Where we work on a flat rate furnished by the Ford Motor Company, which makes impossible an overcharge which might otherwise result, where a slow mechanic was on the job. Our mechanic is the best obtainable, and the price is standard.

Try Us on Battery Charging

Our machine can charge sixteen batteries at once and when we say charge—that's what we mean! We don't fill them up with acid to raise the voltage and make you pay extra for it. We charge them right at $1.00 per battery.

ANOTHER ONE OF CHARLES RAY'S COUNTRY BOY FILMS

The country boy idol of the screen meets the country girl idol of song! Charles Ray's many fans will be unusually pleased to see the beloved hick picturize the sweetest love-story ever sung, "Sweet Adeline." This is Ray's latest achievement for the Chadwick Pictures Corporation and will be featured at the Pythian Theatre, Friday and Saturday of this week.

The film version of "Sweet Adeline" centers on the Wilson family, whose youngest son is Ben, a tenor in the village quartette, and who clings to his dreams that some day he will startle the world with his singing. In the meantime he is doomed to an unnoticeable place in the household, and not even permitted to do outside work. It remains for Ben to attend to farm chores and kitchen duties.

As Ben Wilson, Charles Ray is cast in the type of role that has earned him enviable fame, the role of the awkward misunderstood hick. He is a country boy who lives in his visions rather than his environment until he finally unifies the two. His comedy and his pathos, injected into the film, is said to produce one of the finest human-interest pictures of his career.

A HUNDRED PER CENT AMERICAN

Sergeant Alvin C. York is acclaimed America's greatest world war hero. His name is known from one end of the country to the other and, being a white man, no word of praise has been withheld in his behalf. He well deserves all that he gets.

But the other day, down in Oklahoma, there went to his happy hunting grounds an Indian by the name of Tommy Blind Woman, who during his obscure life since the ending of great war until his equally obscure death, told with pride that he was the first red man to cross the Rhine.

This Indian boy, only 27 years old when he served his country so bravely, was a valuable scout to the Americans, and due to his primitive instincts was able to make his way through the enemy unnoticed. He served in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and Vesle sectors until the signing of the armistice. Because of his ability and bravery, his valor action and stoicism under fire, he received the greatest honor the nation can bestow, a congressional medal.

His most notable deed was the capture of seven of the enemy, entrenched in a shell hole with machine guns. Nine men were assigned this duty, but all were killed or wounded on the way, and this Indian obeyed his superior officer's orders single handed. His rifle is in a Washington gallery, kept as a record of the patriotism and excellent service of one native 100 per cent American.

This boy belonged to a vanishing race and his zeal and courage will never obtain the admiration that is accorded to white men. Imbued with the blood of warriors who spent their lives fighting off the invading Caucasian, he served nobly the cause of a race that reduced his people to a mere fragment of humanity.

The Indian brave goes to his lonesome tomb with a few citizens knowing aught of his great deeds. He sleeps now in an old quiet Indian cemetery, hidden deep in the quiet woods among others of his tribe, and we who owe him so much will probably smile at his absurd name, Tom Blind Woman, slayer of seven of the enemy single handed and brave fighter for a country no longer his own

The feed at McLeod was one of the most enjoyable events of the entire convention, more than 400 people partaking of the Boulder trout, chicken, beef and trimmings that had been prepared under the direction of James Annin and his assistants from Columbus. It was a big banquet, well prepared and nicely served and the firemen and their friends are all loud in their praise of Chef Annin.

Eagles Picnic

welcome and the response was made by Mayor Mitchell of Great Falls.

Crowd Is Orderly
John Holmes, president of the Eagles, said the crowd was one of the most orderly ever seen at such an affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Murphy of Great Falls won the contest for the largest family at the picnic and will be the guests of the Park Hotel at a dinner in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Murphy have 11 children all of whom were present.

The large bus of the Yellow Cab company made many trips during the day between this city and Belt and carried capacity loads each time. The bus was arranged for by the picnic committee to serve those who had no other means of transportation.
