the Judge that the continuance is by mutual consent of both sides in the case.

This practice has served to confuse the docket of the court and has served to delay the administration of justice.

This year, all cases were set by the clerk for the second day of court, November 23, and the clerk has notified all the attorneys interested in the case on file, to be in attendance prepared to make a permanent setting of their cases, so that they may come to trial at the outset when they are called.

As a result, many attorneys are planning to be in the Cape on the opening days of Common Pleas Court and arrange their work definitely. The Court has given the attorneys to understand that only for a good and valid reason will another delay or continuance be granted.

The docket this year in the November term of court is exceedingly heavy and the term is expected to last well along toward the first of the year.

It is quite probable that court will be held on Thanksgiving day, it is understood among attorneys.

Roy King was fined $5 and costs yesterday afternoon by Police Judge Frisotte on a charge of disorderliness and resisting arrest, when Patrolman Groce locked him up.
