P T Stephens, for the able, impartial and efficient manner in which he has served us as president of the Board for the last four years, and for the uniform courtesies he has shown each and every one in the discharge of his duties, at the same time ever watchful of the county's interests in all business before us, and that we take pleasure in commending him as a most capable, honest and faithful public servant and request that this resolution be spread upon the minutes of the Board.

On motion it was ordered that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the Board and that the county papers be requested to publish the same, with the response of P. T. Stephens, president of the Board.

PRESIDENT STEPHENS

Speaks a Few Words of Commendation to the Retiring Board.

GENTLEMEN—Four years ago we were elected by the people of our respective districts and were commissioned to look after and protect the financial, as well as to guard the common interest of the whole people. I want to say that I feel that we have complied and faithfully discharged all our official duties as best we could. I am proud to say that the records and financial condition today are in a healthy state, and perhaps in better shape than at the beginning of our term. Doubtless we have made some mistakes, though I feel that we have been honest in our decisions and conscientious in the discharge of our every duty. It is indeed very gratifying to my feelings at this our last meeting, which terminates and brings to a close our term of office, that we leave our record free from any stain.

GENTLEMEN—Our association for the past four years has been very pleasant to me. I must say that I regret very much to separate from you and to say that I feel that this is the last time we will ever meet around this table to transact business for the general public. I desire to say to each member of this Board, that my feelings toward you are of a kindly nature, and if at any time during our term, by any act or word spoken by me, ruffled your feelings, I am sorry for it, as I did not so intend.

And now, gentlemen, I must say something about our able and most worthy attorneys, Messrs. Dood & Armistead, who have been associated with us so long. They have been our guides through storm and sunshine, and have at all times steered our old ship safely to shore. They have responded promptly to our every call. As counselors they are second to none; as gentlemen they are of the first grade.

For the kind and courteous treatment which this Board has ever received at their hands, I return to them my heartfelt thanks. To the Sheriff and other officers who have been in attendance with us, for the faithful discharge of their duty and favors extended to us, I also return thanks.

And now, gentlemen, in conclusion I want to say for the faithful discharge of your duty, and for the kind and respectful attention which you have ever given me as chairman of this Board, allow me to return to each of you my most sincere and warmest heartfelt thanks; and now, gentlemen, I bid you goodbye, and may the Lord bless you.

Yours very truly,
P. T. STEPHENS.

Confederate Relics.

The Atlanta Constitution says: Within a short time the old home of Jefferson Davis, in Richmond, Va., will be thrown open to the public as a Confederate museum. The "White House of the Confederacy," as it has been called, has been the property of the city for many years and has recently been used as a school house. A room in the house will be assigned to each of the States that seceded for a collection of relics, and in addition there will be a large room for a general museum and one for a library. The first of the state collections—that of Georgia—has been received. It was presented to the committee by Mr. de Reune on the eighty-sixth birth day of President Davis, June 1894. Among the relics are the cape, gauntlets and sword of General Lee; the plumes from Gen. Stuart's hat; the spy-glasses used by Gen. Beauregard at the battle of Manassas, and the collections from the various soldiers' homes established throughout the South, including the Lee Camp Soldier's Home collection, which contains, in addition to many rare and interesting relics, the skin of Stonewall Jackson's charger. There are also a number of manuscripts and private papers.

Julius Didn't Know Much.

Julius Caesar was considered a great man, and so he was. But he had his limitations, and some unknown writer gives a few illustrations. He never rode on a bus in his life; he never spoke into a telephone; he never sent a telegram; he never entered a railway train; he never read a newspaper; he never viewed his troops through a field glass; never read an advertisement; he never used patent medicine; he never cornered the wheat market; he never crossed the Atlantic; he never was in a machine shop; he never went to a roller skating rink; he never controlled a manufacturing company; he never dictated a letter to a typewriter girl; he never invested in railway stock; he never played a game of billiards; he never saw an electric light; he never listened to a phonograph; he never posted a letter; he never had his photograph taken.—Scientific American.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

MARRIED.

In Star City, Nov. 6, 1895. Mr. H. D. Palmer and Miss Mamie Atkinson, at the Baptist church, Rev. D. E. Gambell officiating.

At an early hour the citizens of the town and vicinity began to gather and long before the arrival of the bridal party the church was filled to overflowing. At 8 o'clock the appearance of the bridal party was announced by the wedding march rendered by Mrs. T. B. Atkinson, of Pine Bluff. First came the flower girls, Misses Ethel and Jewel Atkinson, who were dressed in white swiss, followed on the left by the ushers, Messrs. A. J. Brown, C. P. Atkinson, H. L. Hunter and H. L. Atkinson, and on the right by the maids, Misses Florence Miller, Ida Hunter, Lillian Atkinson and F. Owen Hogg. Upon reaching the altar the flower girls opened the gates which were beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens, behind which stood the officiating minister, the attendants taking their places on the right and left of the altar, the contracting parties advanced to their position immediately in front of the altar where, by an impressive ceremony, the happy pair were made husband and wife.

The bride was arrayed in an elegant white silk, trimmed in chiton and ribbon. In reverse order the bridal party marched down the aisle to the strains of "sweet vocal music" by Miss Wilhelmina Atkinson, accompanied by the organ. The bridal party entered carriages and were driven to the home of the bride's parents, accompanied by numerous friends, where a reception was tendered them. After congratulations the guests were invited into the beautifully decorated dining hall where an elegant repast was served.

The next day at high noon, Mr. H. D. Avery, a cousin of the groom, gave them a dining, immediately after which the couple with several friends left for Varner, their future home.

The bride is the much-loved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Atkinson, and is one of Star City's most accomplished young ladies.

The groom is the very efficient deputy clerk of Lincoln county, formerly a resident of Kosciusko, Miss.—Pine Bluff (Ark.) Commercial.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

W. N. Haldeman, President of the great Louisville Courier-Journal Company, says: "Dr. Wintersmith's Chill Tonic cured two cases of chills in my family after many other remedies had failed."

Mr. R. K. Carr, the leading druggist of Clarksville, Miss., says: "I have a good sale for Dr. Wintersmith's Chill Tonic here, and the leading physicians of the town prescribe it largely."

"My family of six children can not live without it," says Mr. Geo. W. Kirby, Forrest City.

Is Sold by all Druggists.

Do you want a fine Guitar free? If so, read Crowder & Edmunds' offer elsewhere.

The Shakers have made a discovery which is destined to accomplish much good. Realizing that three-fourths of all our sufferings arise from stomach troubles, that the country is literally filled with people who cannot eat and digest food, without subsequently suffering pain and distress, and that many are starving, wasting to mere skeletons because their food does them no good, they have devoted much study and thought to the subject, and the result is this discovery, of their Digestive Cordial.

A little book can be obtained from your druggist that will point out the way of relief at once. An investigation will cost nothing and will result in much good.

Children all hate to take Castor Oil, but not Laxol, which is palatable.
