A small boy was run over yesterday morning on East Pierce street by a heavy delivery wagon, on which he had been stealing a ride to Chautauqua. The wheel passed over his abdomen, and for several minutes he lay in the modele of the street as limp as a rag. Several of the neighbors ran out to help him, but as soon as he got his breath he said he was not burt. He refused to tell his name or where he lived, and after a while he got up and resumed his journey accompanied by a Sandy Malvern and E. W. Farrell, the two confidence men who are serving thirty day sentences in the county jail for attempting to trick a farmer out of his money at the transfer, were brought before Judge Smith transfer, were brought before Judge Smith yesterday in the district court on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. They were defended by Attorney Tinley, who claimed that they had not been convicted of any crime, but had merely been sent up on general principles because they were out of work. The testimony was submitted to the court at noon and the case taken under advisement with the understanting that visement with the understanding that a decision would be handed down this morning.

the motor lines connect with th Rock Island trains, which run direct from Omaha, and from the Main street depot in Council Bluffs, direct to the Chautauqua grounds. The service this year is so complete that the public should show its appreciation by availing themselves of the opportunity to reach Chautauqua. From the devot at Chautauqua to the amphitheater there is a smooth, plank walk all the way, thus making the Rock Island train the cleanest, quickest, easiest and cheapest way to reach Chautauqua. The time tables are published elsewhere. Nine trains a day each way.

Hypnotized the Dog.

Charles Whitmore, who lives at 806 Avenue G, owns a dog that has carned a reputation for objecting to the presence of night prowiers and strangers, and for some time as an additional security he has let the dog sleep in his bed chamber. Tuesday night he went to bed and left the dog to look after things in ceneral and about $85 in particular, which was in the room. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning the residence was burglarized and the cost the cost of the carried away. The dog did not object to the presence of the burgiars in the room and the presumption is that they were not only familiar with the premises out were on good terms with the master and the goods. The barn was also broken open and it is believed that the burgiars also intended to steal a horse and buggy, as the buggy was run out of the stable and the horse was loose and harnessed, but the thieves were frightened away when they were about ready to Tent Dwellers at Chautauqua Don't Attend Morning Prayers.

SUNRISE COMES TOO EARLY FOR THEM

If the Day Didn't Begin So Soon More Peopte Might See It Start-How the Assembly is Progressing in Several Directions.

The Chautauqua assembly has settled down into somewhat of routine living, that is, the tent life feature of it has. There are four or five hundred people, "livers in tents," and the tap of the bell is now responded to with some little uniformity. The campers display que enthusiasm about everything except morning prayers. The hour fixed for these is rather early-6:30 a. m., but there is activ ity manifest throughout the tents even at that hour, so that the desire of little more folding of the arms and slumber can hardly to the reason for such small gatherings. The morning after the Fourth there were not enough to alaim the promise of "where two or three are gathered." Yesterday morning there was com paratively a great crowd there being eight in all, including two small boys who stayed just long enough to satisfy their curiosity as to what was going on.

Despite the lack of enthusiastic manifestations of piety, the camp is characterized by excellent order, and there are practical proofs of a high standard of morality. Of course there is not a beer joint or a wheel on or about the tented field. A short distance away from the depot, around a bend in the railway, a haif mile from the tents and not on Chautauqua ground, some fellow with no fear of the prohibition law has set up a beer stand, but as he can't make a display, can't nevertise or have any announcement made by the superintendent of instruction, his trade has been very light. Sheak thieving is unknown. During all the assemblies there has never been an article stolen, so far as reported. The present assembly opens with the usual record of lionesty. With no locks, no safes, no alarms, a thief would apparently find little to prevent a their would apparently find little to prevent his gathering in something of value, It would, however, be easier to cather it in than to gather it out, After the taps "to bed" there are no strollers except Captain Anderson, the night watch, and any stranger would speedly be called to account if found roam-ing about. This may tend in part to the perfect protection of loose property. perfect protection of loose property.

The amphitheater is the center of public interest. Here at least three times daily are gathered good sized audiences. Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock Leon H. Vlacent delivered another lecture, his subject being "Robert Burns." It was in his usual finished, polished, bright manner. Mr. Vincent is a literary critic, not merely a fault finder. He points out liaws as well as beauties, but does this in a manner which is pleasing. In dissecting he is a surgeon, and not a butcher. No better illustration of this could be cited than the manner in which he yesterday handled the two great vices of Burns. It is to be regretted that Mr. Vincent is not to appear on the program again this season.

Yesterday afterneon Prof. George E. Little of Washington, D. C., made his first apparance here. On blackboard and large sheets of paper he demonstrated his ability sheets of paper he demonstrated his ability to entertain old and young by making forms and faces in chalk and crayon. Prof. Little is not a Frank Beard, but he travels along a somewhat different line, preserving an in-dividuality sufficiently marked to render com-parisons only odious. With lightning rapidity be drew picture after picture, stated fundamental principles of art, illustrated them there in simple lessons of morality for the young folks, mixed in merriment and for ar hour kept the audience good natured and en thusnastic. His charcoal sketches of the presidential candidates called forth hearty applause, pretty evenly divided, so that no jar of partisanship hit the crazy pone of the political elbow.

Last evening there was a slight departure from the published program owing to the departure of the lecturer who had been amounced. Prof. Ciendennin, who to give two more lectures on Chill, was rather unexpectedly and unavoidably called to Chicago. The substitution for the evening crowded the time with enjoyment. The assembly band, which is capa-ble of giving the choicest sind of a concert, occupied a portion of the evening, while the Carnes family helped out grandly. The lit-tle maiden of the household is a phenomenon in the recitation line, her acting need-ing no crutches of stage accessories to keep t from limping. The audience had a must cal and literary treat which fully atoned for the necessary absence of Prof Clendonnia, Railroad Laborers Indulge in a Row Which May Result in One's Death.

A gang of railroad hands became involved in a fight yesterday morning at a saloon kept by Jack Farley, on Main street near the corner of Tenth avenue. What caused the quarrel no one seemed to know, but when Officer Covalt arrived on the scene, attracted by confusion inside the building, he found one of the gang on the floor, with another kicking him in the face, while two more stood with their revolvers aimed at the crowd, who would have interfered with the fun. As soon as the efficer showed nimself both revolvers were levelled upon him, and in tones whose seriousness he did not stop to question he was ordered to skip.

A posse of officers was at once collected and a move on the building was made. Far-ley, the proprietor of the saloon, objected to the men being arrested, and during the altercation that ensued the fellow who did the kicking managed to escape out of the oack door. The rest were placed under arrest. At the marshal's office the two who held the guns gove their names as Thomas Baker and Thomas Carl, and they were slated with assault with intent to do great bodity injury. Farley was also arrested and charged with interfering with an officer. The injured man, whose name turned out to be Thomas Ryan, was taken in charge and jailed on the nominal charge of disturbing the peace, although in reality he is held as a witness. His face and head are in a horrible condition, the blows having marred him almost beyond recognition. The injuries may

A telephone message was received during the afternoon from the officials at Neola, stating that the man who escaped got off the train at that place and was arrested. The colice at once notified them to keep him, and he will be brought in today.

A burglar entered the Tremont house on Lower Broadway about midnight Tuesday night, and without arousing the inmates went through the room occupied by Oscar Baumeister, son of the proprietor. Officer Kemp nappened to see the fellow go in, and ne decided to take a hand in the game when the proper time came. He accordingly waited in the shadow of the building until the fellow came out, and just as the burglat was making a lively chase for a motor train to go to Omaha, Kemp twined his fingers around the name of his neck. The burgiar was taken to the police station, where he gave his name as Morris Quinn. He had in his possession a pair of opera glasses, a watch with a gold filled case, a money purso containing $7, and something over a slik handkerchiefs and neckles. The stuff was neatly done up in one of the large handkerchiefs. Quinn was taken before Justice Swearingen vesterday morning, where he waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury on the charge of burglary, his bond being fixed at $500.

Boys'

department badly demoralized. We find one line of suits with the large sizes all sold -another line with the small ones all gone --still another with only "a few of 'em left" -another small lot of cheap ones all one pattern-another pattern of medium priced ones and so on-not many of any one kindbut too many kinds. Have you got a boyor a pair of twin boys-or three boys-or quadruplets? Bring 'em down this week -we've made prices so's you'll buy as many suits as you've got boys.
