For This Solid Oak Kitchen Cabinet

Every commodity and utensil used in the model kitchen is provided for in this splendid Kitchen Cabinet, and every labor saving and time saving device is embodied in its construction.

This Kitchen Cabinet is made of thoroughly seasoned oak with high gloss golden finish. It stands 73 inches high, is 42 inches wide and 26 inches deep. The top section is fitted to the back and sides of table top in such a manner as to give free and unobstructed working surface. Note the tilting sugar bin, roomy china cabinet and the recipe and card rack. Every drawer and compartment can be opened without removing dishes or utensils from table top. The patent, tilting, dustproof flour bin will hold 50 pounds of flour, is easily removed for airing or cleaning and is fitted with a metal flour sifter.

The base has a white basswood table top with working surface 26x42 inches, roomy cupboard for pots and pans, and a wide shelf adding one-half to its capacity. Inside of cupboard door is a rack with six spice cans, with another rack below for small packages. Above the large bread and cake drawer with metal top are two drawers for linen and cutlery. Kneading and chopping board can be readily removed and placed upon table top.

When you buy a Kitchen Cabinet like this through the usual channels you will pay almost double the price we ask, because we are charging you only actual factory cost with one small margin of profit added, and we make shipment direct from the factory.

Send us your order for this solid oak Kitchen Cabinet, with the distinct understanding that you cannot buy its equal in the usual way for less than $25.00. When you receive the cabinet, if you do not agree with us, if you do not find it exactly as we describe and illustrate, if you are not more than pleased with the material, construction, finish and saving in money, we ask you to return it to us and let us return the purchase price, including any freight charges you may have paid. Order by number.

THE HOME CIRCLE

DAFFODILS.

WANDER'D LONELY as a cloud
 That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
 When all at once I saw a crowd,
 A host, of golden daffodils;
 Beside the lake, beneath the trees,
 Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
 And twinkle on the Milky Way,
 They stretch'd in never-ending line
 Along the margin of a bay;
 Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
 Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced; but they
 Outdid the sparkling waves in glee:
 A poet could not but be gay,
 In such a jocund company:
 I gazed—and gazed—but little thought
 What wealth the show to me had brought:

For oft, when on my couch I lie
 In vacant or in pensive mood,
 They flash upon that inward eye
 Which is the bliss of solitude;
 And then my heart with pleasure fills,
 And dances with the daffodils.

THE HEALTH OF THE HOUSEHOLD.

The Importance of Household Hygiene—The Truest Patriotism Is That Which Considers the Welfare of One's Neighbors—How Smallpox Could Be Stamped Out, and Why Vaccination is Sometimes Hurtful.

By Mrs. F. L. Stevens.

W HILE EXPERT sanitarians are erecting sanatoria for consumptives, installing plants for the purification of water supplies, employing effective methods for disposing of sewage, abolishing the public drinking cup, campaigning for clean meats and clean milk supplies, we, the laity, have hygienic responsibilities in the home, and we, the home builders and housekeepers, owe it to ourselves and the communities in which we live to practice hygienic living, to develop and increase our physical resistance to sickness and disease which so seriously handicap our usefulness and our destiny. Individual resistance will do much in the war against disease. The public health service is an aid in the control of disease but without the definite co-operation of the individual home all laws regulating quarantine requirements are valueless.

We glow with pride when loyalty to State or Nation are public issues; we observe the birthdays of our Nation, of our National and State heroes, we wish our children reared in an atmosphere of patriotism—all of which are laudable and worthy, but I wish to call attention to a finer patriotism which involves a keener loyalty, which has as its basis nothing less than the golden rule itself.

Forgetfulness of One's Neighbors.

I have in mind now a mother who permitted certain members of her family to attend the public school when at the time another member of the family was suffering an attack of scarlet fever. An interesting feature of the affair was that this mother, a woman above the average in education and intelligence, felt that her personal privileges were sorely interfered with when she was requested by a health official to remove her children from the school until the contagion had disappeared from her home. I have in mind another parallel case in so far as public danger is concerned. There was a case of diphtheria in an isolated country home. An interested friend employed a doctor to administer antitoxin. The doctor's visit occurred on Saturday and on Monday the diphtheria patient was found in her usual place in the public school using freely the common drinking cup, exchanging books, pencils, possibly food, having her part in all the daily routine and spreading disease broadcast in her wake. Little wonder is it that the proper period of incubation being completed, an epidemic of diphtheria broke out in that school, involving loss of school advantages, loss of efficiency in the home, together with a long list of attending evils. All this happened because one mother lacked the loyalty to friends and neighbors which must be the basis of our best civilization; the other lacked one of the essentials of success in dealing with the health problem—knowledge.

What One Mother Did.

However, there are many hopeful pictures and I am pleased to contemplate one—a mother of a large family of children, who was unexpectedly confronted with a malignant case of diphtheria in the home, at the time a member of the family was a nursing baby of three months. With promptness this woman though extremely limited in means, isolated the infectious disease, and cared for it with that splendid intelligence which comes only from knowledge, self-control and enthusiasm, with the result that she was able to go on with the care of the baby and the other children, no other member of the family showing the slightest symptom of disease.

How to Combat Smallpox Successfully

The unusually large number of cases of smallpox in North Carolina and other Southern States at the present moment leads to the conclusion that in the matter of vaccination and quarantine regulations,
