Spray for Peace, Bigger Gains

By DR. HOWARD WELCH

A SIMPLE SPRAYING program can result in systematic destruction of the flies that keep cattle nervous and miserable all summer. There are three or four of these flies, with different names and habits, but they all attack cattle and can all be killed in the same way, so we will just call them flies and treat them all alike.

These are the flies that settle in swarms on the shoulders and necks of cattle, leaving the cattle only at night, when they are replaced by an equally dense cloud of mosquitoes. These are the flies that drive the cows into the timber, into the willow brush and ponds and creeks in an attempt to get some relief from the stinging pests.

From the middle of June, or whenever summer comes (maybe the middle of July), the grazing cow is the boarding house for swarms of parasites that bother, keep her skin irritated and keep her disposition so irritated that she gives discontented milk, and not much of that. Or, if she is a beef cow, she doesn't put on the big fat she is supposed to.

One Good Spray

All this can be remedied, and with very little expense and labor. One good spraying with DDT will kill every fly that lights on this cow for the next three weeks. Suppose there are 1,000 flies that start to feed on
