

Nebraska NO DRY ACTION BY SESSION SAYS THE GOVERNOR

Neville After Study of Situation Declares Lawmakers' Vote Would Be Useless; Bryan Has Statement.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Lincoln, March 25.—(Special.)—Should the special session of the legislature ratify the prohibition amendment to the constitution of the United States, it would have to be done all over again at the next regular session, in the opinion of Governor Neville, who has spent much time looking over the constitution of other states in an effort to discover if other states give authority to a special session to enact legislation not specified in the call.

The governor has discovered that but a few states give that freedom to a special session. One state gives the governor power to incorporate needed legislation in an after call issued after the first call has been made, while another state gives its legislature authority upon a two-thirds vote of the members.

What Constitution Says.
The state of Nebraska expresses itself in its constitution along about the same line as the most of the states, section 8 of article 5 of the constitution reading:

"The governor may on extraordinary occasions convene the legislature by proclamation, stating therein the purpose for which they are convened and the legislature shall enter upon no business except that for which they were called together."
"This, in the mind of the governor, clearly established the rights of the legislature and that no legislation can be enacted but that specified in the call."

Bryan's Position.
Mr. Bryan, in his address in Lincoln, said that the legislature could take action on a ratification of the prohibition amendment, basing his claim on the fact that some state at some time had elected a United States senator at a special session, when the election had not been specified in the call. What state he referred to is not known.

The contention is made that Mr. Bryan is wrong for the reason that the ratification of an amendment to the national constitution and the election of a United States senator are two distinct and separate matters, and that the election of a senator to fill a vacancy is provided for in the federal constitution and that when a vacancy occurs, the governor of the state appoints until the next session of the legislature convenes and if that session happens to be a special session it is its duty to elect someone to fill the vacancy in states where the legislature elects the senator.

Federal Constitution.
The constitution of the United States reads: Article I, Section 3: "If vacancies happen by resignation or otherwise, during the recess of the legislature of any state, the executive thereof may make temporary appointments until the next meeting of the legislature, which shall then fill such vacancies."

Members of the legislature so far who have arrived appear to be in the air on the proposition whether the ratification of the amendment can be legally taken up. Many of those who favor its ratification are fearful that if an attempt is made to override the governor's call it will bring on a fight which will have the same effect as in that of the last session—that real legislation will have to suffer because of feelings existing between members brought on by such a fight.

Not After Squabble.
One of the most prominent members of the last session, James Auten of Boone, said today he has come to Lincoln to do business and not to squabble over differences of opinion. If the members want to get busy and enact the legislation called for he will stay and help, but if they are going to go to scuffling, he will simply tell them what he thinks of their action, pack his grip and go home where he has much more important work than talking. He says talking won't get his wheat and oats plow his land for corn, if it could he would have done his talking in a phonograph and left it to put in his crop.

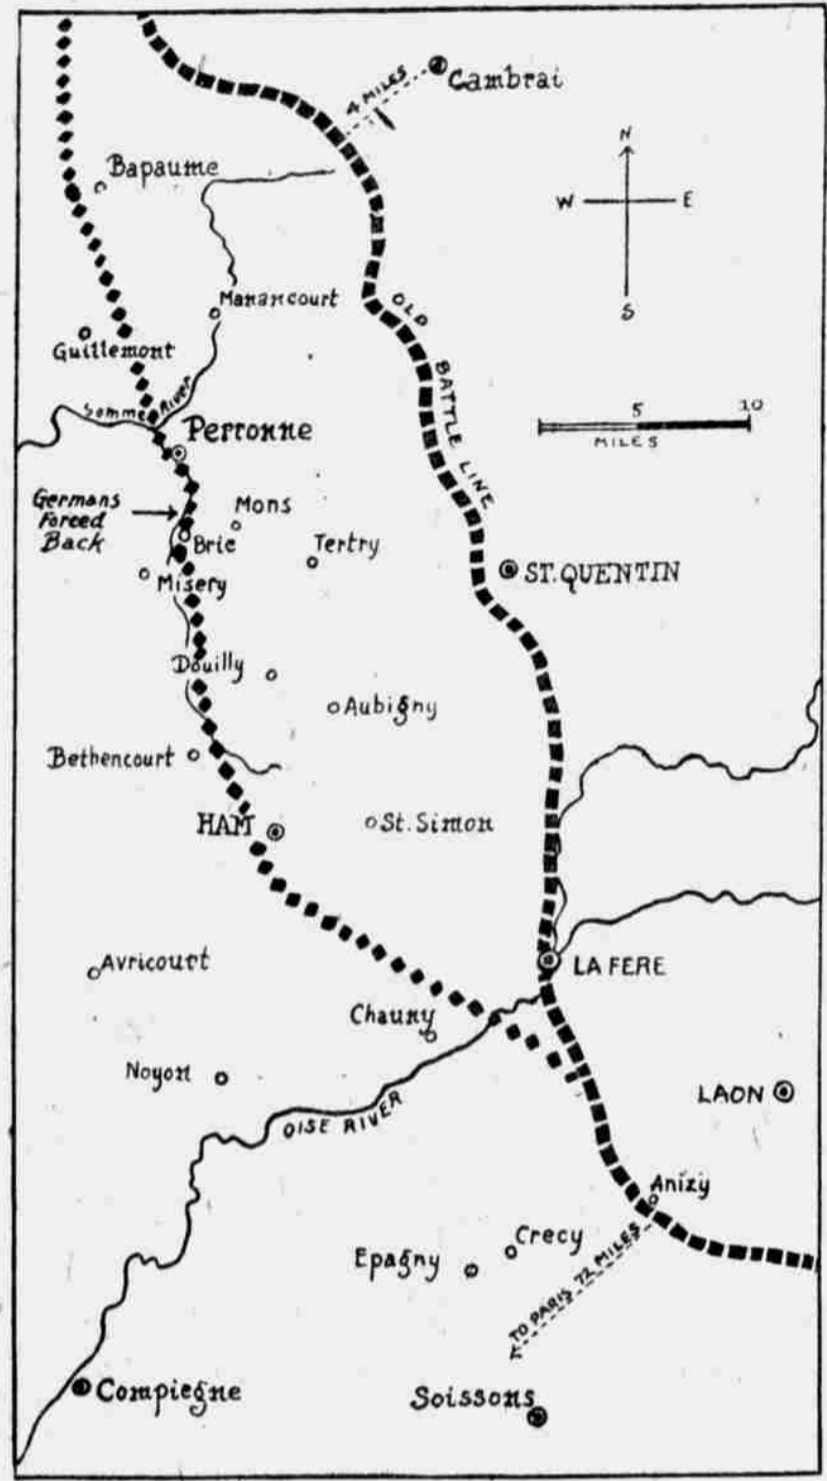

The only thing to be gained by ratifying the change in the constitution would be that as Mr. Bryan said, "Nebraska would thus be one of the first states to recognize the prohibition amendment by legislative action." This in the mind of many is not of sufficient importance to cause the members who favor such action to take a slap at Governor Neville, when the next regular session can just as well take care of the matter.

Bryan's Statement.
W. J. Bryan tonight issued a signed statement containing an argument for the ratification of the prohibition amendment. He devotes the major portion of the statement to arguments why prohibition is beneficial. Then he devotes a few paragraphs to an argument why the democratic party should take a stand for the dry law. He says:

"In the ratification of the amendment democratic leadership has been even more pronounced. The first eight states to ratify—Mississippi, Virginia, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Dakota, Maryland, Montana and Texas—every one supported the democratic ticket at the last presidential election. Will Nebraska prove an exception among the democratic states? Delaware, the ninth state to ratify, supported the republican party in the last presidential campaign, and the 10th state, South Dakota, did also, and when the list of 36 states is completed it is probable that the two parties will not be far apart in the number of states ratifying. I appeal to the democratic legislature not to allow Nebraska's name to be omitted from the roll of honor."

"If this legislature fails to ratify, there is no doubt that a legislature will be elected whose members will be committed in advance to ratification, but why compel this conflict when the sentiment of the state is known in advance? Why, by delay, save to the liquor trade more than $100,000,000 a month that will be available for food, clothing and shelter as soon as the saloon is abolished? Why invite the National Liquor Dealers' association and its ally, the German-American alliance, to insolently thrust themselves again into our politics? An affirmative vote by this legislature ends the contest for this year and for all time, and makes it possible for the voters of the state to devote themselves to the upbuilding of our great state and the welfare of its people."

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

Says Acid Stomach Causes Indigestion

Excess of hydrochloric acid sours the food and forms gases.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we eructate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead get from our pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing, and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Advertisement.
