

MONTANA Farmer-Stockman

HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF MONTANA, 1951
 August 1951
 32 pages
 follow—56 pages
 (Annual Production Section)
 HELENA

THE PINES Youth Camp

LEFT AND RIGHT BELOW: W. H. Bunning and his wife Mary Francis, camp handicraft experts from Colorado Springs, were on hand to conduct classes in leather work and silver-smithing.

LEFT: Mess hall and flagpole and volley ball court in foreground looking away from the lake.

SUMMER TIME is camp time for boys and girls in almost all of the organized youth groups such as 4-H, FFA, Scouts, church groups and others. And the pictures on this page are of one of the best youth camps in the state, The Pines, on the shore of Fort Peck lake. The camp in session at the time of this visit was the 4-H Builders of eastern Montana, but this was just one of the groups in the full summer schedule.

Facilities include mess hall, assembly hall and administrations buildings as well as completely modern toilet and shower buildings. The camp is under the direction of the Montana Extension service and a caretaker and cook are on hand to take care of the camp through the summer months.

Development of the youth camp has been due largely to work by the corps of army engineers and local civic groups. A public campground with shelter house, cooking facilities and toilets is near the youth camp. The Pines camp site is located just 30 miles from Fort Peck.

LEFT BELOW: Janice Fenske, assistant state 4-H club leader, seen at left at the dishwashing detail, was camp director. Jean Gunderson, right, was music supervisor.

LEFT: Chow line formation at the camp sees probably the fastest action of the day.

BELOW: Volley ball was one of the best outdoor sports at the camp as seen in picture above. Fort Peck lake is visible in background.

This Is Just the First Section of the special annual Montana-Wyoming beef production issue. The big 56-page section devoted entirely to the beef cattle industry will go into the mails Aug. 6. Watch for your copy.

COVERS MONTANA AND NORTHERN WYOMING