CRITICAL LABOR SITUATION AT BUTTE BRINGS FEDERAL TROOPS

Radical Labor Element in Butte Mine Strikes Have Started a Revolution Which Culminated Wednesday Afternoon in the Shooting of 14 Men. Butte Bulletin is Scene of Killing.

The Butte labor strike situation which has rapidly been growing worse for the last few months culminated Wednesday in a pitched battle between police and men believed to be I. W. W. pickets. As a result of the shooting which occurred on Anaconda road near the entrance to the Never-sweat mine about 4:30 in the afternoon fourteen men and one policeman are seriously injured, one of whom is expected to die. After the trouble the sheriff's office immediately swore in 200 additional deputies. Since the first outbreak there have been numerous clashes between the I. W. W. pickets and miners employed in the local mines. Several hundred pickets employed by the strikers have been swarming about the entrances to the mines in an effort to turn back miners and other laborers.

Fearing a flooding of the mines, the operating companies have patrolled all avenues to the mines in an endeavor to get their engineers and pumpmen into the mines to prevent any attempts at flooding on the part of the strikers. Tragedy at Butte Bulletin. Hugh B. Haran, 19 years old, was shot and instantly killed yesterday at the office of the Butte Daily Bulletin by Joe Papst. Haran and Papst were guards who, with other armed men guarded the newspaper in expectation of an attack following the mass meeting of the I. W. W. and miners on the night before in the building in which the Bulletin is printed. Mystery surrounds the shooting but the theory is that Haran was mistaken for an outsider and shot by Papst by mistake.

Troops on Way. A detachment of the Twenty-first infantry left Fort George Wright, near Spokane, early yesterday morning for Butte, following receipt of orders from the western department headquarters. The troops under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Americus Mitchell, took with them full equipment, with heavy marching packs. The men are prepared for an indefinite stay. The number of men in the detachment has not been given out. Mines Open. Announcement has been made that the mines will open this morning with adequate protection for the workers. The early arrival of the troops has had a quieting effect.

"The Best Examination I Ever Had"

Were the words of a lady of this city who has worn glasses for many years. She had several fittings in different places. She came to us because her glasses were not comfortable. If you have a similar experience visit our optical room and let us explain why our method of eye examination is superior to the old-time method. If you are beginning to feel the effects of eye strain, come here first and avoid the discomfort of poorly fitted lenses and the waste of money for glasses you cannot wear.

AGRICULTURAL OUTLOOK SEEMS VERY FAVORABLE

Crop Prospects in Montana for Coming Season Look Good—Farm Labor Situation Unsatisfactory. A favorable outlook for winter wheat, rye in good condition, an unsatisfactory farm labor situation, and a large reduction in the number of breeding sows are shown in the April crop report for Montana issued by F. Beier, Montana field agent for the United States bureau of crop estimates. Winter wheat.—The winter wheat outlook for Montana shows an improvement over last fall and the lack of moisture at seeding time has been followed by sufficient moisture to produce a condition 83 per cent of normal compared with 91 per cent one year ago and a ten year average of 93 per cent. The condition on December 1, 1919, was 80 per cent compared with a ten year average of 94 per cent. A few reports of limited areas that have suffered from winter killing and other damage in the central and north central parts of the state have been received. The condition at this time forecasts a yield of 7,760,000 bushels. The acreage sown last fall is estimated at 425,000 acres compared with 605,000 acres in the fall of 1918. Considering the condition at seeding time last fall it can safely be stated that winter wheat has survived the winter in a condition far beyond expectations and should Montana be favored with good moisture conditions this season the crop will no doubt be good. The winter wheat outlook for the United States is less encouraging with a condition of 75.6 per cent compared with 99.8 per cent one year ago and a ten year average of 84.1 per cent. The forecasted yield for the United States is 483,617 bushels, compared with an estimated production 731,636,000 bushels in 1919, and 565,000 bushels in 1918. The acreage sown in the fall of 1919 was 38,770,000 acres compared with 50,489,000 in the fall of 1918. Rye.—The condition of rye is estimated at 89 per cent of normal compared with 92 per cent one year ago and a ten year average of 95 per cent. The forecasted production of rye is 1,041,000 bushels based on an estimated planted acreage of 65,000 acres. Farm labor.—Reports from all counties in the state show that the farm labor situation is unsatisfactory. The supply of farm labor is estimated to be 85 per cent of last year and 74 per cent of normal. The demand for farm labor is estimated to be 90 per cent of last year and 87 per cent of normal. With the shortage of farm labor and the high wages, there seems to have developed a feeling among the farmers that they can afford to plant only such acreage as can be handled by themselves and with the assistance of their neighbors. The whole outlook tends toward conservative farming since the farmer feels that the present condition will not result in a reasonable profit after taking into consideration the expense of operating his farm and the work of himself and family. Breeding sows.—The number of breeding sows on the farms in Montana show a serious reduction and is estimated at 70 per cent of the number on hand one year ago and but 64 per cent of the usual number. This reduction seems to be the result of high feed and a tendency to sell breeding sows when prices are high. The number of breeding sows in the United States is estimated to be 90.1 per cent of the number held one year ago. How Diphtheria Is Contracted. One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. If your child has a cold when diph-

ICE AND WATER DO $40,000 DAMAGE TO CUTBANK PROPERTY

A twelve-foot wall of ice and water which swept down Cut Bank river on Wednesday morning of last week tore out the county bridge which connects that city with the Blackfeet reservation, demolished the buildings of the municipal pumping station, partially destroyed a new dam constructed last summer to supply power for the lighting plant and did a total damage of about $40,000. The board of county commissioners have already made arrangements for the erection of a temporary bridge. This is the first time since 1903 that difficulties have been experienced with high water in the vicinity of Cut Bank. The ice jam occurred in a deep gorge above the city. HEALTH LECTURE TO HIGH SCHOOL BOYS YESTERDAY. Dr. R. C. Dillavon of Billings spoke to all the boys of the Glasgow high school Wednesday morning at the Orpheum theatre, on the subject of "Keeping Fit." The lectures are being given by Dr. Dillavon under the supervision of the Montana state board of health co-operating with the United States public health service. Dr. Dillavon laid down the following rules for keeping fit for war and Exercise wisely, eat wholesome food, get all the fresh air possible, take sufficient rest and keep clean. The address was interesting and instructive and the boys who attended were highly pleased. BASEBALL METHOD PROVES POPULAR SPELLING MATCH. Schools in the east have adopted a novel and effective system of teaching spelling, called the "baseball method." The school room serves as the "diamond," the corners of the room as the bases, the pupils as players and the teacher the umpire and pitcher. The class is divided into two sides and each side takes a turn "at bat." There are nine innings to a game, each side having three "outs" to an inning. The teacher, "on the mound," pronounces three words to the "batter." If any one of three words is misspelled the batter is out and is sent back to the "bench." If all three words are spelled correctly the batter scores a hit and takes first base. He is advanced a base each time another batter on his side spells the three words pronounced by the teacher correctly and the "runs" scored count for that side. The teachers say the method is very effective and is the best they know of.
