Special License Assured for Manufacture of Food Products.
 Manufacturers of essential food products have been advised by the Food Administration that they will be able to obtain their full necessary requirements of orders for manufacturing purposes during the coming year.
 This applies particularly to packers of fruit, condensed milk, such vegetables for the preservation of which sugar may be necessary, as well as to the housewives, for use in preserving purposes. As soon as the emergency is relieved, according to the Food Administration statement, supplies of sugar will be available for these purposes. Shipments from Cuba are steadily increasing.
 All canners have been advised to hold for war purposes such quantities of canned corn, peas, tomatoes, string beans, and salmon as they may have on hand. Such quantities as are not wanted will be released within a few days after receipt of reports showing stocks on hand, which must be submitted to the Food Administration before March 15.

IN THE DENTIST'S OFFICE.
 Many came in; many went out; some quite slender and many stout. The Doctor to each was pleasant. Yet, Game as a Chinese Phoenix.
 Then came a dunsie pay and port. "Doctor, is it going to hurt?"
 "Ah! Surely now," the Doctor said, "The little beauty isn't afraid?"
 "Oh Doctor! I've suffered enough; My jaw has such a horrid puff I can't talk plain, I mean at all; My tongue moves like an iron ball."
 "Good to stop it once in a while," Said the Doctor with a beaming smile. "Now, Doctor, I'll not let that phoo. You shut up—I won't stand your sass."
 In came a tall gawky fellow; Sun-burned neck and hands dark yellow.
 "Doctor! I've a yellow jackets nest between top of my head and chest."
 "Well, said the Doctor, "have the mottle.
 Or some grit and we'll soon settle The matter with as little pain As necessary for your gain."
 The Doctor yanked and then he pulled; He pulled and pulled and pulled and pulled.
 "Hey Doctor! You git back to law, Hit the mid'dler. Don't break my jaw."
 The Doctor yanked and pulled again With all his strength and might and main.
 The fellow arose to follow As if pullers were to swallow.
 "Ah, Jimminy! I'm glad it's out. And Doctor, you are pretty stout. I'd like to have you as a han'— To work 'side me and my hired man."
 Then came an old negro "Mammy," Who had nursed the Doctor's Sammy.
 "How is you boss? How big's Sammy?"
 "He's about 'tall as you 'Mammy."
 "The Doctor and the negress talked Of things in common then it balked—
 "Oh Lawdy! Lawdy! Pull dis roof, He's sho' gwine ter jump fru de roof!"

Each Battle Plane Needs Extra Equipment and Staff of Skilled Men.
 After three years of warfare the total number of airplanes able to take the air at any one time on either side of the western front has not been over 2,500. Each plane in the air requires a force of 46 men, two replacement planes on the ground and one training plane for every pilot who eventually reaches the front with an extra engine for each plane.
 The life of a plane is not more than two months, and the engine must be overhauled after each 75 hours. Now that American battle planes are going overseas, the great problem is to secure the thousands of skilled mechanics, engineers, motor repair men, wood and metal workers needed to keep the planes in perfect condition. This engineering and mechanical force at the airbases, the flying fields, and repair depots, both here and behind the lines in France, is a vital industrial link in the chain to air supremacy.

Special License to Cover Shipments.
 According to an announcement by the War Trade Board a special license has been issued covering shipments made by persons in the United States to, and for the personal use of, individuals serving in the United States Army or Navy or the American Red Cross abroad.
 This license does not permit shipments by persons in this country to American prisoners of war, but has been issued to facilitate small personal shipments to soldiers and sailors and Red Cross workers by doing away with the necessity of securing an individual export license in each case. Shipments by mail under this license must be made in accordance with the regulations of the Post Office Department. If it becomes necessary later to limit this license to certain specified commodities notice will be given through the press.

WHEATLESS BISCUITS.
 Here's an old fashioned recipe for corn muffins that has recently been revived and used with unusual success in several of the larger New York hotels: To make three and a half dozen muffins take one quart milk, six ounces butter substitute, twelve ounces of light syrup or honey, four eggs, pinch of salt, two ounces baking powder, one and a half pounds cornmeal and one and a half pounds rye flour. The butter and syrup should be thoroughly mixed; then add the eggs gradually. Pour in the milk and add the rye flour mixed with cornmeal and baking powder.
 Parched cornmeal is the feature of these excellent wheatless biscuits. First, the cornmeal—one-half a cup—is put in a shallow pan placed in the oven and stirred frequently until it is a delicate brown. The other ingredients are a teaspoon of salt, a cup of peanut butter and one and a half cups of water. Mix the peanut butter, water and salt and heat. While this mixture is hot stir in the meal which should also be hot. Beat thoroughly. The dough should be of such consistency that it can be dropped from a spoon. Bake in small cakes in an ungreased pan. This makes 18 biscuits, each of which contains one-sixth of an ounce of protein.

War Conditions Reflected In Telephone Service

There are thirteen army camps in the south equal in size to the average city, and in each one we have installed a complete telephone system so that the army officials may have adequate telephone communication, both local and long distance.

This was a big job given to us without time for preparation or for the preliminaries that such undertakings usually require. The nation was at war; the Bell system had proffered all its resources, and when the camps were located we were there with men and material.

We did only our duty, but it is a matter of pride that we were able to gather material and equipment from the four corners of the country and have service waiting for the government when officials were ready for it.

Such a gigantic task could not be accomplished without sacrifice, and while as an organization and as individuals we were willing to go the limit, the necessity now arises for the public to also participate in the sacrifice.

Today we find the calling rate from commercial telephones throughout our territory above any average ever before experienced or anticipated, while it is not within our ability to afford the prompt and certain relief that could be effected in ordinary times.

There is not an army camp here, but the drain upon the available supply of material and the activity due to war conditions, is reflected in the demands upon our service here.

We cannot secure equipment with which to enlarge our switchboards, and only the minimum amount of material is available for increasing the number of our long distance circuits.

Added to this is the imperative duty of serving the government first with a service which in itself is growing beyond all anticipated proportions.

We can say frankly that there is every likelihood that your local telephone service will be slower than you ordinarily experience and that your long distance service will be subject to delays never before experienced.

This is one of the sacrifices of war which the individual American is called upon to bear.

We want you to know, however, that we are doing all that is humanly possible and all that money and science can do, to maintain our service at the high standard for which the Bell system is world famous.

When you encounter delays and when your service does not measure up to your past experience, we hope you will bear this in mind and give us your cheerful and patient co-operation.
