

CHINESE ARRESTED IS IDENTIFIED AS RUNAWAY AT MURDER

Woman Says She Recognized Chin Sing Clearly; Tong Theory Established.

Special to The Tribune
Butte, Oct. 20.—Another piece of evidence in connection with the mysterious murder of Chong Sing, in front of his place of business at 222 South Wyoming street last Thursday night, was secured when a woman, who claims to have heard the shooting and who ran to her front door, appeared at the police station and identified Chin Sing as the man she had seen running away from the scene of the shooting. Chin was found under a doortop a few doors from the woman's home in the Cabbage Patch.

The woman, whose name is withheld by the police, declared she had known Chin for several weeks and was positive of his identity. When the young Chinese, who appears not more than 25 years of age, was seen by the woman at the police station she said: "That is the right man. I saw his face clearly when he ran past me."

According to special investigators working on the case, Chong was killed because he refused to become a member of one tong and because he was organizing a local branch of the Beng Kong tong, said to be the most powerful Chinese tong in the world.

On the night of the murder several of Chong's kinsmen declared him to be the victim of a tong war, brought on by the dead man's opposition to the ruling order. One of Chong's relatives declared organizers of the Hop Sing faction had approached Chong to secure his membership. Chong not only refused, but set about organizing the Beng Kong tong.

Barnjum of Helena, chief draftsman of the state commission.

GALLON OF WHISKY THREATENS WIDOW'S AND ORPHANS' HOME

Plead Guilty of Bootlegging to Get Off Easy; Facing Revenue Seizure Now.

Special to The Tribune
Butte, Oct. 20.—Whisky at $2,800 a gallon sounds unbelievably high, but that is the rate that one Butte citizen is called on to pay for four quarts of the beverage. The liquor is not of a fine quality. It was not "bottled in bond," nor was it imported. It was produced in this country and is pronounced to be an ordinary quality of moonshine. The citizen who is paying this record price is not possessed of unlimited means, has no reputation as a connoisseur, and probably doesn't drink. The person who will pay this fabulous price is a woman, and a widow at that, with four small children and no means. Her name is Mrs. Murray. The collector, who is after the price, is the United States department of internal revenue.

Did it for Children
A few weeks ago Mrs. Murray was arrested on a charge of liquor violation. There were a number of counts against her, but on account of her lack of means and her dependent children, the county authorities agreed to accept her plea of guilty to one count in the information, that of having liquor illegally in her possession, and to dismiss the others.

The attorney who appeared for her told the court that he had waived his fee on account of his client's poverty. The judge imposed a fine for a small amount, which was paid and the penitent widow left the courtroom, saddened but glad that it had been no worse.

Revenue Penalties
But the plea of guilty and the fine did not end matters. The federal government was still to be reckoned with. The internal revenue collectors have notified Mrs. Murray that there is a little matter of $2,800 to be settled, taxes and penalties for her gallon of moonshine whisky, to the possession of which she had pleaded guilty. She is possessed of a little home, valued at $1,400, on which $900 is still due. The internal revenue men have notified her, she is quoted as stating, that the property would be liened against.

She sought the advice of the officials at the courthouse, who were unable to help her. "As I see it," said one official, "the only thing she can do to save her place is to petition the president. If that is not effective the home will have to go."
