Enlistments in the various branches of military service were resumed with a rush Monday morning after the usual Sunday let-up. By noon seventy-three men had enlisted and the day promised to be one of the busiest Omaha recruiting officers have ever had.

Groups of war volunteers arrived from a number of towns in the district. Twenty from Manila, Ia., and fifteen from Pierre, S. D., were the largest groups. Captain McKinley of the army and Lieutenant Waddell of the navy both reported they were receiving splendid co-operation from mayors and postmasters and other citizens in towns where recruiting parties are working.

A total of 4,810 army recruits will be this district's quota for the period beginning April 1 and ending thirty days after the army bill is passed, according to information just received from the War department. Over 1,000 of these are already enlisted. A great influx of army recruits is expected by Captain McKinley as soon as the bill passes and the call for the enlarged army is made.

than a half hour. The military aides were not present at the conference.

As the party was leaving the White House a wild west show parade was passing with a steam calliope screeching "God Save the King and the Marseillaise." Somebody proposed three cheers for Mr. Balfour and the crowd roared a willing response while the British minister smiled and bowed. Later he drove to the French embassy for luncheon.

It was made known by members of the commission that today and tomorrow are to be devoted to social formalities and that the stage of conferences is not expected to be reached before Wednesday.

All of the attaches of the commission have not yet reached Washington. Some are expected to land in the United States from a passenger ship today or tomorrow. Meanwhile the French commission is expected, but it was said today there were no plans for joint conferences at this stage, although undoubtedly there would be some later on.

The conferences are not expected to be prolonged and it was said today that after the principal subjects have been gone over it was probable that Mr. Balfour and some other members of the mission might return to England, leaving details to be worked out by subordinates.

Service and Courtesy. It was emphasized again today that the controlling motive of the British commission's visit to the United States was one of service and courtesy to American people, with the view of enlightening this government on "the price Great Britain paid" as one of the commissioners put it—for its mistakes on entering the war.

Measures by which the United States can extend to its allies the most readily available assistance will first be discussed and foremost among these are quotations of shipping and food.

It was said that the food situation in England is not as acute as has been represented, but that Great Britain, having pooled its resources with its allies, is called upon to supply food for France and Italy, where the situation is more pressing. It is possible that before Mr. Balfour leaves the United States he may be invited to address the senate.

Sloan Will Suggest Way To Raise Revenue

(From a Staff Correspondent.) Washington, April 21.—Special Telegram.—Representative Sloan, a member of the ways and means committee, now considering the war revenue bill, said today he would at the proper time offer a suggestion authorizing the committee to bring in an amendment on the import provisions of the bill providing for duties on all articles not excepted. In doing this he will suggest the following rules be observed:

That all articles having an import duty under the Underwood law shall have a customs duty levied equally to the Underwood law or 50 per cent of the Payne law.

That all articles now on the free list shall have duties levied, not less than 20 per cent or more than 50 per cent, coffee, tea and drugs excepted.

Mr. Sloan said today a goodly number of members of congress on both sides favor raising revenue in this manner. He intimated a very large sum of money could be raised to carry out the purposes of the war measure through this method.

Ignacio Bonillas, the recently arrived ambassador from Mexico. It is said that in receiving the new Carranza envoy, President Wilson hinted at the possibility of there being a German submarine base somewhere in Mexican waters. The delicate state of relations with the Carranza government, it is said, makes exceptionally difficult the making of direct representations.

High Court Rules House Can't Punish Criticism of Members

Washington, April 23.—The house of representatives which went out of office March 4 last, the supreme court decided today, did not have authority to punish United States Attorney H. Snowden Marshall of New York for alleged contempt. Mr. Marshall is exempt from further proceedings.

The lower court, it was held by Chief Justice White, erred in refusing to give Mr. Marshall a discharge by habeas corpus. The supreme court therefore ordered his discharge, declaring that the house had no right to punish an individual for criticism of its members.

Mr. Marshall was charged with contempt because of a letter he wrote criticizing the conduct of a house subcommittee which investigated impeachment charges brought against him by former Representative Buchanan of Illinois, whom Mr. Marshall had indicted for conspiracy to restrain commerce. The impeachment charges collapsed.

American Ship Chased Five Miles by German Sea Raider

New York, April 23.—An American steamship was chased for five miles by the German sea raider Seeadler, off the coast of Brazil, on April 12, according to the captain of the vessel, which reached this port today. The Seeadler, previously reported by the victims of its raids on their arrival at Rio Janeiro, was formerly the American bark Pass of Baltimore, into which the Germans had fitted gasoline motors.

The captain of the steamship said the raider had Norwegian flags painted on its sides and mounted two guns apparently of eight-inch calibre. This is the first report of the operations of the Seeadler since crews from ships it sank reached Rio Janeiro March 31.

"I have been on the wagon six months," John McDonald told Judge Madden Monday morning as an alibi for artificial exhilaration the night before.

"How long?" asked the court. "Four months," said McDonald. "Weren't you drunk three weeks ago on my beat?" asked a policeman. "Maybe" was the answer. "And you certainly were drunk last night when I picked you up in an alley," said Patrolman Aboud. "But I won't drink any more," said the prisoner. And the court wrote "discharged" after McDonald's name.

Wanneta Takes Lead In Recruits for Small Town

Hastings, Neb., April 23.—(Special Telegram.)—With a population of 327, Wanneta, Neb., has probably taken the lead for the entire state in furnishing recruits for the army. Nine young men from that city were accepted here today for the regular army and they reported that as many more are likely to follow their example.

CONSCRIPTION BILL UP IN BOTH HOUSES

Senator Weeks Says People Will Demand Draft Soon as They Understand Facts.

DENT OPENS DISCUSSION

Washington, April 23.—Representative Lunn, democrat, and formerly socialist mayor of Schenectady, N. Y., urged conscription in his speech in the house during discussion of the army bill this afternoon. Mr. Lunn said that in voting to give the president all the power and resources of the country for carrying out the war he and others took that action literally and without equivocation.

Representative Lunn aroused laughter and applause by suggesting that an amendment be written into the bill making it necessary to give soldiers already in the service a second opportunity to enlist in order that their services might be wholly democratic. Loud applause greeted his remarks.

Representative Eagle of Texas interrupted Lunn to say that his office was being flooded with protests against conscription signed by the same persons who a year ago were pleading the cause of Germany.

Mr. Dent Opens Debate

The house bill, as reported by a majority of the committee, provided for the volunteer enlistment with conscription only as a last resort and the fight for this measure was led by Chairman Dent of the military committee, whose supporters felt sure that they would make a good showing. A strong element in the house, however, backed the selective conscription plan advocated by the army general staff and recommended by the military committee minority, led by Representative Kahn of California, a republican.

In the senate the bill under consideration was the general staff's measure.

In opening the senate debate Senator Weeks said the people demand conscription or would demand it if they were correctly informed.

When the house began debate no limit was fixed, but it was agreed that it should run on today until 6 o'clock.

Chairman Dent of the military committee, who favors a call for volunteers while the conscription registration machinery is being made ready, opened the debate.

Mr. Dent explained that the bill as amended by the committee gives authority to raise an army of practically 1,000,000 men and "safeguards the American birthright to volunteer for service in defense of the country."

The president, he said, is still authorized to proceed with arrangements with the selective draft and has absolute authority to determine on which system the army would be raised.
