

We commend to the perusal of our readers the "Southern Refrain" or "What'll you take?" by the author of "Straws," as a graphic and lively sketch of one of the peculiarities of Southern manners. By the way "Straws," as we must style him, is one of the readiest writers of the day, and has a happy facility in dashing off in a bold and spirited style, accurate and pippant sketches of public buildings, and places of resort abroad, blending at the same time, wit and sentiment, humor and feeling, with the most incongruous subjects.—Our most deliberate conclusion is, and we care not who hears us say it, that "Straws" is an original.

RESUMPTION.—We learn by the Augusta Sentinel & Chronicle of the 6th inst., that the Governor of Georgia has issued his proclamation requiring the Banks of that state to resume specie payments on the 1st of February next.

MAINE.—Joshua A. Lowell [V. B.] has been elected after a long and exciting contest, as member of Congress from the Hancock and Washington Congressional Districts.

NEW SPECIES OF COTTON.—A specimen of new Cotton, brought from South America, and called the "Rio Cotton," has been raised in Alabama, the staple three inches long—very fine. Try it.

"DO BUY ME."—This is an expression used by the Georgian girls who are offered for sale in the Constantinople slave market when they happen to see the face of a man that pleases them. A correspondent of the Boston Post writes thus upon the subject.—"It is a scene that made a deep impression upon me; there are seen our fellow creatures, like horses or other cattle, exposed for sale, and yet the merriest looking set of creatures I ever beheld. The greater portion of them come from Abyssinia and Nubia, and are blacks. In the houses which surround the yard of the slave market, are the Georgian slaves, and among them are some really beautiful: they have the advantage over the Circassians in complexion. They looked at me in passing with a good humored smile, and some of them said in a few words, which I understood to be, 'Do buy me'—They would like European masters, but the Franks are not permitted to purchase. The price of a beautiful, accomplished and youthful Georgian slave is £600.

Two SCENES IN RICHMOND (Va.) are thus described by a writer in one of the papers of that city. [They relate to the night in which FANNY ELSAER recently appeared in the Theatre of that city, and the first briefly describes that scene:]

"She floated about like a fair but very voluptuous looking spirit, and cut her toes hither and thither, and swayed her body to and fro in a way which was a caution to all inflammable young gentlemen, gray-headed or not. The lovely creatures who regarded the scene looked on enchanted, and made all bright with their smiles; the vast crowd of men shouted and applauded with their whole might, and the beautiful dancing woman, giving them an extra flirt or two, which she threw off in a perfect agony of delight, made her bow—the curtain dropped, the dear Fanny tapping her Wring your-neck-off upon the shoulder, said 'here, here is to one thousand dollars almost—now let us go.' But the audience said no, and they shouted and screamed, and thumped for her to come out and—

"At that moment, in an obscure nook, open in many parts to the cold, biting winds, without fire, alone sat a poor woman, holding to her chilled bosom, her sick and dying babe, while upon a rude pallet of straw lay two shivering little creatures, her children, too. Her eye was heavy with watching, her cheek sunken with hunger and suffering, her heart filled with the very gall and bitterness of life. Still how truly, oh! how truly, answered that heart to the pang of a mother's love, as she gazed into the innocent face of her dying babe; how fast flowed the tears from eyes which had known little but sorrow and weeping through many weary days—how deep and fervent was the prayer which came up from the very fountains of privation and grief. There was no heart near to sympathize, no kind hand to aid, the voice to soothe—the physician's healing art, charity's angel arm came not to soften the trying moments of her poor babe; and as life flickered and waned in its fair urn, and the sobs of the mother sounded in that solitary room as in the agony of her grief she exclaimed, 'a few pence had saved thee to me, my sweet babe—as the sleeper on the pallet of straw murmured in their uneasy slumber; Mother, dear mother, give me some bread—' and the keen wind came through the crevices and she clasped the dying child to her bosom; at that moment, a dancing woman, a stranger, with her wealth of thousands, and her ingots of gold and silver made her last graceful bow, and took the princely sum which was hers for a few moments' pleasant labor.

"As the spectators gave their last shout, the babe's innocent spirit winged its flight to Heaven, and the mother gazed in despair upon all that remained to her of the little prattler whom she so dearly loved.

"Such is life."

EUROPEAN NEWS.
We have no room to give details of the European news received. The queen of Great Britain has been delivered of a daughter. St. Jean d'Acro has been taken by the Allied Powers. The bombardment of Acre is reported by the English advices as terrible in its nature, and their loss in killed and wounded very small.

The Bellerophon, 100 gun ship fired in one hour and a half hours, 14,023 pounds of powder, and 62,908 pounds of shot. The Princess Charlotte of the same force, fired 4,508 shots in three hours, or one broadside repeated every two minutes for 86 times.

At four o'clock an explosion took place in the town of the most tremendous character, by which 1200 of the garrison out of 5 or 6000 were killed, and the assailants took possession and found in the town some half million of dollars in specie, and 300 pieces of field artillery.

As soon as this disastrous news reached the Pacha, at Alexandria, he determined to submit, and recalled his troops from Syria, despairing of any aid from France.

Money matters had greatly improved in G. Britain. The demand for cotton was steady though limited. A large house (John Wright & Co. bankers) had failed. The Republic of Texas has been recognised as independent by Great Britain. The Courier des E. U. states that official news of the submission of the Pacha of Egypt has been received at Paris. The French fleet had returned to Toulon. Upwards of 1200 horses had been destroyed by an inundation in the department of Ain in France.

CONSUMPTION.—The editor of the New Hampshire Telegraph, in an article relating to the frequency of this disease among us, and its character, says.

"If there be a disease in this world of ills which seems in a peculiar manner to fit its victim for the fate which human skill cannot avert, that disease is consumption. To one who is full of life, and hope, and joy, the first conviction that it has fastened its death grasp upon him the fearful certainty of its end will flash through him with a thrill of horror—more than that of most other diseases. Starting it must be indeed, to tell for the first time, that there is a worm-gnawing at one's vitals, whose greedy teeth no human skill can stay—startling to feel the certainty of disease within, whose end is surely death. But how soon does the spirit grow calm; and as he feels the disease tugging at his heart strings, and his strength wasting away before it; how calmly then does the soul plume itself for its upward flight—how trustingly then does it lean itself upon the bosom of its God, and when the flesh and heart grow faint and fail, how sweetly sinks to its final rest the victim of consumption."

"So fades a summer cloud away,
So sinks the gale when storms are o'er,
So gently shuts the eye of day,
So dies a wave along the shore."

From the New Orleans Picayune.
STRAWS—No. 160.

"WHAT'LL YOU TAKE?"—A Southern Refrain.

"Hallo! why thunder, it aint you!
Lord! when did you arrive!
I'm dev'lish glad to see you—'pon
My soul—as I'm alive;
How did you leave the Captain—eh—
I'retly well—wide awake!
Here, Johnson, this is my friend Smith,
Come, boys—what'll you take!"

"Smith! is that you?—why Brown, here's Smith!"
"Not when did you get back!
I met you in Broadway you know—
I say, you kept the track;
At Saratoga too. I'm told
You gave the girls a shake—
Here Wilson, join us—well, I say
N. S. What'll you take!"

"Excuse me—aint you Mr. Smith?
I met you, sir, last year;
You're looking very well indeed—
D'ye spend the winter here!
I've spent the summer past with Bob,
Your brother—for his sake
You're doubly welcome back—you are Indeed—what will you take!"

"Isn't that Smith!" "Why certainly,
I thought of course you knew him—
Here, Smith! here's my friend Peterson,
Just let me put you to him!"
"What, Peterson—ah! I believe I've met you 'cross the lake!"
"Of course—don't you remember—well,
Come sirs, What'll you take!"

"Slap—Eh! lord bless me Tompkins! come,
Don't you strike quite so hard."
"Why, lord, I didn't hurt you, eh?
Next time be on your guard."
"Hang you, you've taken all my breath—
You'd make a steamboat quake!"
"In course I would—give us your hand Old horse!—what'll you take!"

"How are you, Smith!" "Ah! General,
I'm glad to see ye—excuse me—"
"Oh certainly—what'll you take!
You must now—don't refuse me—"
"But, General—pray drink with me—Obliged me—something do take."
"No, what'll you!"—"No what'll you!"
"No, d—n it—what'll you take!"

"Doct'r!" "Ah, Smith! why bless my soul
From whence have you aint!
Mrs. P. dream'd about you—come
I've got an extra 'bit."
"Well, Doctor, how's the season been!"
"D—d healthy—didn't make
Expenses—nothing like it—
Never mind, what'll you take!"

"Why, Smith! my dear young friend—indeed
This is pleasure—truly!"
"Thank you dear Judge, have you been well!"
"Yes, sir—I've took it coolly;
You met my Tom!"—"Oh yes, Judge!"—"well
How was he! a sad rake—
I've talked to him, but let him run—
Come boy—what'll you take!"

Well, G. N. GEORGE P. MORRIS, you're
The nation's singer—granted;
But here's a national 'refrain';
Which, somehow, you haint chanted;
The nigger tunes is all used up—
Your laurels is at stake;
But don't be jealous—will you—eh!
That's right—what'll you take!"

The Illinois legislature, by a vote of 64 to 28 have decided not to pay the interest due upon the bonds of that State. This is the first brick thrown down from the walls of the national faith, and the state of Illinois stands before the world in the shameful position of refusing to pay her honest debts. Oh, shame where is thy blush!

A resolution has passed the House of Representatives of Illinois, to call a convention to revise the constitution of that State.

WHAT WE CALL DUETTS.—Every man ought to pay his debts—if he can.

Every man ought to help his neighbor—if he can.

Every young man and woman ought to get married—if they can.

Every Representative in Congress and the Legislature, ought to inform their constituents what they are doing—if they can.

Every man should do his work to please his customers—if he can.

Every man should please his wife—if he can.

Every wife should "submit herself unto the will of her husband"—if she can.

Every lawyer should tell the truth—if he can.

Every preacher of the gospel should be a christian—if he can.

Every man should pay his PRINTER immediately—if he can.

And finally, every reader may add to the above—if he can.

DEAR MR. EDITOR:—I was tormented to death last night with the tooth-ache; the only momentary cessation of pain I experienced was while I composed the following conundrums, and laughed thereat:

What street in London puts you in mind of a tooth which has pained you for a length of time? Long Acre!

When should you apply a sovereign remedy to your tooth? When it is a king!

By what ejaculatory exclamation would you declare that your tooth pained you? It aches, by gum!

Why does an aching tooth impose silence on the sufferer? Because it makes him hold his jaw!

What town in Poland should you go to have it extracted? Pultusk!

Which of your teeth are like a mantua maker's finger and thumb, when she is cutting out dress? Incisors!

When do your teeth usurp the functions of the tongue? When they are chattering!

Why is it, then, not to be wondered at that your teeth cause frequent disturbances in your mouth? Because they often make there more than one row!

But the con. which gave me the greatest delight, and after making whereof, I was so satisfied with myself as to have well nigh fallen asleep, and forgotten my pain, was the following classical conception:

When does an aching tooth put you in the mind of Paris, with his bow and arrow, giving Achilles his mortal wound? When it shoots in the temple! Ha! ha! ha!—London paper.

ANOTHER BATTLE IN FLORIDA.
VICTORY OVER CHECHICHI'S PARTY.—We yesterday received the particulars of a victory achieved by the brave Col. Harney over Chechichi's tribe, and of the death of Chechichi himself. For this information we are indebted to Capt. Burrows, of the schr. Emeline, arrived here from New York via Key West.

It seems that over a year ago a negro came into Cape Florida and informed the commanding officer that Chechichi intended to attack Indian Key. The officer paid no attention to this warning and the negro remained at the settlement. About the middle of December last Col. Harney heard of the circumstance and immediately went to Cape Florida and had a conversation with the negro. The latter told him that he could guide him to the Island where Chechichi and his tribe were secreted, but that he, the Colonel, must have at least 300 men if he expected to be successful.

Col H succeeded in raising 90 men, and finding he could procure no more determined upon an expedition with this number and hazard an attack. They set off in boats, with the negro as a guide, and on reaching Miami River the latter said that the Indians were on an Island close by in the everglades. Col. Harney disposed of his men in such a manner that they could completely surround the Island and attack it on all sides, but owing to some misunderstanding of orders one of the officers made an attack too soon, giving the Indians warning. A severe fight, however, immediately ensued, in which Col. Harney's party were victorious after losing one man and having two or three wounded. On the part of the Indians two were killed and twenty-nine taken prisoners. Among the killed was Chechichi himself. He was shot by a private after a chase which lasted nearly four miles. Finding his pursuer nearing him Chechichi threw away his rifle; but the private soon got within shot when the chief sat down and raised one of his hands—in this position the former fired and lodged a ball in his side. Having one of Col's patent rifles he immediately discharged it a second time, the ball taking effect and causing Chechichi's instant death.

Among the prisoners taken by Col. Harney were seven warriors. These he had brought up and hung in presence of the rest of the prisoners. It is supposed there were about eighty warriors on the island, all of whom would have been killed or taken, had Col. Harney's orders as to the mode of attack been strictly carried out.

The women and children are now at Cape Florida, together with one of Sam Jones' men, who was on a visit to Chechichi. One of the females states that Sam Jones has two white women with him, who belonged to a brig cast away on the Florida coast a year ago. The men belonging to her were all murdered by the Indians.

At the encampment of Chechichi were found a quantity of the effects taken at the time of the massacre at Indian Key, and also some of the rifles taken from Col. Harney's men who were murdered some time since. It may be recollected that Chechichi made a treaty with Col. H., but that he broke it the first opportunity that offered, attacked his men in the night when they were totally unprepared, and murdered the whole party with the exception of Col. Harney and two of his men. This breach of faith probably induced Col. H. to deal summarily with the captive warriors.

An expedition, with Col. Harney as leader, was about to leave Cape Florida at the last dates, to proceed against Sam Jones. The warrior belonging to the party of the latter, together with the negro, were to act as guides and strong hopes were entertained that the expedition would succeed. In addition to the two white women, it was also understood that Jones had a white man named Charles Stewart prisoner, all of whom he compelled to work as slaves. The officer to whom the negro first related the plan of the Indians to attack the Key, is now under arrest.—N. O. Picayune
