

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. FEATHERSTON moved that the bill to establish certain post routes...

The SPEAKER said if no objection were made he would lay the bill before the House.

Objection being made, Mr. FEATHERSTON moved a suspension of the rules for the purpose of taking up the bill.

The question being taken there appeared, yeas 87, nays 63. Two-thirds not voting in the affirmative, the rules were not suspended.

Mr. EMBREE moved a suspension of the rules to enable him to introduce a bill to establish certain post routes.

[This bill is similar to the post route bill now lying on the Speaker's table, except that it contains a proviso declaring that no opinion is expressed as to the boundary of any State or Territory.]

The motion to suspend the rules was decided as follows: Yeas 81, nays 77. Two-thirds not voting in the affirmative, the rules were not suspended.

Mr. THOMPSON, of Missouri, rose to a privileged question, and moved to take up the motion made by him some days since to reconsider the vote which was passed the bill concerning the administration of official oaths.

Mr. T. desired to offer an amendment to the bill, which he read and explained.

Mr. J. R. INGERSOLL opposed the amendment proposed to be offered by Mr. THOMPSON to the bill as not congruous, and, after urging the immediate passage of the bill in a few brief explanatory remarks, moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table; which was agreed to.

CIVIL AND DIPLOMATIC APPROPRIATION BILL.

The House then, on motion of Mr. YINTON, resolved itself into Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union. (Mr. ROOR in the chair.) and proceeded to the consideration of the bill making appropriations for the civil and diplomatic expenses of Government for the year ending June 30, 1849.

Mr. FEATHERSTON discussed the powers of the General and territorial Government over the subject of slavery in the Territories through the hour allotted to him, with some brief remarks interspersed respecting the Presidential candidates.

The full proceedings of the Whig Convention have come to hand and in vain do we search for any declaration of principles made by that body. So far as the action of the members of that body in its organized capacity is concerned, they did not dare avow a single political sentiment except hostility to democracy and the desire to obtain the first two offices in the gift of the people. But there is a declaration made by the Louisiana delegation with regard to Gen. Taylor's action in case he should be elected which is a little ominous of what we are to expect from this no-party candidate. Here it is from the Courier of Friday: "The written statement of the Louisiana delegation went on to say, that Gen. Taylor was impressed with the necessity of changing the policy which had been pursued by the Government, and of stopping the country in its downward career."

The whole action of the government is to be changed if Gen. Taylor is elected. We are to have a revival of all the issues so long and often fought over, and settled in a lapse of forever, and the country is to be arrested in what Gen. Taylor is pleased to call his downward tendency—a sentiment which if it had been uttered by the London times or any other foreign journal would have excited the indignation of the whole American press from Maine to Texas. Yet it is incorporated into the proceedings of the Whig National Convention as the opinion of one who has been fighting the battles of this decaying republic and helping her in this downward tendency. Those who are in favor of keeping up a party warfare, and harassing the country for years to come with disputes about the propriety, efficiency, justice, or constitutionality of the various measures in issue between the two parties will of course vote for Taylor, who is determined to elect "to change the policy which has been pursued by the Government, and of stopping the country in its downward career."

MORE OF MILLARD FILMORE

In 1837 when the abolition excitement was at its height in Congress, and the position of the major part of abolition patriots was striking the heads of our Union, Mr. Patton, of Virginia, introduced the following resolution in the House as a compromise between the ultra abolitionists and those who conscientiously rejected the full recognition of the right of petition, on the one hand, and the South, on the other:

RESOLVED, That all memorials, petitions and papers, touching the abolition of slavery, or the buying, selling or transfer of slaves in any State, territory or district of the United States, shall be laid on the table, without reading or reference, and that no further action shall be had thereon.

This resolution it will be very fully recognized the right of petition, and so could not be objected to by those whose only object was to amend on this right. Its object was to kill off the abolition agitation among and those only could vote against it who wanted this agitation for his own sake.

A few days afterwards an attempt was made to rescind the above resolution, when in favor of rescinding there were 75, against it 23—Mr. Filmore again voting for the abolition agitation, and declaring by his vote that abolition petitions were asking what was proper for Congress to consider!

And the South is asked to put such a man as this into the office of Vice President—a man who recognizes the right of Congress to legislate for the abolition of Slavery, and who has uniformly voted against her in every abolition question Congress while he was a member.

South Journal, A certain delegate in the Whig National Convention said on his party could elect either Gen. Taylor or his house Old Whig to the Presidency, and he didn't seem to care a damn which was elected, turn for Old Rough and Ready, his house Whitey and the Old Whig.

Mrs. Young & Co., the State Gazette says, are about starting a new political paper to be called the "Hair Splitter" for the purpose of enlightening the blighted inhabitants of North Alabama in regard to what "difference there may be 'twixt twocleded and twocleded."
