Eyes Which sleep One at a Time Macon (Gs.,) Measenger.

There is a man in Macon who owns a pair of the most remarkable eyes we have ever heard of. Their peculiarity lies in the fact that one of them goes to sleep before the other does, and consequently one wakes up in the morning sooner than the other. It must be very interesting to have such a pair of eyes. The right eye goes to sie p and sleeps soundly while the other lies restlessly awake striving by all manner of devices to woo "nature's aweet restorer, balony sleep." Now and then the tent optic, wide-awake, looks over the bridge of the man's nose at its partner, sees the tringed curtain of the right eye's couch tightly drawn, hears the sleeping eye snore away into the very bowels of sleep, and then wishes to gracious it could drop its curtain, too. And then it nods and takes cut naps, to be seen sionally awakened by the continued snoring of its neighbor! Finally it drops off into a doze and both our demonstrations dream until morning, when snother difficulty ppears. The right eye awakens and wants to get up, but the left peeper turns over in its bed and swears it would give $1000 for just ten minutes more sleep!

Surely a man with such a pair of eyes ought to have dead loads of eyes ought to have dead tosds or fun all to himself. We would, for Carrie countered on the other one's line and they came to the second round with flushed and bloody faces. To describe the rest of the match would be disgusting. It was brutal in the extreme, and I must say that it is a crying shame that such a thing should occur in a Christian country. I noticed one thing; when the girls were pretty well beaten up, the men spectators yelled to the secomis to pull them apart; but the women who looked ou. urged them to fight it out.
