MINISTERS PRAY FOR PRESIDENT

God Invoked to Guide the Nation in the Present War Crisis.

Prayers were offered by the Butte Ministerial association this morning that God would direct President Wilson in selecting the right course for the United States in the present international crisis. Instead of holding a discussion on the topic for the day, a paper by Rev. G. D. Wolfe on "The Minister's Prayer Life," Rev. L. A. Wilson moved that the organization resolve itself into a prayer session for spiritual guidance for the nation's executive. The motion carried.

Resolutions were passed at the meeting endorsing the bill for separate institutions for boys and girls in the industrial buildings of the state, and for pensions for widowed mothers, upholding the idea of the mother working in her home for the children rather than sending the children to a state institution. The movement which was started in Butte by the Morals Betterment league for a woman police officer or deputy sheriff was also endorsed by the ministers at today's meeting.

C. S. Jackman and Mrs. Edith Clinch were elected members of the Associated Charities to represent the ministerial association. The ministers volunteered to hold services at the poor farm during the year, each minister naming the date on which he would attend. Rev. Robert C. Edgington of Helena, who is conducting revival services here, led the devotional exercises this morning. Rev. C. A. Cook presided in the absence of the president, Rev. J. H. Mitchell.

MONTANA CAVALRY TROOP IN BUTTE ON THURSDAY

of Billings at the time the national guard was stationed in Butte. The men were provided with horses at Douglas and the troop was attached to the First Montana regiment of infantry, being encamped near the Calumet & Arizona smelter near Douglas. Upon withdrawal of the First Montana, the cavalry troop was retained there for patrol duty. Of the horses provided for mounting the men by the government, but 32 will be turned over to the state, this being the government's allowance for a national guard troop of cavalry. Commissioned officers were required to furnish their own horses and they will bring these home with them.

Recruited Last Summer.

Troop A was not recruited, "supplied" the troop, but when the First Montana returned home he resigned and Captain Birely, then a lieutenant, was promoted to command of the troop. The troop arrived at Douglas on Aug. 11 and has already been in service of the government for more than six months.

Upon arrival of the troop at Fort Harrison it will be mustered out. This formalty, together with turning over of government property and the like, will probably consume two weeks. Government property used by the troop will be invoiced to the state and stored at Helena in the state armory, since the troop, being a state-wide organization, has no other home station.

Preparations have been underway for some time for the reception of the troop at Fort Harrison. Plumbing fixtures and the heating plant in the general barracks building have been gotten into shape so that the men will occupy that building as quarters until they are mustered out.

No Call for Guard Likely.

When news of the break with Germany was received it was believed that the order withdrawing Troop A, which had been rescinded and that the men would be kept on the border until such time as the government decided to transfer them. Secretary of War Baker, however, announced on Saturday that all national guardsmen ordered home from the border will be mustered out and that there will be no change of plans because of the situation with Germany.

This leads local officers of the national guard to believe that the First Montana will not be called into government service in the near future because of the international situation. They argue that if the government contemplated calling out the militia, the cavalry troop would not be returned home to be mustered out.

Neither Col. Dan J. Donohue, commanding officer of the Montana national guard, nor Capt. John V. King, regimental adjutant, has received any advice which lead to believe that a call for the guard is imminent.

RAMSEY SUICIDE IS PROBED BY CORONER

Coroner Aeneas Lane is holding a formal inquiry this afternoon into the death of Samuel Ramsey, son of Mrs. M. J. Cavanaugh, who committed suicide by taking poison last Thursday at the Cavanaugh home on West Copper street. The inquest developed the fact that Ramsey came home Thursday morning and shortly after entering the house and drinking a cup of coffee he asked his mother to kiss him good-bye and then sank back into a chair in the throes of death. A physician testified to applying antidotes after he was called to the house. Two notes left by the deceased were read. They were premeditation. It developed that Ramsey was despondent from grief over the death of a dear girl friend.

WAR ARGUMENTS NO EXCUSE FOR FIGHT

Mayor Urges the People to Refrain From Remarks That Might Cause Trouble.

A warning for Americans to "sit tight and not rock the boat" was issued by Mayor Lane this morning. He especially warns against disturbances of all kinds and says that any disturbances that may result because of the breach between Germany and the United States will be treated as ordinary disturbances and the principals will be haled into police court as are all participants of saloon-room brawls.

"This is time for serious contemplation of the great issues that confront this country," said the mayor. "It is not the time for saloon-room brawls and the vigilance of the police in preventing these will not be lessened. We are not at war with Germany. And if we were at war, it would be no excuse for saloon fights. Men should be home with their families where they belong and not in saloons when an argument at any time might result in a fight."

"I advise all Butte people to do their thinking quietly and refrain from remarks in public places that might aggravate a fight."
