

ONE WIFE HEREAFTER.

The Punishment of Polygamists as Designed by Edmunds.

Defining the Crime of Plural Marriage and the Penalty Thereof.

Miscellaneous Cohabitation to be Considered a Misdemeanor.

The Issue of such "Marriages," Born Prior to Next January, Legitimized.

The Full Bill As It Passed the Senate on Thursday.

Be it enacted, etc., That section 5352 of the Revised Statutes of the United States be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows, viz: Every person who has a husband or wife living in a territory or other place over which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction, and hereafter marries another, whether married or single, and any man who hereafter simultaneously or on the same day marries more than one woman in a territory over which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction, is guilty of polygamy, and shall be punished by a fine of not more than $500 or by imprisonment for a term of not more than five years, but this section shall not extend to any person by reason of any former marriage, whose husband or wife by such marriage, shall have been absent for five consecutive years, and is not known to such person to be living, and is believed by such person to be dead, nor to any person by reason of any former marriage which has been dissolved by a valid decree of a competent court, nor to any person by reason of any former marriage which shall have been pronounced void by a valid decree of a competent court on the ground of nullity of the marriage contract.

SECTION 2. That the foregoing provisions shall not effect the prosecution or punishment of any offense already committed against the section amended by the first section of this act.

SECTION 3. That if any male person in the territory or any other place over which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction, hereafter cohabits with more than one woman, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine, not more than $500, or by imprisonment, for not more than six months, or by both punishments at the discretion of the court.

SECTION 4. That the counts for any or all of the offenses named in the sections one and two of this act may be joined in the same information or indictment.

SECTION 5. That in any prosecution for bigamy, polygamy or unlawful cohabitation, under any statute of the United States; it shall be sufficient cause of challenge to any person, drawn or summoned as jurymen or talesmen; first, he is or has been living in the practice of bigamy, polygamy or unlawful cohabitation with more than one woman, or that he is or has been guilty of an offense punishable by either of the foregoing sections, or by section 5352 of the revised statutes of the United States, or the act of July 1st, 1862, entitled "An act to punish and prevent the practice of polygamy in the territories of the United States and other places, and disapproving and annulling certain acts of the legislative assembly of the territory of Utah; or second, that he believes it right for a man have to more than one living and undivorced wife at the same time, or to live in the practice of cohabiting with more than one woman, and any person appearing or offered as a juror or talesman, and challenged on either of the foregoing grounds, may be questioned on his oath, as to the existence of any such cause of challenge, and other evidence may be introduced, bearing upon the question raised by such challenge, and this question shall be tried by the court. But as to the first ground of challenge before mentioned, the party challenged shall not be forced to answer if he shall say upon oath that he declines on the ground that his answer may tend to criminate himself, and if he shall answer as to said first ground, his answer shall not be given in evidence in any criminal prosecution against him for any offense, named in section one or three of this act; if he declines to answer on any other ground, he shall be rejected as incompetent.

SECTION 6. That the president is hereby authorized to grant amnesty to such classes of offenders guilty of bigamy, polygamy or unlawful cohabitation before the passage of this act on such conditions and under such limitations as he shall think proper, but no such amnesty shall have effect unless the conditions thereof shall be complied with.

SECTION 7. That the issue of the bigamy or polygamous marriages known as Mormon marriages, in cases where such marriages have been solemnized according to the ceremonies of the Mormon church in any territory of the United States, and such issue shall have been since the 1st day of January, anno domini 1883, are hereby legitimized.

SECTION 8. That no polygamist, bigamist, or any person cohabiting with more than one woman, and no woman cohabiting with any of the persons described as aforesaid in this section in this territory or other place than that in which the United States has exclusive jurisdiction, shall be entitled to vote at any election held in such territory or any other place, or be eligible for election or appointment, or be entitled to hold any office or place of public trust, honor or emolument, in, under or for any such territory or place, or under the United States.

SECTION 9. That all registration offices of every description in the territory of Utah are hereby declared vacant, and each and every duty relating to the registration of voters, the conduct of elections, receiving or rejection of votes or canvassing and returning of the same and issuing certificates or other evidence of election in such territory, until otherwise provided, be made by the legislative assembly of said territory as hereinafter by this section provided, be performed under the existing laws of the United States or of said territory by the proper persons, who shall be appointed to execute such offices and perform such duties by a board of five persons to be appointed by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, not more of whom than three shall be members of one political party, and the majority of whom shall be a quorum. The members of the board, so appointed by the president, shall each receive a salary at the rate of $3,000 per annum, and shall continue in office until the legislative assembly of said territory shall make provision for the filling of such offices as are herein authorized. The secretary of the territory shall be the secretary of the said board and keep a journal of its proceedings and the attestation of said board, under its direction. The canvass and return of all votes at any elections in said territory for members of the legislature assembly thereof, shall also be returned to the said board, which shall canvass all such returns and such candidate of election to those persons who be eligible for such election shall appear to have been lawfully elected, which certificate shall be the only evidence of the right of such person to sit in such assembly; provided that no person shall be eligible to vote at the polls on account of any opinion such person may entertain on the subject of bigamy and polygamy, nor shall they refuse to count any such vote on account of the opinion of the person casting it, on the subject of bigamy or polygamy, but each house of such assembly, after the organization, shall have power to decide upon the elections and qualifications of its members and on or after the first meeting of said legislature assembly, whose members shall have been elected and returned, according to the provisions of this act, said legislature assembly may make such laws conformable to the organic act of the said territory and not inconsistent with the other laws of the United States as it shall deem proper concerning the filling of offices in said territory, declared vacant by this act.

Nearly a Miracle. E. Asenith Hall, Binghamton, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for several months with a dull pain through my left leg and shoulder. I lost my spirits, appetite and could with difficulty keep up my day. My mother procured some BURDICK BLOOD BITTERS; I took them as directed, and have felt no pain since the first week after using them, and am now quite well." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

WEDDING CUSTOMS. Some of the Marriage Observances in Early Times.

Curious Customs Regarding the Ring in Various Countries - Regulations Regarding the Conventional Ceremony.

Philadelphia Press.

"I entirely set my face against the extravagant expenditure now so fashionable at weddings," said a prominent clergyman yesterday, who was discussing a recent sacrifice at the hymenial altar, with a reporter of the Press.

"I certainly think that every solemnity is due to so sacred a rite as marriage, and that the occasion should be one of solemn rejoicing amidst the families thus to become united. It is the lavish display of attire on the part of the bride and guests, the large sums wasted on floral decorations and collations, the European honeymoon tours which are undertaken by couples whose marital means must necessitate the closest economy - these are the matters which I consider so reprehensible. In all such things the fashion has been set by people in society, whose wealth precluded pecuniary considerations; but the lavish imitation which has ensued frequently entails severe privations to parents, and often a load of debt on the shoulders of the newly-wedded pair."

While many sensible people will approve of the remarks made by the reverend gentleman, there is some excuse for the practice, when it is remembered that pomp, display, expenditure and public rejoicing have been in all ages and in every clime. Marriage, whether among the early Egyptians or ancient Romans, or our own European forefathers, and even among the aboriginal inhabitants of the countries now impregnated with civilization, have all ways been occasions of much festivity, and some of the quaint proceedings observed by different nationalities at various periods of their history, are of a very interesting description.

BARBARIC CUSTOMS.

Among the barbaric nations women were always regarded as the spoils of war, and the general mode of marriage was to capture a wife; the rape of the Sabine women is given as an illustration of this. Strange to say an imitation of this savage usage still exists in a very modified form in portions of Wales. It is customary with the peasantry for a bridegroom to assemble his friends and make a sham attack on another party of young men who surround the bride and pretend to be carrying her to the mountains. After much show of resistance the defenders of the lady give up the struggle and she is taken away in triumph by her lover. While on the subject of Welsh marriages it should be added that the approaching event is always advertised in the local papers, and strangers alike are invited to be present and contribute their quota toward the new household. Early English marriages were occasions of rejoicing. Some of the customs observed were of a nature which would greatly shock the refinement of the present day, but relics of such proceedings are still to be found in modern weddings. Satin favers worn by guests, for instance, represent the small pieces of the bride's garters, which were distributed among the groomsmen and pinned on the right breast. Bridesmaids and the descendants of the Saxon maidens, whose duties were to disrobe the bride. The throwing of old shoes was an intimation to the bride that henceforth she had no further claim on the home she had left. Flowers and rice showered at the pair are reminiscences of an unpleasant habit which was prevalent in eastern countries. The bridegroom was pelted with stones by the girl friends of the bride as a remonstrance against her leaving their ranks, and sometimes husband and wife were severely hurt.

THE WEDDING RING.

The ring necessary to Christian marriages is the most ancient of all observances, and one that is clearly traced to heathen sources. Romans, Greeks, Egyptians and many other ancient nations used wedding rings. They were made of iron, gold, brass and copper, and generally had some inscription inscribed upon them, such as "May you live long." "I bring good fortune to the wearer." Other rings which have been discovered in ancient sepulchres have keys engraved upon them, evidently as an indication of the wife's domestic authority. Among the Jews the marriage rings were generally jeweled. The wedding ring of Joseph and Mary, which was sold by a Jerusalem jeweler to Marcus by Eruria in 936, was composed of onyx or amethyst, a matter which can now be no longer satisfactorily settled, as some fifty Catholic churches possess a ring which is vouched to be the only and original ring worn by the Divine Mother. The Christian church made the placing of the ring on the woman's hand an imperative portion of the nuptial union, but, strange to say, while adopting the pagan custom, did not define the material of which the ring should be made, so that some ludicrous substances have done service in instances where the nervous bridegroom has forgotten to bring the necessary circlet in his waistcoat pocket. The church key and certain rings have more than once been brought into requisition, and a few years ago a wedding was solemnized in Boston at which the ring was a circle of kid cut from the bridegroom's glove. It is a curious story that a ring containing precious stones cannot be used; they were very fashionable in the Middle Ages, and even later. Mary, Queen of Scots, had three wedding rings, two in gold and the center one an entire circle of diamonds. Rings used to be placed on the bride's right hand, as is still the custom in Germany. In England, a century ago, marriage rings, although put on the second finger of the left hand at the church ceremony, were afterwards worn on the thumb. The society of Friends are among the few Christians who dispense with this symbol of the marriage relation, its heathenish origin being the alleged reason. Many Quaker ladies wear them, nevertheless. The old Puritans had the same prejudices as the Friends, and in "Hudibras" a passage refers to it as follows: Others were for abolishing That tool of matrimony, a ring. With which the necessitous bridegroom Is marry'd only to a thumb: (As wise as ringing of a pig That used to be ak up ground and dig.) The bride to nothing, but her wile That nulls the after-marriage bill.

Butler's verse gives the impression that wedding rings were worn on the thumb at a much earlier period than the reign of the Georges.

With our grandfathers it used to be customary whenever a man married an heiress to advertise that fact in the public papers. For instance: "John Brown to Miss Mary Jones and $20,000." Marriage in a smock was an old adage, which was observed by widows who had incurred debt and wished to remarry without encumbering their new husbands with their pecuniary burdens. It was supposed if a man took a wife with nothing on but a single garment, he would be freed from the risk of being sued for her ante-marriage debts, and within a few years a wedding took place in England at which the bride stood up at the altar to be married with nothing on her but a sheet wrapped around her form. Marriage under the gallows is another old law, now obsolete, by which a murderer escapes the death penalty if a woman expresses her willingness to marry him. In New York, in 1784, this actually occurred, but the man was subsequently hanged for the murder of the woman whose devotion saved his life on the previous occasion. Marriage by lot is still the rule among the Moravians, but persons who are chosen can refuse each other if they choose. The only exception to the latter rule is with missionaries, who occasionally send for wives from their distant stations. Some years ago a missionary in India wrote to the Bethlehem community, in this state, and having announced the demise of his spouse, requested that a second wife should be chosen and sent out to him, and added that he desired a stout, short helpmate, as his first wife was of that shape and stature and had left an excellent wardrobe behind her. He received the desired person.

MARRIAGE REGULATIONS.

Some strange laws for regulating and promoting marriages existed in the primitive colonies of the country. In 1695 the local authorities of Eartham, Mass., voted that every unmarried man in the township should marry six blackbirds or three crows yearly, or else single, and that as a penalty for not obeying the order, he should not get married until he had destroyed the requisite number in arrears.

A former tax in Maryland was five shillings yearly to every bachelor possessed of £100, and twenty shillings on all bachelors and widowers who own £300. It does not appear that spinsters or widows were ever taxed, probably from the reason that no woman refuses a chance if she can help it.

So much interesting matter could be written about the many forms and customs which have been observed at some time or place in the celebration of the most important happenings in the lives of every man and woman - marriage - that only a mere outline can be given in this article, but a few of the observances among the aboriginal inhabitants of North and South America are worth the telling, as the majority of the North American tribes, or the redskins, no man could marry in his own tribe under penalty of death. In Aztec Mexico, a young man consulted the oracles before he took a wife and after the ceremony he always carried his wife home on his back. The pagans of Peru had several wives, but the first one was supreme over the remainder. When a husband was desired the would-be husband went to the father's house and placed a peculiar sort of shoe on the foot of the lady with whom he was enamored. If she was a virgin the shoe was of wool, if a widow of rush. In the C. I. Islands it is customary for a newly-married pair to retire to the woods for a honeymoon and pass their time in hunting. In Cuba husband and wife had equal rights of divorce. Among the Ottomans an old man was always united to a young woman and a young man to an old woman, the reason of such union being that it was supposed that the discretion of age would curb the impetuosity of youth. With some South American Indians a virgin was never chosen for a wife. After marriage the strictest virtue was expected in wives. Squaws of all Indian natives whose husbands had been killed in war were permitted to choose a successor among the captives reserved for torture.

The Law of Kindness. Is universal; it affects all the human family, all animals, and may be even found in plant medicines. Some are drastic, and the patient is obliged to suffer pains worse than the disease; but in cases of obstinate constipation, dyspepsia, there is no remedy so kind, so gentle in its effects, and so satisfactory as BURDICK BLOOD BITTERS. Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

Mr. Noah Bates, Elkhart, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I had an attack of bilious fever, and never fully recovered. My digestive organs were weak, and I would be completely prostrated for days. After using two bottles of your Burdick Blood Bitters the improvement was so visible that I was astonished. I can now, though 61 years of age, do a fair and reasonable day's work."

C. Blacket Robinson, proprietor of The Canada Presbyterians, Toronto, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered greatly from recurring headaches, and I used your Burdick Blood Bitters with happiest results, and have felt no pain since first week after using them."

Mrs. Wallace, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "I have been subject to serious disorder of the kidneys, and unable to attend to business. Burdick Blood Bitters relieved me before half a bottle was used. I feel confident that they will entirely cure me."

E. Asenith Hall, Binghamton, N. Y., writes: "I suffered with a dull pain through my left leg and shoulder. I lost my spirits, appetite and color, and could with difficulty keep up all day. Took your Burdick Blood Bitters as directed, and have felt no pain since first week after using them."

Mr. Ira Mullinland, Albany, N. Y., writes: "For several years I have suffered from recurring bilious headaches, dyspepsia, and complaints peculiar to my sex. Burdick Blood Bitters

Mrs. J. G. Robertson, Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "I was suffering from general debility, want of appetite, constipation, and so that life was a burden; after using Burdick Blood Bitters I felt better than for years. I cannot praise your Bitters too much."

R. Gibbs, of Buffalo, N. Y., writes: "Your Burdick Blood Bitters, in chronic diseases of the blood, liver and kidneys, have been signally marked with success. I have used them myself with best results, for constipation of the liver, and in case of a friend of mine suffering from dropsy, the effect was marvellous."

Bruce Turner, Rochester, N. Y., writes: "I have been subject to serious disorder of the kidneys, and unable to attend to business. Burdick Blood Bitters relieved me before half a bottle was used. I feel confident that they will entirely cure me."

E. Asenith Hall, Binghamton, N. Y., writes: "I suffered with a dull pain through my left leg and shoulder. I lost my spirits, appetite and color, and could with difficulty keep up all day. Took your Burdick Blood Bitters as directed, and have felt no pain since first week after using them."
