To Capitalists... Some weeks ago, says the Memphis Appeal, we tried to show what large profits there were upon capital invested in the fabrication of cotton goods...

The process of manufacturing new cotton into the coarsest, commonest fabric with three-eighths the labor employed in growing the raw material...

Our manufacturers would have a material climatic advantage, which experienced men rate at the value of a half cent the yard... That is the saving here of artificial means to raise the temperature of the atmosphere...

At the time Gov. Patton wrote, the selling price of middlings, in New York was 44 to 46 cents per pound, and when that quality could have been purchased at 24 to 26 cents in the interior of Alabama...

Another advantage to the Southern manufacturer should not be omitted or lost sight of, that designed for the benefit of New England by our national statistics...

Very respectfully, J. HOLT, Judge-advocate-general.
