THE SENTINEL,

GRENADA, MISSISSIPPI.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1900.

The Methodist ministers got their annual shaking up this week.

The season is now at hand when good country roads would be a blessing.

Old bachelors are reminded that there is no revenue stamp required on a marriage license.

Don Dickinson and the Vicksburg Post have not yet reorganized the Democratic party at this writing.

The Congressional Record is putting in its appearance again and will give the editors reading matter to occupy these long winter nights.

Congress is in session and Mark Hanna intends to pass a few bills by which contributors to the Republican campaign fund can get their money back.

The Christmas turkey is fattening in a thousand coops and the families in Mississippi are few that will not carve one of these noble birds on the sublime anniversary approaching.

McKinley dined on Thanksgiving day from a thirty-four pound turkey sent him by a Rhode Islander who has been blessed by prosperity and who is thankful for the benevolent assimilation of the Filipinos.

The wars in the land have made a large and constantly increasing demand for horses and mules, and there is every reason to believe that there will be money in raising them for several years to come.

Bank cashiers seem to be making a record for the close of the nineteenth century. He who defaults and decamps with less than one hundred thousand dollars in these strenuous times is small potatoes.

J. E. Gibson, of Indiana, can now write a book, taking for his title "An Incorruptible Governor." It would sell well in the Hoosier state, for people up there would like to read about honesty in high official life.

Pay your debts or go to those you owe and deliver a plain, unvarnished tale of your difficulties. Those who are deserving and in trouble always profit by not trying to make out that they could pay if they only wanted to.

A police judge in a Missouri town recently lectured the police for their laxity in the suppression of gambling etc., whereupon the guardians of the public morals promptly confiscated 30 slot machines owned and operated by the magistrate's brother.

The West Point Leader and Times have signed and published an agreement not to say harsh things about each other any more. The subscribers to each paper evidently protested against assisting in the expense of laundrying so much dirty linen.

It is claimed that one-fourth of the taxes in San Francisco are paid by women. One female property holder has refused to pay her taxes on the grounds that she is denied a voice in the government and that she is not allowed to vote. The matter will be taken into the courts.

We have sent out this week a statement of the accounts of subscribers to the SENTINEL. This is not done simply for amusement but because we need the money and are entitled to it. Those who cannot pay, and there are few such, should at least come in and put us in touch with their case.

Senator Cushman K. Davis, of Minnesota, died in St. Paul last week. He was one of the strongest and most substantial men in the councils of the Republican party, and in 1896 was prominently mentioned as a presidential candidate. He did his last active work as a campaigner for McKinley, and left the stump for his bed, from which he never rose again.

Col. Inge Dead.

The Clarion-Ledger is pained to hear of the death of Col. Wm. Inge, at his home in Corinth. He was a noble man, a fine lawyer and good citizen. He had represented his county in the legislature and was speaker of that body in 1884. He was universally popular and highly esteemed throughout the State. —Jackson Clarion-Ledger.

The SENTINEL endorses the above tribute. Col. Inge was a noble, generous-hearted man and the world is better for his having lived in it. Col. Inge was the father of Mrs. M. I. Hoskins, of the Grenada College faculty, and to her we extend our heartfelt sympathy.

FOR CHRISTMAS.

There are many things in Furniture which will make acceptable Christmas gifts, and they would be lasting remembrances of your kindness. We have a complete line of Furniture from the costly kind down to the commoner grades. An easy chair for father, a mirror for mother, a rug for the whole family, and other things, should be included in your holiday purchases.

GABBERT, MOORE & Co.

THE PRESIDENT IS HAPPY.

At the opening of the present session of congress, which convened in Washington on Monday, President McKinley transmitted one of the most voluminous messesages ever written by any of the chief executives of the nation. The Chinese question is gone into in detail, though the president makes no suggestions as to the settlement of the difficulties in the orient. The prosperity of the country is dwelt upon at some length with an exultant undertone which unwittingly reveals the inward belief that McKinley and prosperity are one and inseperable, now and forever. Another long paragraph of self-praise recites the plethoric condition of the treasury. There is no doubt but what there is a handsome surplus on hand now, but it has been raised by a war tax in times of comparative peace. And there will that surplus be by the time Mark Hanna gets his two million dollar ship subsidy fastened on the people, when a few thousand more pensioners are added to the roll, when the standing army comprises one hundred thousand men, when the trusts and combines get their share by way of extortionate government contracts, and when the tale of the extravagances of the present congress is all told? A surplus is something in which Republicans take great delight.

Taken in its broadest sense the message of the president shows an excellent condition of public affairs, looking upon them in the present, but the sun always shines the brightest just as the storm clouds rise above the horizon. Hopes run high now, but no man knows the dangers that are just ahead. The president has reason to think that his policies are acceptable to the people and the Republican party, drunk with victory, will feel careless of public sentiment and criticism. The SENTINEL is one who hopes that the greatest blessings of progress and prosperity may come to this nation, under whatever party that may administer its government, and that there will be enough honest and patriotic men in both houses of congress to prevent the pround old ship of state from running foul of snags.

President McKinley and Mark Hanna think that conditions are about as near exactly perfect as they could possibly be, so we are content to let time wag on, and if they are right the more honor and glory to them.

Mr. A. F. Williams, who has opened up an establishment on Depot street, just opposite Sam Wile's store, is an expert candy maker with twenty years of experience. He makes the very finest grades of candies and invites inspection of his processes. Chocolates and other fine candies are made, and they equal the best to be found in the land. Mr. Williams is also conducting a bakery and is turning out some splendid products of his skill. The SENTINEL is disposed to feel proud of such an establishment as this and hopes that Mr. Williams will be sufficiently patronized to make his venture a success.

EFFORT CAUSES GROWTH.

Oakland, Miss., is a little town in Yalobusha county, and about twenty-one miles north of Grenada. It has as progressive and enterprising business men it has ever been our pleasure to meet, and they succeed by being successful. In the first place they are of that liberal turn of business mind which sees the necessity of spending money in order to make money. This is evidenced by the large amount of printer's ink used by them. They issue large quantities of well-worded and well-written circulars and posters, which by the way, the SENTINEL has the plesaure of printing. Charleston, in the county of Tallahatchie, has a newspaper. Oakland has none, but the advertising pages of the Charleston Herald are filled almost exclusively by attractive advertisements of the wide-awake and far-sighted business men of Oakland. The Oakland stores are doing a fine business while those in Charleston are doing almost nothing. Charleston has elected to die of dry rot and her merchants are helping her by holding back on the reins and driving business away rather than attracting it. Ask the Oakland merchants if advertising pays and they will answer, yes.

A town is judged abroad by the amount of advertising displayed in the newspapers published there. It is an unvarying criterion to the status of things, and a glance at its columns will reveal whether the town wants your business or simply does not care whether "school keeps or not." Advertising also brings trade that will go elsewhere when home merchants are careless about advertising what they have to sell. Large sums of money now go to St. Louis, Memphis, Chicago and other points simply because large houses there send out carloads of handsomely gotten up catalogues accompanied by urgent solicitations to the people to send in their orders. This trade could be supplied by home concerns but the trade is attracted elsewhere by advertising. It would be surprising to learn how much money goes out of towns in this and other sections, every year to Barr's and Nugents in St, Louis, Montgomery Ward & Co's., in Chicago, and other firms who make a continuous bid for the trade. It would be sufficient, if spent at home to greatly increase the volume of business done. No money is saved by sending away, and there is the further difficulty of buying goods "unsight and unseen."

The merchant who does not ask the public to visit his store, and who does not advertise intelligently, and persistently, cannot expect to do a good business. Advertising has become a necessity in this age, and he who treats the matter lightly will find the wind going out of his business sails and his ship will soon be foundered on a glassy sea across which the trade winds of commerce will never blow again. In short he will be "busted."

A DEARTH OF SERVANTS—WHY?

Under the above heading the Clarksdale Challenge, edited by Mrs. Hala Hammond Butt, publishes the following forcible arraignment of a class of people who constitute the most dangerous element in Southern society; a class who not only degrade themselves but who put viciousness, daring and crime into the easily corrupted minds of the negro population. Mrs. Butt says:

"The servant question, so old and yet so thoroughly vital and constantly recurring, as to its vexatious aspects, is at high tide in Clarksdale. The real trouble, as is quite well understood, rests in the independence of the servant material,—the negro. The necessity to work has never been forced upon him, either by climatic or any other conditions, as the paths to his subsistence without work are as innumerable as they are inglorious. Like the lillies of the field he toils not neither does he spin, and yet when it comes to ease and indolence he sadly discounts even the most carefully nurtured blossom that gave its fragrance to the royal gardens. The great army of vagabond idlers that are in this community as in many others, have methods of living that are winked at by the authorities and thus are they absolved from any duty as an industrial law-abiding class to town, county, or State, any duty that they in their idleness and viciousness may see fit to ignore or repudiate. We know, as nearly every rational man and woman of mature years must know also, that there is a white element in the community, irrespective of officials, depraved and vicious, that is largely responsible for this worthlessness among the negroes and that enables them to live independent of work and in open defiance of the laws of the land. As reprehensible as is the attidude of the negro, this responsible white element is decidedly more contemptible and a greater menace to the welfare of the town. It is disgusting and disgraceful that the moral obliquities of white men should react in accumulated burdens upon the good women of the town. It is monstrous that these, the self-constituted "protectors" of the women of the race should thus defile and debase themselves until their presence is an actual contamination; until they are become moral lepers among men, and as such pollute the very atmosphere they breathe."

THE INDUSTRIAL CONVENTION.

The Southern Industrial Association, which held a four days session in New Orleans this week, is doing a great work for the South. Over 250 representatives were present, representing nearly all the southern states and a few northern states. Speeches were made by General John B. Gordon, H. H. Hargrove, the president of the Association, Bishop Sessums, Hon. Sidney Story, Governor Longino and other notable personages. In all the speeches, resolutions and proceedings there was sounded the object of the organization—the development of the South. That great good will result cannot be doubted.

Governor Longino, in answering for Mississippi, made a strong and patriotic speech, from which we quote the following:

"Let this convention by the wisdom of its proceedings write it down in history that the South with this convention begins to profit by the errors of the past, and the states, like Mississippi, which have heretofore been the laggards in industrial and material development, shall soon take their proper place along by the side of their sister states of Georgia and the Carolinas in the manufacture of cotton and other products peculiar to our soil and climate, and with Tennessee, Kentucky, Kansas, Illinois and Missouri in the matter of grazing and stock raising.

"To that end there should be given liberal encouragement to the importation and investment of capital, by offering fair and just inducements thereto, and by protecting by law the property of corporations with the same sacredness as that of individuals, whether of high or low degree.

"Progress and prosperity do not, cannot, exist where a proper regard is not shown for the equal rights of both labor and capital, and respected alike by the people; the one is not likely to hunt a home, nor the other to seek investment, where life and property are not sacredly protected by the courts and the law.

"If the South desires to enter a new era of of life and development let it stand as it has never done before for the enforcement of the law, the supremacy of virtuous, intelligent manhood and the suppression of hoodlumism."

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tully, Kan.: "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

PETITION FOR PARDON.

To the Honorable A. H. Longino, Governor of the State of Mississippi:

We, the undersigned citizens and neighbors of Giles Harris, who was convicted of larceny at the August, 1900, term of the circuit court of Grenada county, Mississippi, and was sentenced to the State penitentiary for the period of three years for said offense, do most respectfully petition your excellency to pardon the said Giles Harris, for the following reasons, to-wit: That the said Giles Harris was in our opinion unduly persuaded by some of his superiors—as to race—and was influenced to lend a helping hand in the commission of the offense charged simply by, and only, the use of his wagon and team in transportation, and that the petitioner, Giles Harris, has a large family of small children on his hands, and that he stands well in his neighborhood. Thinking that the law has been fully vindicated, as to him, in this matter, we here affix our names, and ask that Giles be pardoned, and for which we will ever pray.
