Varying Color of the Eye.
Eyes, as we know, are apt to vary considerably in shades of color in the same individual from time to time—a fact that explains why Wordsworth's familiar description of Coleridge as a noticeable man with large gray eyes does not quite agree with Carlyle's impression that his eyes were of a light hazel, nor this again with the writer who found them "light gray, prominent and of liquid brilliancy, as though the orb itself retreated to the innermost recesses of the brain."

The Quinine That Does Not Affect The Head because of its tonic and laxative effect. LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE is better than ordinary Quinine and does not cause nervousness nor ringing in head. Remember the full name and look for the signature of E. W. GROVE. 25c.

Wisdom.
The most manifest sign of wisdom is continual cheerfulness; such a state and condition, like things in the regions above the moon, is always clear and serene.—Montaigne.

INTO A STRANGE COUNTRY

Travelers in Other Lands Must Be Prepared With Open Mind to Absorb Impressions.

In the Woman's Home Companion Laura Spencer Portor continues her series of interpretations of various countries. Concerning a nation's personality, Miss Portor says in part:

"He who would travel in other lands must leave his own behind. He who would judge of a country and a people must leave his own fireside opinions, turn the key on his own prejudices, cross whatever seas of difficulty may lie between his and another's land, and with eager step, whether upon roads good or difficult, whether upon hidden by-paths or highways known to all, he must travel into the very heart of the stranger country. Thus he may come any day upon that country's great cities in the dawn, or chance upon her noble events spread solemn beneath the stars; so shall he come to know and love her simple village life and humble pleasures, her fertile plains or rugged mountains, her attainments and her difficulties. So, living among this people and sharing the intimate life of their homes, they shall come to have for him a particular meaning, shall stand to him for certain things not elsewhere to be found in this exact kind of measure. So shall an entire nation reveal to him a distinct personality, even as an individual with whom we have lived intimately and understandingly becomes to us dear through the unfolding of that individuality and those characteristics so wholly his own, the like of which we shall not look upon elsewhere or again."

IS CREDITED TO CHURCHMAN

Lines That Have Been Highly Praised Declared to Have Been Produced in Time of Peace.

Robert Service, the Canadian writer, who is at present engaged in Red Cross work in France, has sent to the Paris correspondent of an English paper what he describes as "the best war poem I have seen." The verses, which, Mr. Service says, were found by a French priest on the body of an English soldier killed at the Marne, run as follows: They say that war is hell, the great accurst:

The sin impossible to be forgiven; Yet I can look upon it at its worst, And still see blue in heaven. For when I note how nobly natures form Under the war's red rain, I deem it true That he who made the earthquake and the storm Perchance made battles, too.

As a matter of fact, the lines were written in a time of profound peace like most good war poems, and by a man who was an ecclesiastic, not a soldier. Their author was Doctor Alexander, the late lord primate of Ireland, and they were first published in the Times some seven or eight years ago.—Manchester Guardian.

LEFT IN THE DARK.

Green—There goes a woman whom I once considered the light of my life.

Brown—Why, didn't you marry her?

Green—A chap with more money than I could show came along, and the light went out.

QUITE SO.

"Did you see how red those four young women got when you detected them trying to get in on a bogus pass?"

"Yes; it was a regular case of four flushing."

THE LIMIT.

"Is that orator speaking for peace at any price?"

"Oh, no; he's fixed substantial minimum rates."

THE UNIVERSAL THEORY.

"Why do you suppose Jinks is so continually looking at his watch?"

"I have a suspicion. There may be a woman in the case."

SOME HOPE LEFT.

"Is your father's illness serious?"

"I think not. He's been in bed for three days now and so far the doctor hasn't suggested an operation."

HUMAN UNANIMITY.

"Men are alike in all times. I dare say when Adam first met Eve he thought she was good enough to eat." "Well, wasn't she a spare rib?"

SHOULD BE WELL COOKED

Writer Points Out the Danger of Eating Pork That is Underdone in the Slightest Degree.

Trichinae are minute parasitic worms which occur in rats, dogs, cats, hogs, and cause a serious and sometimes fatal disease, trichinosis, in man. Rats found around slaughter houses are frequently infested, and dogs or hogs contract the parasites from eating the rats. The author found a cat affected that was kept at a slaughter house to catch the mice.

The practical aspect of this question is the presence of these parasites in pork and the danger to man. It is estimated by some authorities that about 1 per cent of all hogs in this country harbor trichinae.

Man becomes infested by eating pork which has not been thoroughly cooked or cured. The mortality in man ranges from 10 to 40 per cent. These parasites are very minute, and practical meat inspection does not guarantee that the meat is free from them. Since the parasites are readily killed by heat, safety lies solely in eating no pork that has not been thoroughly cooked.—H. S. Eakins, Colorado Agricultural college, Fort Collins, Colo.

EVERYTHING LOVELY

He—Married?
She—Oh, yes.
He—And happy, I hope?
She—Perfectly. Haven't seen him in five years.

FEARING THE WORST.

"Dubwaite is greatly distressed about his little son."

"What's happened to the boy?"

"Nothing lately. You see, he was born with a dimple in his chin that gets more pronounced every day; in addition to that, he is an uncommonly handsome little chap."

"I don't see why Dubwaite should worry about that."

"He's afraid the boy will grow up and be a moving picture idol with his photograph in every girl's bedroom."

IN THE HOUR OF DANGER.

She—Do you believe that women are more cool than men in dangerous situations?

He—Sure thing. I have seen it demonstrated more than once.

She—Indeed! Under what circumstances?

He—When they were getting married.

STUDIES IN ARCHEOLOGY.

"What did you find in that supposed Indian mound?"

"Some rare specimens of pottery."

"Any inscriptions? The inscription often fixes the date."

"One bore the inscription 'Made in Kalamazoo.'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE SPECIFICATION.

"Here's a spectacular writer says the flames ran along at a fast rate. What kind of a path did they pursue?"

"I guess it was a cinder path."

PROTECTIVE THEORY.

"Why did Jiggs marry a snake charmer?"

"He thought then he could persuade himself all he saw were real ones."

NEVER

"But all this preparedness will bring on war."

"Will it? Does it ever rain when you go out with an umbrella?"

A ROAST FOR REGGIE.

Reggie Callow—I was born on the tery day Grant died.

Miss Keen—Yes? Misfortunes never come singly.
