50 ANIMAL ACTORS IN UNUSUAL CAST

Bringing Nature to the screen in possibly the most difficult undertaking of the year, "Courage of Lassie" new M-G-M outdoor drama filmed in Technicolor and opening Sunday and Monday, March 2-3 on the Kootenai screen, features an unusual cast of more than fifty different types of wild animals. These appear with Elizabeth Taylor, Frank Morgan, Tom Drake, and Lassie, the magnificent collie dog star.

Included among the film's animal actors are a bear, racoon, beaver, deer, raven, a silver fox, coyote, squirrel, chipmunk, badger, skunk and a great golden eagle. Actually highly trained animals, they appear in "Courage of Lassie," roaming freely about their natural habitat. Beautiful location scenes were filmed at Lake Chelan, Washington, setting for the screen play. The town of Chelan, at the foot of the sixty-five-mile-long lake, was photographed just as it is today.

For Lassie, the first collie star in screen history, "Courage of Lassie" marks his third stellar role, following "Lassie Come Home" and "Son of Lassie."
