GREAT FALLS.

GREAT HEAVYWEIGHT BATTLE

The Most Exciting Pugilistic Event That has Ever Occurred on the Pacific Coast.

BOTH MEN IN THE PINK OF CONDITION.

One of the Hardest Fought Battles in the Annals of the Prize Ring.

After Fighting Four Hours the Referee Declared the Men Could Fight No Longer and Declared it No Contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 21.—No pugilistic event ever occurred on the Pacific coast that created more interest or excitement than the great heavy-weight battle between Jim Corbett of San Francisco and Peter Jackson of Australia, which was fought at the gymnasium of the California Athletic club tonight. The points of the two fighters had been matters of speculation for weeks and ever since the match was made and the men commenced their training the contest had been the one topic among the sporting public. The purse was a large one, $10,000, $1,500 of which went to the loser. The wonderful degree of interest in the match was due not only to the merits and prominence of the two principals, but also to the fact that the contest would open the way to settling the question of the championship of the world, for it was generally understood the winner would eventually meet Frank Slavin or any other man that might come forward for championship honors.

The condition of the men was all that could be desired. They had trained hard and carefully and it was the opinion that neither man had ever before been in better form. Jackson was heavier, but in every other respect it was generally admitted that one man possessed little or no advantage over the other. Both were recognized as game fighters possessing wonderful ability and wonderful quickness. Neither belonged to the "slugger" type of pugilists. The colored man's ring experience was far greater than Corbett's, and it was probably this fact that as much as any other that made Jackson the favorite in betting during the week before the fight at odds ranging from 6 to 10 to 8 to 10. Some comment was elicited by the fact that Jackson sprained his ankle some weeks ago and it was still slightly swollen tonight, but as it had caused him no inconvenience at all during his training there was no real fear expressed that it would give him any trouble during the fight. A large amount of money was wagered on the contest the past two days. The pool rooms and other sporting resorts were crowded and there seemed no end of either Jackson or Corbett money. The contestants were required to be in the club rooms at 8 o'clock, though the fight was set for an hour later. The California club last night appointed Hiram Cook referee. Jackson was seconded by Sam Fitzpatrick and Billy Smith. Corbett's seconds were John Donaldson, Billy Delaney and Harry Corbett. The appearance of the California Athletic club rooms was the same as on other occasions when similar contests have occurred there. The flooring within the ring was covered with padding, over which a heavy, dark-colored felt was stretched. A new feature of this contest was the 10 seconds clock, which was called into use whenever a knockdown occurred. Soon after 6 o'clock the crowd commenced to gather. It was some minutes after 9 o'clock when Jackson and Corbett with their seconds entered the ring. Both principals were received with cheering. During the few minutes that followed while the gloves of the men were being adjusted every eye in the building was turned on the men and there was a general expression of commendation at the excellent form they presented. The weights as near as could be obtained were Jackson 197, Corbett 185, though it was claimed by some that the difference was even greater than that. After the gloves were adjusted the men advanced and shook hands. Time was called for the first round at 9:30.

First round—Few seconds were spent in preliminary sparring. Jackson led lightly and a clinch followed. The men broke away slowly, Jackson led with right and missed, another clinch followed and Corbett seemed loth to break away. Corbett touched Jackson lightly on the jaw and as the round closed he received a laceration in the ribs.

Second Round—Corbett led and in the clinch which followed he forced Jackson against the ropes. When they came to the center Jackson led twice, but failed to reach his man very hard. Corbett made a vicious half-arm swing but Jackson jumped away. Corbett then got one on Jackson's stomach and a moment later avoided a body blow by dodging.

Third Round—Jackson attempted to fight at close range but Corbett clinched on their feet; considerable feinting followed. Corbett led for Jackson's wind but missed. Jackson followed Corbett around the ring, and the latter laughed as the Australian tried to hit him and failed.

Fourth Round—The men walked around each other cautiously for a full minute. Every time Corbett led he followed it with a clinch. He landed hard on Jackson's side three or four times and received nothing in return. The men were fighting at very close quarters.

Fifth Round—Jackson caught Corbett lightly on the ribs and then played carefully for openings. Corbett forced him into his corner, but in the rally which followed Jackson had the better of it. Both men still smiling, Corbett led hard for Jackson's stomach, but missed.

Sixth Round—Jackson caught his man lightly on the jaw when the round opened, but nothing was done for the next minute. Jackson was forcing, but Corbett's dodging was very clever. He caught a good one in his side and then landed hard on Jackson's jaw with his right.

Seventh Round—Both men were extremely careful. Corbett straightened away from several of Jackson's straight arm leads. Jackson was on the aggressive, but there was no opening offered that he could take advantage of.

Eighth Round—The round opened like the previous ones, with Jackson doing the leading. Neither man seemed at all distressed. Corbett forced Jackson to the ropes but could do nothing. He soon reached Jackson hard on the ear, however, and the round closed.

Ninth Round—Corbett again reached Jackson's side, but not hard. Jackson then landed on the other's chin and followed it up with a hard rap on Corbett's wind. Jim gave him a hard one of the same kind as the round closed.

Tenth Round—Jackson reached Corbett's neck twice hard. Corbett drove for the other's wind, but missed, as he held himself too far back when he led.

Eleventh Round—Corbett continued to fight for Jackson's stomach, but the latter warded him off. A short rally followed in one of the corners but no damage was done. Jackson cleverly avoided several hard ones from Corbett.

Twelfth Round—Corbett again landed twice on Jackson's stomach and jumped away from a swift drive at his jaw. The battle up to this time had been a decidedly scientific one and looked as if it would continue so for some time. If there was a difference between the men Jackson was a little the fresher.

Fourteenth Round—Both feinted swiftly and freely but neither made any effort to lead for some time, then Corbett jabbed Jackson on the chin. The latter next led for the head but Corbett ducked.

Fifteenth Round—Neither showed any disposition to force matters as they came together for this round. Little or nothing was done during the whole round.

DEATH-DEALING CYCLONE.

Houses Blown to Pieces and Men, Women, and Children Killed.

MEXICO, Mo., May 21.—The cyclone which passed over the northern portion of Adrian county yesterday afternoon killed three persons and seriously injured a score of others, of whom four will die. The track of the storm was about 100 yards wide and passed over twelve houses of which only a portion of one was left standing. The residences of Alexander Carter, William Powell, Dilard brothers, Halsen Hunkle, George Crane, William Yoetmire, T. B. Hall, Valentine Erdell, S. S. Norris, A. Ahlfeldt, J. M. Menefee, and John Doerger were blown down and literally torn to pieces.

Halsen Hunkle received injuries from which he died within an hour. His sons Otto and Henry were severely hurt. Yoetmire, wife, and child and Clarence Harvey, who was visiting there, were badly cut and bruised. At S. S. Norris' the scene beggars description. The house was blown to pieces and seven members of the family who were in the house all injured. Three of them, Miss Gertrude Fletcher, Mrs. Seal, mother-in-law, and a little girl can not live. Close at hand was the house of John Doerger, which was demolished. His six-year-old daughter was killed and the balance of the family, five in number, were injured. All of Doerger's stock was killed. Three men, Mason Korman, Thomas and Homer Rogers, seeing the storm, hid out on the ground and clasped hands. Homer, who was in the middle, was killed, while the other two were uninjured.

In the western part of the county the worst damage was done at the farm of J. P. Harrison. His son was blown half a mile and lodged in a tree. Both legs were broken. A fine stallion was blown 500 yards and killed. All the members of the family were injured. Hundreds of cattle, hogs and sheep were killed.

New Steamship Line.
CHICAGO, May 21.—J. D. Grant Fairfax, representing an English syndicate with $500,000 capital, is in the city arranging preliminaries with a view to putting on a line of steamers to ply between Chicago and European ports. It is the intention to build ten steel steamships, which, at first, will run between Chicago and the English coast, probably to a port on the Bristol channel and ultimately to extend the route so as to include Hamburg and Bremen. The syndicate is to be controlled by the Great Western railway of England and Cardiff Dock Trust. The line will be devoted exclusively to freight business, and it is expected to be put in operation next year.

Found Guilty.
ST. PAUL, May 21.—A Pioneer Press special from Fergus Falls says: After eighteen hours' deliberation the jury found Albert Goheen guilty of murdering the first degree. He was charged with the murder of Rosa Bruy, whose frozen body with a bullet hole in her head was found in a snow drift.
