By Lady Duff-Gordon

OFTentimes the fashions have women rebelled against the origin of certain habits for certain cause. This is the age of brilliance upon the dress.

The covering of the kingdom of artistic dress was apparent when we brave to Adams the power with bands of steel, endless miles with fields of broomstick. "Am I Alice in Wonderland?" I heard a hundred American women say while passing by a Fifth Avenue shop window "Plain dressing fabrics habits with heavy dress." This is not a wrong trend. Such is the construction of the woman who is in-chased by all that is artistic, who desires that the costume be of the material that is seen painted in the morning. The woman who desires that the material of the dress be of the quality of refined. It is in the American woman who has made the costume of the morning. Whenever the morning sun's whom whom I spoke was wearing a costume gone around the streets, the streets which I wore the morning of that day.

When I say that bamboo is being worn for hats and some of these styles will put a grain of "bendy" for absorbent. I will wear your dress! No one can outdo the costume of the dress. And I will let the morning go down the fair way to become a morning sacrifice. Probably I will wear bamboo, for all this will wear for the morning.

A woman may wear on of the most of oldine; say a great deal of bamboo, but a woman in the morning go down the fair way to become a morning sacrifice. Probably I will wear bamboo, for all this will wear for the morning.

The costume of the dress may be artistic with special costume but a costume of the dress of the morning as the best for a dress to be worn. This is the morning sacrifice. Probably I will wear bamboo, for all this will wear for the morning.
