LONG live King Ak-Sar-Ben XIX. Dame Rumor tells me, on perfectly good authority, that the next king has not yet been told of the great honor in store for him. The committee of Board of Governors who have decided this momentous question for the populace of the land of Quivera have decided not only to surprise the people, but will also surprise the new king.

There is one alarming difficulty about this surprise—the king must have shoes suitable to royalty made of white kid. Now the difficulty is to find out the correct size for his royal highness. The shoes have to be made to order, as they must be unusually fine and must match the costume. Last year his royal highness had to walk the entire length of the Coronation hall wearing white kid shoes just one size too small.

This year they are taking quite a chance, as the king's shoes are white sandals, to be laced quite high, and the only thing to do was to guess at the size.

The king is to be told Thursday evening of the great honor in store for him, and the next evening he will be crowned, so he will have but one evening in which to suffer stage fright. There will be one consolation. This year the king and queen are to be brought in on litters carried by stalwart Barbarians who have proved to be loyal subjects.

SYNOD TO BE A LIVELY ONE

Nebraska Presbyterians Have Important Matters Coming Up. MODERATOR STONE TO BE HERE

Relative to the controversy over title to the lands within the right-of-way of the Union Pacific, acting under orders of the executive committee of the board, President A. L. Mohler has issued a circular, setting forth the plans which the company proposes to pursue. In this circular, President Mohler says: "It has been brought to the attention of this company that a misapprehension exists in some localities as to the contentions and policy of the company concerning the titles to lands held or claimed to be held in private ownership within the limits of the rights of way granted to its predecessor companies by acts of congress. The company intends to defend its title to the full extent of the right-of-way so granted against trespassers and persons claiming possession only by virtue of the operation of statutes of limitation. But, notwithstanding the decisions of the United States supreme court to the effect that the title to the right-of-way was of such character that it could not be alienated by the grantee, the company does not intend to assert title to any lands within the limits of the right-of-way granted by congress which have voluntarily been conveyed by this company or its predecessor companies, but intends to recognize the validity of all titles so acquired."

Indications are said now to be for a very interesting contest on the selection of moderator of the synod. Two men are in the field; not of their own motion, but on that of friends, Rev. Alexander Corky, the pastor-author of Wayne, and Rev. Mr. Campbell of Wakefield, who is a comparatively recent acquisition from the Methodist ministry. His newness in Presbyterianism as compared with the life-long affiliation of Rev. Mr. Corky is urged by some as a reason for preferring the latter.

The most delicate matter of business which the synodical delegates expect to come before them is the reopening of the synodical college proposition.

Only One Now. Pursuant to action of the synod a few years ago, Hastings college is maintained as the synodical school of the state. Bellevue used to be and its friends are said to be anxious to have it restored to such auspices, proposing to divide the state for the purposes of such support between Hastings and Bellevue. Those who think the state should maintain but one synodical college oppose this, pointing out that under present arrangements Bellevue receives a good deal of Presbyterian support in Nebraska.

The contest for moderatorship is said to have a bearing on the college situation. Rev. Mr. Campbell is regarded as the special candidate of many most actively urging Bellevue's claims before the synod, although Dr. Corky, whose name is included in the faculty at Bellevue as a lecturer on sociology, is not, of course, regarded as in any way unfriendly to Bellevue.

The Bee has been advised of the possibility of Dr. Alexander Mackenzie, secretary of the Presbyterian college board, coming out from New York to aid in Bellevue's cause, as he is a special friend of that college. This, however, seems uncertain at present.

According to some of the whole college question may be withheld. This, it is known, would meet the wishes of many who are anxious to avoid anything tending toward dissension between colleges highly esteemed generally in the synod.

Another possible development has to do with restoring the state to the basis of a synodical superintendent. Since the advancement of Rev. W. H. Kearns from that office to district field secretary with a territory comprising this and other northwestern Nebraska, Nebraska Presbyterians have been without a separate synodical superintendent and some favor returning to the former basis, inasmuch as their work is said to require and justify it. The opposition to this change rests somewhat upon the ground of extra expense involved, it is understood. Whether anything will come of the matter at this session of the synod is not now apparently very certain.

Mohler Explains the Position of the Union Pacific

Recruit With Glass Eye Would Enlist

The stranger entered the navy recruiting office. "Want to enlist, mister?" the stranger said, when he was noticed. "Good and strong-worked in lumber camps, loaded cars, worked in icehouses—good and strong." He took a seat and for a moment mentally saw himself on the way to the San Francisco training station. In the meanwhile he intently regarded the chart that hangs on the wall. When asked to read the letters he read with remarkable speed. In fact, with such remarkable speed that the recruiting officers marveled and changed the chart. "The stranger read with the same lightning speed, but the letters were not in the same position as on the former chart. He was not aware of that, however, and went right ahead, reading without hesitation letters that were not there. It was then noticed that one of the stranger's eyes was not. Examination proved the eye to be glass. He had the notion that a man must squint one eye when shooting and he said he could just go ahead and squint the "game" eye. But the recruiting officers could not see it that way.

Ministers Laugh at Joke on Them

While some of the ministers who ate ice cream flavored with rum at their Anti-Saloon league dinner at the University club Monday noon, are a trifle peeved at the thought that someone fed them such a mixture, the vast majority of them took the whole thing as a good joke on themselves and are laughing it off among themselves. "Well, if there was rum in it," said F. A. High, the Anti-Saloon league superintendent of the Omaha district, "I can say that I have eaten worse ice cream than that many a time. It was pretty good."

WRITER OF THREATENING LETTER IS ARRESTED

Wad Gum, colored, of Kansas City, Mo., was arrested on the carnival grounds Tuesday afternoon by Detectives Dunn and Fleming and is being held for the federal authorities, who charge him with sending a threatening letter through the mails. During the carnival week of last year Gum, together with a negro woman, was forced to leave the city mainly through the testimony offered by Dunn and Fleming as to their "occupation." A week later Dunn received a letter from Kansas City signed by Gum and containing the information that he was coming back and would shoot either of the men on sight. While trailing through the carnival Dunn spied and arrested the man before he could create any disturbance. He was turned over to the government officials this morning.

MANY INQUIRE AS TO THE KNOW-OMAHA CAMPAIGN

The campaign which the bureau of publicity of the Omaha Commercial club has been waging in "Know Omaha" for the last year or more is attracting widespread attention. There is not a day goes by in which Manager E. V. Parrish does not receive one or more letters from various parts of the country wanting him to explain how the campaign was carried on. Tuesday a letter was received from George A. Forrester of the Kansas City Commercial club and another from O. H. Barnes of the Chamber of Commerce of Belle Fourche, S. D.

Church May Be Able to Collect on Its Insurance Policy

It became evident that Plymouth Congregational church, whose building was destroyed by the tornado March 23 shortly before 5 o'clock, a few hours after the expiration of an insurance policy which covered loss by windstorm, has a chance to collect the amount of the policy in the courts when Judge Sutton of the district court overruled a demurrer, which would, if sustained, have thrown the case out of district court. Judge Sutton held that if it can be proved that it is the custom of insurance companies to renew policies without notice from the insured in time to prevent any lapse of protection at the time of expiration of an old policy and if knowledge of that custom was a part of the consideration which induced the insured to take out the policy the insurance company is liable for the loss incurred by the congregation of the church.

SUITCASE IS STOLEN FROM DR. JENNIE COLLFAS' CAR

Dr. Jennie Callfas has reported to the police that a suitcase containing wearing apparel and music, which she was to use at the meeting of the grand chapter of the Eastern Star, was stolen Monday afternoon as she left her car a few moments in front of a downtown store. She is offering a liberal reward for its return as she is unable to duplicate the missing articles in time for the St. Louis festivities.

Fashion Hint

By LA RACONTEUSE.

Good taste demands that in an evening dress compounded of such rich materials as flame silver cloth and turquoise mirror velvet the lines be as simple as possible.

The upper part of silver cloth with a design of gold shows the low cut of the season on the kimono lines with three-quarter sleeves and a small modish collar of silver embroidery. It is fastened over the bust by a kumog wheel capochron of silver, semicircularly embroidered with turquoise beads. Long cords of silver silk hang in front. The low part of the dress is of turquoise velvet, cut with a turned front, the fulness being tightened at the bottom, which is plain and finished by a small pointed train.
