

Let's go Shopping with Polly

Spring still is held
In winter's grasp
But soon her bonds
She'll break
And tripping down
The hillside green
Her fresh, lithe way
She'll take
Across the plains
She'll swiftly fling
Her blossoms which
She's sure to bring
She'll loose the brook's
Soft gurgling note
A song will burst forth
From her throat

Then down the city's
Busy street
Will come the ripple
Of her feet
And by the way
And festive throng
You'll know they've heard
Her glad song
So do your shopping
Early friends
It surely boosts your
Spirits friends
To have those fresh
And lively things
To do when spring
Warm weather brings

A "PERSONALLY conducted" tour through a section of Orchard & Wilhelm's great Furniture House that I had not previously visited revealed such wonders to me that I feel it worthy of mention in these columns. For I want you, too, dear readers, to ask the wonders of seeing just what my eyes beheld. Three dining room suites, created by a Master Furniture Maker, and designed for handsome, handsome-looking couples of authentic period pieces—so secure in quality and perfection of craftsmanship that they are considered apart from the regular commercial furniture. The one that particularly pleased me was the Adams Period mahogany suite with ebony inlay, consisting of a 60-inch dining table, serving table, sideboard and eight chairs (six side chairs and two arm chairs). This classic suite was intended originally to sell at $2,000, but on account of the absolute perfection in its fitted design, with garlands and oval medallion carvings, so typical of that period, and the fact that its oval proportions would lend dignity to a large, beautiful home. Besides these, there is another suite of Sheraton, with satinwood, that will also be offered on the sacrificial altar. Shades of Robert Adam and Thomas Sheraton, arise!

AN OLD rhymist speaks about the primrose as "Merry Springtime's harbinger." Panning before Lee Larson's Flower Shop window, in the Fontenelle Hotel, I noticed many small plants about with these same lovely blossoms that inspired the poet, besides pots of bright cyclamen, cinerarias and hyacinths for which Russian might have sold the loaf of bread to us of that period, and, oh, just the daintiest little table ferns! Why not have at least one of these pretty plants to adorn your home this week? It will bring happiness to all the family. They are priced only 25c to $1.00. Phone Douglas 2144.

waists made, because I simply can't find a ready-made one in a large size. It will be joyful tidings, then, to know that at last some pretty blouses have been specially designed for them, which fit perfectly without any alteration whatsoever. They are made with inserted panels of taffeta. Another of white crepe de chine with horizontal tucks and bows at the collar. Such blouses come in sizes 45 to 53 and are splendid values for $6.75. At Benson & Sauer's.

My richest friend, who has lived years in Paris, many times remarked plaintively, "Why do you and your good friends insist on sets of dishes?" And, as I was most particularly fond of my complete set of delicate decorated French china, I never quite caught her criticism. Ah! but now I know! Last week I happened upon the most beautiful set of dishes I have ever seen. This was being marketed and arranged. "This," explained the president of the company, "is a delicate set of dishes, with garlands and oval medallion carvings, so typical of that period, and the fact that its oval proportions would lend dignity to a large, beautiful home. Besides these, there is another suite of Sheraton, with satinwood, that will also be offered on the sacrificial altar. Shades of Robert Adam and Thomas Sheraton, arise!"

EASTER'S coming! And, how about your new bonnet? Belle Hatch, 1819 Farnam, has some stunning models, both in hand-work and beautiful lace affairs for evening wear. One thing I particularly love about her models is that they are made up with truly an artist's touch.

ENTIRELY new this season are the colored dot embroidered flouncings and handkerchiefs in the most delicate shades of pink, blue, and green. These are the finest flouncings of organza, voile and marquisette with lace edges or elegantly embroidered, which Miss Rhodes, the buyer for this department, has secured from the best of all foreign importations which she was very fortunate to secure. Just the thing for bridal or graduation gowns.

DID you notice with what a degree of comfort you spent the entire evening at the "Blackstone" the other night? Wondered if a little more of the splendid ventilation and pure, warm air, "It's the new Vapor System installed by The Lincoln Engineering Co. in the Blackstone. The radiator needs to be heated at one time." I was told, and did you know this same system is installed at St. Cecilia's Cathedral, as well as numerous apartment houses, hotels and homes? It's wonderful! Mr. H. H. Hylard, 602 Bee Bldg., will explain it to you.

THE immortal bard certainly knew a thing or two when he said, "The spirit of procreation is the man." And when it comes from Lucien Stephens' Shop you may be assured of its absolute correct form. There you'll find your Easter neckwear, hosiery, hat and gloves—and, Mr. Man, if you're a bit ultra in your taste, may I suggest a walking stick, too?

GOOD news! These pretty, pink, blue and green flouncings are so much at the Vogue Shop will be specially priced all this week. Hurry up and get yours. Second floor, Rose Bldg.

AS Stevenson, that lover of "Tiny Tots," would say, "Oh, I do think it's the pleasant thing ever a child can do to be in the little folk's section of Benson & Thorne's and have Miss Adams fix them up in pretty things designed to delight the younger generation. The latest cut arrivals for Sister Dear are in black and white. Sheerest of sheers, serviceable and get with style aplenty. Box and belt models—besides charming semi-empire effects, with washable and colored collars, and cuffs, so that Sister can always look sweet and fresh. These ducky coats are priced $1.50 to $10.00. Miss Adams has darling little hats, too, so when you buy the coat, be sure to find the becoming hat for Easter."

EVERY time I stop for a chat with Miss Parzinger at The Neckwear Shop, she tells me of the wonderful things she has in store. This week it was stocks of pleat with wonderful ties of that marvelous silk. To see—good looking to wear with tailored and sports suits, and decidedly new! Then the geometric collars, this Spring are so pretty to "dress up" a suit or frock, and come in plain white or trimmed with lace, medallion insets, Pongee and Rajah collars, too, are very smart indeed, and Dame Fashion dictates we are to wear a ruffled collar. This season with taffeta suits and gowns. Also I saw such sweet, little vealves of embroidery, fine lace and embroidered crepe while peering into those fascinating show cases.

AT THE Allen, 507 R 18th St., I find such little things for Easter. An envelope, beautifully decorated, includes five little letters of greetings—each one expressing a different sentiment. Price 30c. A pretty box, on the lid of which a clever artist has painted a picture of a Chinese Egg cup, 50c. Equilatte Easter cards—10c to 25c.

I NEVER saw such cunning hankies for Kitties and Kittens! I know I stopped a half hour at Thompson-Helden's looking at them. Soldier marching and the squares, or Mother Goose's children doing their proverbial "stunts" in the corners, all for 10c. But there are fancy birds for "Maver" or "Sister" and such neat, linen ones with colored borders. And, oh! such exquisite hand-embroidered handkerchiefs for Easter!

THE World of Femininity has its thoughts now centralized on THE EASTER HAT. Have you found yours yet? If not, let me urge you to see the tailored models at The Drachon-Luttig Hat Shop, Jaunitz hats in the popular shades of blue, green and rose from famed Eastern makers. The bon-ton of our city seem to favor this shade—but I don't wonder, though, for a Drachon-Luttig hat is characteristic in its cleverness.

JUST off the press! I'm so glad to tell my readers about Napier's new 1917 Style Folder with distinct illustrations of the latest styles and materials in boots and pumps, which will be modish for Spring and Summer. If you're interested in smart footwear, Mr. Napier will be delighted to mail one of these to you if you'll send him a postal with your name and address. Write Napier's Booterie, Rose Bldg.

SVELTE and youthful looking! Yes! The "S. H. Camp Goodwill" and "Artist's Model" corsets are perfect foundations for your new Spring "tailor-made." Catherine Miller fits these models to our leading society women—her scientific corseting is endorsed by many leading physicians. 1704 Douglas St.

THIS little item should be of special interest to Christian Scientists. In looking over the many beautiful pictures on display at A. Hoop's Store, I discovered a few finely colored platino types that every lover of the picture in his or her home. "The Home of Mary Baker Eddy"—$2.50. "The Mother Church in Boston"—$1.50. "The Church of Christ Scientist, Concord"—$1.00. Then there is that masterpiece of Strutt's, "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," exquisitely finished in water colors, for $12.00, and a new picture, equally appealing, by the same artist, called "The Return of Love's Child," in the Temple and "Daniel in the Lions' Den" are favorite subjects also—both $12.00.

MISS COLES' latest creation for the little housewife who wishes for "Hush" in her home is a coat-dress, made of broad sailor collar, daintily trimmed with swag pockets and deep cuffs. Priced $25.00. Her famous Bungalow aprons are $1.25—cap to match. See Linc. Shop, 111 Bee Bldg.

I WAS out for an evening both restful and cheerful. And stopped at the "MUSE" to see what was "on." The pictures were charming, the music engaging. Such a dear little place, I was glad I had gone. And after an hour or so, feeling at ease, I was pleased to remember "Miss Pictures" PERPETUALLY PLEASE.

HOW often do we hear ladies inclined to laud remark, "I'm always obliged to have my hair done at the Bee's Shopping Service is free to its readers. Clip the items that appeal to you. Dear Folks:—Such a week as I've had in the Shops about town, through bewildering masses of coats or gowns—and "stocks" so delightful, my senses revealed and to my aesthetic sense surely appealed. When I found this good-looking, ultra "free" new neckwear the shops an engagingly show. Be it neckwear or furniture, mandarin coat or flowers—do let me do your shopping at these clever shops of ours. Smith, Tukey and Latenser
Enlist in Officers' Reserve

Three more well known Omaha men are offering their services to Uncle Sam in case of war. They will enroll with Captain McKinley of the army recruiting station as members of the army officers' reserve corps.

Frank Latenser, Allan Tukey and Lloyd S. Smith are the volunteer officers. Saturday noon they called to see Captain McKinley and enroll with him, but found he was out of the city. They declared they would enroll later. All three have been officers in high school and university military organizations.

Latenser is an architect in the firm of John Latenser & Sons. Tukey is an Overland auto salesman. Smith is a department manager of the Linger Implement company.

The reserve officers' corps already has enrolled three other young men here, and still others are known to be planning to join the corps. They would be called to the regular army or National Guard as commissioned officers when war should come, and the greatly enlarged military forces would be in urgent need of officers with some military cadet experience.

Previous enlistments in the reserve officers' corps included Attorneys Ames Thomas and Anan R. Raymond, and Mayer L. Cohn, a military school graduate.

Y. W. C. A. Notes.

Association vespers this afternoon will be in charge of the extension department. Mrs. Jessie Steen Kittelson will give a talk on "Personality." Miss Elizabeth Evans will sing and Miss Marguerite Brown will play the violin. Social hour follows, when light refreshments are served.

On Monday night at 8 o'clock will be held the second music meeting in the interest of the summer camp. All captains and workers will be present. Reports will be given and Mrs. H. H. Benson's "booster" and "enthusiasm" meeting.
