FARMERS STATE BANK AT BAYARD CLOSES DOORS

BAYARD—The Farmers State bank suspended operations on Tuesday of last week and refused to accept deposits throughout the day although all checks presented at the window were cashed until the supply of cash and currency on hand was exhausted, says the Bayard Farmers' Exchange. In fact the officers were ready to close the doors of the institution Monday but waited until Tuesday afternoon for a state bank examiner to arrive and authorize such action. Too much credit cannot be given Cashier Jake Abegg for the manner in which he has conducted the affairs of the bank during the past year. To him alone goes all of the credit of holding up the institution during the past twelve months and both stockholders and patrons are indeed grateful for the hard and conscientious work he put forth in tiding through its affairs up to the present time.

Fulmer Is Still Following Races at Habana, Cuba

Alliance friends of W. E. Fulmer, who is known and liked by all of the racing enthusiasts in this part of the country, will be interested in a letter recently received from him by Ed Bishop of this city. Mr. Fulmer is now at Habana, Cuba, following the racing game as a photographer, although he has been connected with other departments of this sport. He usually spends his winters at Habana or some other racing center, coming to the western states when the racing season opens here. His letter to Mr. Bishop reads, in part, as follows: "How are all the bunch? I trust everyone is well and doing fine. Had a letter from Nick Ronin (Fremont's veteran starter) and he says they are going to get up another circuit this year, but didn't give me any of the dates or particulars. How are things up there in your part of the country? Times are the hardest here that they have been in years, and money is sure tight. About the only loose change around is the money the tourists leave here as they pass through on the different excursions, and there is one or more every day, I guess, by way they pile out to the track and bob around town.

"The season is on in full blast now and although money is tight, they seem to dig it up from somewhere and spend it, and things keep on going just the same as hertofore, only not so much money is being thrown around as in other years.

"The ring (books) at the track are $250,000 loser this year right now and some of the bookies are quitting because they also have run out of money, but I think those that stick will wind up a little winner on the year yet. They come down like trained pigs and everyone seems to know the winner (except me), but I can't kick, as I am breaking about even with them because I am always trying to pick a long shot—and the favorites insist on coming home. I caught Little Gink the other day and he paid $120.20 for a two-dollar ticket and of course I only had a lone deuce on him, but it helped some, at that. Living and rooms have come down wonderfully here this winter and you can really live about the same as you can in the States if you get on to the ropes a little. My business has fallen off about a third so far, but I am hoping that it will pick up in time to get a stake for the summer.

"There was a big bunch of Elks through here last week and they sure put on a big town time for one day. They were on a boat going through the canal and on to Honolulu and back. I wish I were able to join one of the big excursion boats and just ride and ride—some life!

"Remember me to everyone."

Mr. Fulmer's present address is Apartado 2095, Habana, Cuba.

Judge Tash Finds Evidence Against Youth Is Too Weak

County Judge Tash, following a hearing in county court Monday afternoon, found the evidence in the case did not warrant a conviction of Lester Beal on a charge of assault and battery against the person of Lawson L. Inman, and the defendant was discharged.

Saturday afternoon Inman appeared before the county authorities and made complaint against Beal, alleging that the latter had attacked him without cause or provocation following a basketball game on the evening of Thursday, January 26. Beal was called into court by telephone by Sheriff Miller Monday and the case was heard.

Inman's testimony, which was described as vague by the court, was to the effect that he and Beal were strangers. They were seated near each other during the basketball game, and he was rooting pretty vociferously. Beal turned around and told him to shut up, he said. Nothing more was said, but at the close of the game he was inclined to resent it, and had told Beal that it took a good deal of nerve to talk that way. Thereupon, friends of the couple intervened. Later, at Tenth and Box Butte, they stopped on a vacant lot. He blacked Beal's eye, he said, and the latter struck him while he was getting his overcoat off. Someone had also stepped on his face, with serious damage to its appearance, but he was not inclined to blame Beal.

The defendant's testimony was to the effect that Inman was making cute remarks which seemed to apply to the young lady he was escorting. He had told Inman to shut up. Later, they had some words, and friends had prevented a fight. Inman had followed him, and they finally mixed it.

Judge Tash, after hearing the evidence, decided that Inman was the aggressor, having gone out of his way a block to follow Beal, and ruled accordingly. He did not rule on the question of which was victorious in the scrap.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH.

Three new members were received into the church Sunday morning; Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Passmore from Pearl church, Omaha, and Herbert N. Young from the Methodist church of Kenesaw.

The ladies' aid meets with Mrs. Pate, 808 Box Butte, Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Drake and Mrs. Yanders will be assistant hostesses.

Floyd Donovan is now president of the league and with his helpers is preparing a series of interesting league meetings. Next Sunday night they will begin the study of a story book entitled, "John Wesley, Jr."

BAPTIST CHURCH.

The pastor is kept busy these days visiting and ministering unto the sick, both at home and among the members and friends of the church. The calls for visits are coming in faster than we can accommodate them. However, let us be patient, as we go where we think we are needed the most. Owing to so many of our members being on the sick list, or kept home because of sickness in the family, the pastor will take the liberty of postponing the monthly business meeting one week, so Wednesday we will have a prayer meeting instead. The subject to be, "Why Should We Seek to Be Soul Winners." The new song, "Every One a Personal Worker," will be sung.

There will be no social at the church this week. Let those of us who are able do what we can to show our interest in the sick. Those who can might take their Sunday school papers to those who were not there. The B. Y. P. U. continues to improve, and several bouquets of flowers were sent to the sick this week by them. But let us not "say it with flowers" altogether, let us pay a personal visit.

We are preparing to receive as guests the Alliance Volunteer Fire department next Sunday evening. The orchestra will play, and special songs will be given by the choir.

B. J. MINORT, Pastor.

Tanlac's world wide fame is due to its merit. It does the work. F. E. Holsten. 19

Tonight's feature at the Imperial is "The Passionate Pilgrim," from the novel by Samuel Merwin. Matt Moore and Ruby de Reymer take the leading roles in the story of Henry Calverly, an author, who to protect his mother-in-law from the consequences of an involuntary crime, sends her away and is himself sent to prison for three years. His wife, her daughter, soon dies. Assuming the name of Stafford, he begins life anew as a reporter on his release and is assigned to interview the mayor, Tim McIntyre, who is in league with the trustees of the rich Cantey estate of which Miriam Cantey a beautiful invalid daughter of the testator, is the guiding mind. When Stafford's story is published, McIntyre causes him to be discharged. Miriam prevails upon Stafford to write a biography of her father and during that period they fall in love with each other.

Wednesday's attraction is "Little Miss Hawkshaw," with Eileen Percy. An irate nobleman ejects his daughter, Patricia, from his castle because she married the son of a blacksmith. Patricia leaves for America, while her husband is placed under arrest at the order of the nobleman. In mid-Atlantic a baby is born to the grief-stricken woman. She dies, leaving the baby in care of an old sailor. Eighteen years later little Patricia is seen in New York as the mistreated foster-daughter of the seaman, and figuring as a "newsboy." The plot develops rapidly until the heroine discovers that she not only is heiress to a rich estate, but the possessor of a true man's heart.

Thursday and Friday "The Man From Lost River" will be shown. The stars are House Peters, Fritz Brunette and Allen Forrest. The story pictures the trials of a powerful, patient lumber camp foreman in "standing by" the girl he loves while a weak nephew of a millionaire marries her, neglects her and eventually proves his utter unworthiness. An act of providence strips all the characters in the play to their fundamental finess or baseness, at the same time that wickedness receives its just reward.

Raid in Little Mexico Sole Job for the Police

The past few days have been quiet in police circles, the only thing that broke the monotony of days without a capture being a search of the bunk cars in Little Mexico yesterday afternoon. The freight crews reported a number of leather cushions from way cars missing, and city, county and Burlington police made a leisurely search. They discovered seven cushions, the number that had been reported missing, and these were turned over to the storehouse. No arrests were made, it being understood that the Mexicans simply borrowed them from the cars.
