

YAZOO CITY

Friday Morning, May 18, 1855.

FOR PRESIDENT IN 1860.
MILLARD FILLMORE
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT
WILLIAM L. SHARKEY OF MISSISSIPPI.

NOTICE
Mr. N. G. N... but special agent and is authorized to receive for all money due this office.

NOTICE TO CANDIDATES
Candidates will be announced in this paper from this date to the November Election on the following rates:

For 500 words in District Office $10.00
For County and Post Office 5.00
Names inserted on the regular ticket, for State and District Office 25.00
For County and Post Office 5.00

Mr. D... of Yazoo City, is authorized to announce O. L. WILSON, a Purson of Holms county, as candidate for Clerk of the Superior Court of the State of Mississippi—Election, November, 1855.

At the solicitation of many friends, L. D. Jackson will be a candidate for Assessor of Yazoo county at the ensuing election.

MANY VOTERS.
We are authorized to announce CORNELIUS NOLAN as a Candidate for County Surveyor at the next November Election.

DENTISTRY.
We are requested to state that Dr. LAWRENCE will be absent for two or three weeks from the first of May next.

DR. J. COOPER'S WELLS.—In another column will be found the notice of the well which is to open at the season at Cooper's Wells. We acknowledge the receipt of a special invitation to visit the well in Yazoo, and in the ability to attend the invitation so early, some time during the summer, we will look in for a few days on the gay world of that delightful watering place.

BEAUFORT BOOK.—Our good friend Mr. O. C. Woodman gave us the other day one of the latest books of the season. It is the Beaufort Book of America, beautifully bound and illustrated with engravings of the Coast seas. It is a very valuable acquisition to our library. These wanting books, stationery, druggs, perfumery, &c., will find them at O. C. Woodman's Victrola.

THANKS TO MRS. S. F. BRADLOW.—We acknowledge the receipt of a beautiful bonnet sent up by Miss B. Bradlow, of Vicksburg. In her letter accompanying the valuable present she says: "We feel very much indebted to the Yazoo people for the very liberal patronage they have bestowed upon us in the past year, and shall ever be ready with a choice and varied assortment of millinery goods to fill their orders or wait upon them personally."

FIFTY CENTS REWARD.
The above sum will be given for the apprehension of the person or persons who take the Whig from the doors of our subscribers, before they read them themselves. We feel complimented that our paper is so popular that people too stingy or poor to pay for it, should steal it rather than be deprived of it; but do not want our Carrier blamed for not delivering it to those that do pay for it. We prefer giving away a few extra copies to such as are not able to pay for it.

IF our subscribers will send to the Whig office whenever their paper is not left at their residences or offices on Friday morning or is stolen from them, we will immediately supply the loss.

WHAT IS AMERICA?
"America is the Democratic republic—not the government of the people by a despot, nor by an oligarchy, nor by any class such as the red-haired part of the inhabitants, or the blue-eyed part; nor yet a government for any other end than the good of the entire nation."

Again, we would call the attention of our readers to the fact that the Monthly, in opposing the Know-Nothing, side with the negroes, like all the northern papers. Who can see the object of the showily thrust? No one has ever dreamed of placing the government in the hands of the red-haired or blue-eyed part of the inhabitants; but, there is a class who govern America. That class is distinguished by the color—not their hair or eyes—but of their faces. The Monthly does not like this arrangement but thinks the country should not be governed "by any class." Two examples are given in order to illustrate what is meant by a class.—The words of the Monthly are, "any class, such as—that is, class, or any other class."

We recommend all the literary circles to subscribe for a period at which they shall interest in having them printed in a pamphlet form in the government. But we are much surprised to see some southern papers printing high encomiums on this article. They seem willing to swallow the abolition pill on account of its being sugar-coated with abuse of the Know-Nothing.

James F. Wilson, our friend Gen. T. C. McKinnon's Vice-President, has been elected a member of the Yazoo County Society. He was elected by the Yazoo County Society, and is a member of the Yazoo County Society.

MCKINNON'S PALCY.

When we noticed the magnificent letter in our last issue, we looked at it with a certain amount of interest and curiosity. We recognized the name of Mr. McKinnon, and we were not a little surprised to find that the letter gave a fair and full exposition of the doctrine of Palsey concerning promises, but showed that the quotations did not touch the case of Mr. McKinnon. The case proposition then from Palsey is, "we associate them with things that are foul; but pray, Mr. Monthly, do you not also associate them with things that are fair, and beautiful and good? Perhaps not; but we do." Through the long hours of night the watcher sits in the darkened room beside the fevered bed, and administers from time to time the cooling draught. The good man who desires that his left hand shall not know what his right hand doeth, steals a tipple, in the dark hours of night, and leaves at the house of his poor neighbor, a present which will make many hearts rejoice. "We associate darkness and night with things that are foul; but it is the darkness and night that make them foul!—We associate them, also, with things that are lovely; but it is the darkness and night that make them so! By no means. Theft or murder perpetrated beneath the noontide sun, is theft or murder still; and just so, charity performed by stealth in the night and darkness, is charity still. Light or darkness is a thing extraneous, constituting no ingredient of the act, though they may lend it a hue—often a hue opposite their own; for crime committed in the open day, so far from being therefore regarded less reprehensible, is deemed an evidence of more shameless depravity; and charity, which hides itself in secrecy and night, is deemed the most generous and disinterested. Perhaps the Monthly will not believe these things; but those whose suspicions do not start so easily, have sometimes opportunities to discover that there are persons, who like the Man of Ross, do good deeds "and blush to find it fame."

"We admire the saying, that twilight, even though a favorite with lovers, is also favorable to theives." And somewhat we admire the saying, too, for there lies within it some good of truth, which the hand of logic may wash out. We are told, "it is a poor rule that will not work both ways." This, however, is a rule that will work both ways. It necessarily involves the admission that twilight, though a favorite with thieves, is favorable also to lovers. If it conceals crime, yet, it also harmonizes with the purest, tenderest, and most enabling sentiment of the human soul. Shall we, therefore, attribute to the twilight guilt on the one hand, and merit on the other? Twilight, night, and darkness, are merely indifferent; neither good nor bad, in a moral sense, but capable of ennobling the purposes of either good or evil. The same may be said, with equal truth of secrecy, of which twilight, darkness, and night are used as symbols in our text. The thief keeps close the secret of his theft, the lover of his love, the Christian of his elms deeds. In ancient as in modern times, robbers have skulked in darkness, so have the followers of Christ concealed themselves in caverns, and held secret midnight convales" for the purpose of worshipping God according to the dictates of conscience. He who said that, "men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil;" said also "take heed that ye do not your aims before, to be seen of them." It is not, therefore, secrecy which makes an act evil, nor publicity, which makes it good. Secrecy is an instrument, which may be used for good or evil; just as water, which bears the planter's crop to market, may drown the planter; just as fire, which gives us genial warmth, may burn the roof from over our heads, and turn us out.

"To thole the winter's sleety drizzle,
An' cran'nech cauld!"

But, the disciples of the Monthly may say, secrecy is power, and power is dangerous. Very true. It is equally true that steam is power, is dangerous, as many a disastrous explosion testifies. Shall we therefore discard railroads and floating batteries, and do all our travelling in ox-carts? Secrecy is indeed power, and therefore the greater reason for us to employ it to accomplish what is good.

We come now to the application. The Monthly joins in the hue and cry against "SAM," because he arms himself with secrecy. But what matters it, whether he wields the sling of David, or sword of Goliath, employs the javelin or cannon? Let him be judged, not by his weapon, but by his cause. His enemies frequently report to the weapon which Sampson wielded, though their efforts are not crowned with the same success. Sam never reproaches them for using this humble weapon, for he knows it is often the best they can procure.

Of course we must not be understood as advocating the Jesuitical maxim that "the end justifies the means," which is but another version of that old maxim which Paul so strongly condemns—"Let us do evil that good may come." By no means! If Sam wishes to preserve his good name, he must not use means which are foul. But we have shown that secrecy is, in itself, neither right nor wrong; and what is in itself innocent, needs no justification. When Sam may use secrecy to accomplish good, and is only to be blamed when he applies it to evil purposes. The fact that secrecy is the chief ground of opposition to him, sufficiently shows that he cannot be charged with any real evil. My he long continue to do his aims in secret, yet by his light asunder, that men may see his good deeds. May he still observe the good old maxim, "keep your own secrets if you have any; while his light is unlifted in the result of his labors. May he long enjoy vigor and likeness of limb as shall enable him to kick out of office all every party hacks, and put in their places men who are honest and qualified, thus securing "America for the Americans," and thus preserving for all worthy laborers an asylum from oppression in their native lands.

EX-PR... at Florence has gone to Europe—says a Buffalo paper.

A CASE FOR CASUISTS.

Arch-deacon Paley is fond of Palsey, as will give his readers the idea, hoping it may also be conducive to the moral health of the Louisiana people, and his high respectability, who are said to have scooped from the Know-Nothing party, if he has already disposed of the oath of secrecy; but besides this oath, Mr. McKinnon tells us, "the obligation of the order requires the candidate for admission to promise and swear that he will vote for the nominee of the Know-Nothing party, if he can dependably do so; if he cannot, he will not vote against him." The question now arises, can Mr. McKinnon, and the Louisiana seceders violate their promise without being guilty of moral perjury? They affirm; we deny.

Let us bring up Mr. McKinnon's witness, Arch-deacon Paley. He tells us that promises are not binding when the performance is unlawful. "We admit the truth of this proposition; but is it unlawful to perform the promise? If any law prescribes how a qualified elector shall vote, vain is boast of civil liberty. There is no such law; hence the seceders may lawfully "vote for the nominee of the Know-Nothing party if they can conscientiously do so," or they cannot, then it is still lawful for them to not "vote against him." But Paley goes on to testify that "when the promise is understood by the promisee to proceed upon a certain supposition, or when the promisee apprehended it to be understood, and that supposition turns out to be false; then the promise is not binding." This was admitted also, and we ask what was the supposition upon which the Know-Nothing party understood the promise to proceed, or which Mr. McKinnon apprehended to be so understood, and which has turned out to be false? We will tell this subtle casuist. He apprehended it to be understood by the party that his promise proceeded upon the supposition that he would not violate a solemn oath; that supposition has indeed turned out to be false; and the proof is his own confession. Then the case stands thus; for committing moral perjury, his justification is, that he has committed moral perjury.

Baths is time to cross-question his witness. Tell us Arch-deacon Paley, if a man promises to vote for certain candidates, and should afterward prefer voting for some other candidates, is the promise binding or is it "moral perjury." Paley replies thus: "I presume a candidate who has justly another candidate appears, for whom I certainly would have reserved it had I been acquainted with his design. Here therefore my promise proceeded from an error and I never should have given such a promise had I been aware of the truth of the case, as it has turned out. But the promisee did not know this; he did not receive the promise subject to any such condition, or as proceeding from any such supposition; nor did I at the time imagine he so received it. This error, therefore, of mine, must fall upon my own head, and the promise be observed notwithstanding."

Let Mr. McKinnon, and the Louisiana seceders, remember that when they made a promise under oath to the Know-Nothing party, to vote for the nominees, "the promise," that is the party "did not know" they would afterward prefer to vote for other candidates; "did not receive the promise subject to any such condition, or as proceeding subject to any such condition, or as proceeding from any such supposition; nor did they themselves at the time; imagine that the promisee did so receive it. Then according to Arch-deacon Paley, their error must fall on their own heads, and the promise be observed notwithstanding." Mr. McKinnon's own witness whom he is estopped to "question" decides his case against him.

A SWINDLER—PASS HIM ROUND.

We feel it a duty to warn our exchanges and read us generally against one S. M. Knight, calling himself a practicing Attorney in the Court of Claims at Washington City. We published his advertisement as directed by a letter from himself. After the expiration of four weeks the time he allowed it to be inserted with the promise to pay his bill at that time, he sends us a printed circular letter saying that his advertisement was ordered by the Yazoo City Whig by an "awkward blunder" of his clerk during his absence. The fact of the letter being printed shows that Mr. S. M. Knight's Clerk had made a great many "awkward blunders" and that he himself a bungler in the art of swindling. The printed letter offers to remunerate us in the shape of services in procuring Bonny Land &c. We have a claim of that sort before the court at Washington, but we would not trust Mr. S. M. Knight with our business for fear he would steal the warrant and sell it after it was obtained. We send a copy of this paper to the Judges and the Bar of the Court in which this man says he is a practicing Attorney. How many of our exchanges have been "sold" by this Jeremy Diddle?

COL. J. J. B. WHITE.

As citizens of this section of the Senatorial District composed of the Counties of Yazoo, Issaquena, Washington and Bolivar, we think it is time that the people should speak out and say who they prefer for Senator of this District. We admit there are many callant gentlemen that have been aspirants for this high position, as to their merits and qualifications we have sought to enquire. Before we say anything, we wish to be understood to be in favor of Col. J. J. B. White is our choice. He has served the County of Issaquena, as representative for many years, and is satisfied by us as Representatives of the District. He is distinguished by his eminent and actions for the State and Country. We do not intend to draw comparisons with him; but we will say that Col. White after twenty years residence in the State amid all our vicissitudes has been always loyal, true and devoted to every interest and we might say voluntarily and cheerfully would give up his property for the good of the people.

Let us then say to our people and earnestly call upon them to give their public support to the candidate whose name we have here set before them. We are not in the least in a hurry, and we will be glad to hear from you. We are, dear friends, your obedient servants and your true friends, J. J. B. WHITE.

SAM'S AUCTION—VALUABLE RELICS.

The following valuable relic from a late number of the Henderson Courier, is about one of the richest things of the season. By virtue of a decree, rendered at the last term of the Court of 76, J. as a commissioner, will proceed to sell at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the Court House door in the city of Henderson, on the first Monday of August next, between the hours of sunrise and sunset, for principles in hand, all the property belonging to the late Whig party of Kentucky, deceased, consisting of and involved to me as follows, to-wit: One "antelope" idea of a national bank, five badly damaged log-cabin, to which are attached three coats of arms in (dearable good order, though rather badly used in the campaign of 1846). One barrel of hand cream made on the farm of Harrison in the same year. One battle-ground stick, cut from the field of Tippecanoe, about the same period, which has been in the possession of many eminent Whig politicians from that day to the present. A part of the tariff act of 1842 and the whole of the bankrupt law passed by this party in the same year. The remaining principles of this party, consisting of internal improvement, reasonable protection to American interests, conservatism, &c., being expressly reserved for my own private and family use.

I will further expose to sale, at the same time and place, and on the same terms, the various Democratic platforms, which have been adopted by this deficient party at Baltimore and elsewhere, from the days of Jacksonism to the present time. Some of these present a very varied and curious display of Mosaic work, particularly the one of 1833, which is partly of an ebony color, singularly inlaid with a sufficient quantity of white to give it, on the whole, somewhat of a spotted, streaked appearance, and which has been used by the party in its life time to suit people of all tastes and colors, also a hickory stick cut from the soil of the Hermitage, and the Virginia resolutions of '98, which, though a good deal worn somewhat funky, having been construed to mean a great many things, can yet be used in a tight place, as they did originally cover a good deal of ground. What I regard, however, as the most curious specimen, will be a certain man with southern principles—being the individual whose countenance and complexion change to suit the company or society he may be in, and who will perform this most singular feat on the day of the sale, if so required. I will also offer the identical breeches formerly in the possession of Mr. Marcy, and which it will be recollected, the government wore at charges in the sum of fifty cents for patching. I will also, without reserve, proceed to sell all and singular, the interests which both parties may have in the Yazoo State in this country, and which have been in their possession at different times during the different Presidential campaigns. This has been, in days gone by, esteemed of much value, and for which the highest prices have been paid. There will also be shown a very singular specimen taken from the quarry of the extreme southern Democratic party, but it has long been in the cabinet of John C. Calhoun. This is also said to possess some repulsive and explosive properties, and once obtained a notoriety in showing the power of forces, or rather the effect of one force acting on another force. There can also be seen a book on abstractions, and a work yet in manuscript; supposed to be written by a southern nullifier; on the rights of the States, to which is appended an atlas of the State of "masterly inactivity."

I will also, by virtue of the same decree, proceed to expose at public auction all the interest of David Wilmot, it being more properly speaking, the interest or claim made by the Free-soil party at the North, to all the lands in the territories of the United States.

The above property was levied on to satisfy an execution in favor of the people of the United States, against said Whig, Democratic and Free-soil parties, who sometime ago failed in business, and who are now wholly insolvent and irresponsible. Sale positively by SAM.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Worms! Worms!
A great many learned treatises have been written, explaining the origin of, and of classifying the worms generated in the human system. Scarcely any topic of medical science has elicited more acute observation and profound research; and yet physicians are very much divided in opinion of the subject. It must be admitted however, that, after all, a mode of expelling these worms, and purifying the body from their presence is of more value than the wisest questions as to the origin. The expelling agent has at length been found. Dr. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE is much sought after specific, and has already superseded all other worm medicines, its efficacy being universally acknowledged by medical practitioners.

Purchasers will please ask for Dr. McLANE'S CELEBRATED VERMIFUGE and take none else. All other Vermifuges in comparison are worthless. Dr. McLANE'S GENUINE VERMIFUGE, also his CELEBRATED LIVER PILLS, can now be had at all respectable Drug Stores in the United States and Canada.
