Mr. Tobin Got Left.

Last Friday some one was very glad to see the services of Mr. Tobin at the depot. Mr. Tobin was taking it slow and easy with the train. South of Broken Bow Mr. Tobin went to one of the stores and got a half dozen dollars out of the depot to get some tea for his wife, thinking that the train stopped here ten minutes. While at the store Mr. Tobin had this conversation:

"I want some tea," he said to the clerk, "I want some tea in this hot weather."

"That's a fact," said the clerk, "and so many other things would be nice, but I'm glad you want tea."

Mr. Tobin then proceeded to ask the clerk a question that would be apt to interest any one who has been in the country long enough to know what it is to be hungry. He asked the clerk:

"What is the matter with the food around here?"

"Well, sir," said the clerk, "you know that there is a change of government this year, and we have had a great deal of trouble with the food."
