THE LIVESTOCK MARKET

OMAHA, July 27.—CATTLE—Receipts of cattle today were estimated at 4,800 head, a good Wednesday run. A broad shipping demand developed for good handweight and heavy cattle and these kinds sold 10¢ to 15¢ and in some cases 25¢ higher than yesterday. Light steers and yearlings ruled steady to strong, the plain kinds about steady. Cows were uneven, mostly steady, rangers being slow sellers. HOGS—Only 6,300 hogs were received for today's trade and the market ruled higher but advances were paid by packers under protest and the general trade was rather quiet. Shippers bought desirable hogs early at prices 25¢ to 40¢ higher, but packers held off and finally put up their mixed droves at 15¢ to 25¢ advances. Best light hogs made a top of $10.85, and bulk of the entire receipts sold from $9.15 to $10.40.

SHEEP AND LAMBS—With 8,500 sheep and lambs here today fat lambs had to sell on an over basis, but other classes of stock held up in good shape. Lambs trade was quoted mostly 25¢ lower and sheep and feeders were fully steady. Best fat lambs dropped to $9.85 and pretty good natives sold at $9.00. Good fat ewes were reported at $5.25. A fair demand exists for feeders and sales of thin lambs were made up to $7.65@7.75.

ON THE ROAD WITH THE HERALD TRAVELER

Joe Peltz was born here and owns one hundred and sixty acres but is operating six hundred and forty acres. He has one hundred and fifty acres of wheat, twenty-five of oats, twenty-five of corn and thirty of spuds. Joe moved to Butler county a few years ago, but could not stay away, so he returned to his first love.

W. A. Clark came here from Iowa thirty-five years ago and owns six hundred and forty acres of land nine miles northeast of Hemingford. He has fifty acres of wheat, twelve of oats, fifteen of alfalfa, thirty-five of corn and fifteen of spuds. Mr. Clark says that diversified farming is the thing for this county, as the land must be changed to get best results.

R. C. Willard came from Minnesota last year and is operating six hundred and forty acres of land. He has one hundred and thirty-five acres of wheat, fifty of oats, twenty-five of barley, eighty-five of corn, thirty of spuds, eight of cane, twenty of sweet clover and seventy of alfalfa. Roscoe says that he likes this country much better than Minnesota, as the land farms much easier here and will produce more to the acre. He says this is the best crop he has ever raised and he is well satisfied here.

B. B. Barrows came here from Custer county four years ago and is operating two hundred and eight acres of land. He has fifty-eight acres of wheat, forty-nine of oats, forty of spuds and thirty head of hogs. Burton says that his crops this year is just a good average, and that spuds are the best paying crop to raise here.

Tom Tuck was raised in this county and owns four hundred acres of land. He has the cultivated land all leased out but keeps the grass land. He has ten head of cattle and seven horses. Tom is building a fine new house, doing all the carpenter work alone. It will have eight rooms and a partry and will be modern when completed.

W. R. Campbell came here from Montana four years ago and owns one hundred and sixty acres of land. He has forty-five acres of wheat, ten of barley, twenty of oats, ten of spuds, twenty-five head of hogs. He likes this country much better than Montana.

George W. Miller came here last spring from Dakota county. He is operating four hundred and eighty acres of land. He has forty-five acres of wheat, five of oats, sixty-five of corn and twelve acres of spuds. George was in the air service in France, for nearly two years, and was in a wreck that killed his flying partner and rendered him unconscious for several days. He likes the farming game very well.

John Jelinek came here thirty-six years ago from Butler county and homesteaded the place on which he now lives. He owns one thousand two hundred and eighty acres of land, but has retired from the operation of the farm, and turned the place over to his two sons, John and Joe. John is married and still lives at home. They have two hundred and ten acres of wheat, thirty of oats, twenty of barley, ninety-five of corn, eighteen of spuds, ten of alfalfa, one hundred and thirty head of cattle, ninety-five hogs and seventeen horses. Mr. Jelinek says that the farmers in this county must get to farming as they do in the east, by plowing deeper and earlier and to plant their crops more in season and to do diversified farming. They do the most of their farming with a tractor. They were heading grain when we called on them, cutting from thirty to thirty-five acres a day. Mr. Jelinek says when he came to this county he had an ox team and a few simple farming tools, but now he is out of debt and has a little something besides.

Josef Prochazka came here from Bohemia sixteen years ago and owns one thousand four hundred and forty acres of land. He has one hundred acres of wheat, forty of oats, forty of corn, sixty of alfalfa, five of buckwheat, fifty head of cattle, thirty hogs, twenty horses and forty hives of bees. He has about one thousand five hundred pounds of honey to sell at 15¢ per pound. Josef says this is as good a place to make money as any place in the world, and that hogs and corn are the best things for this country, where it is so far from market.

William L. McKillip came here five years ago from Iowa and is operating five hundred and sixty acres of land. He has forty acres of wheat, fourteen of oats, forty-five of corn, fourteen of spuds and 30 hogs. He says spuds, corn and hogs is the best proposition here. He says his crop this year is above an average.

Ralph Hopkins was born here and owns six hundred and forty acres of land. He has thirty acres of wheat, fifteen of oats, seventy of barley, one hundred and fifty of corn, thirty-five of spuds and one hundred and fifty hogs. Ralph says that spuds are the surest crop, but that one should do mixed farming and raise lots of hogs and corn.

B. B. Hopkins came here thirty years ago from Wisconsin, and owns five hundred and sixty acres of land, but has it leased to W. L. McKillip. He has quit the farming game himself and at the present time is living in Hemingford. Bert says that corn and hogs have done the best for him, but oats has always done well here.

Anton Ustohal came here from Butler county five years ago and owns four hundred and eighty acres of land. He has fifty-five acres of wheat, ten of barley, twelve of spuds and twenty-five of corn, ten of alfalfa, thirty hogs and thirty-one cattle. He says one can make more money here on the same capital than he can in Butler county, and that in his opinion hogs and corn is the surest and easiest money for one who lives a distance from town.

William Athey came here from Iowa seven years ago and owns one hundred and sixty acres of good land, and has it fixed up as the eastern farmers fix up their farms, all fenced and cross fenced, and everything is as neat as a Dutch kitchen. Will does all the work alone, but finds plenty to do on one hundred and sixty acres of land, and thinks if more farmers would farm less ground they would make more money. He says one should do mixed farming, and that he can make more money here than he could in Iowa, and likes the climate much better. He has thirty acres of wheat, eight of oats, ten of spuds, ten of corn, five of alfalfa and four of spuds.
