

DRESHER BROS. IN NEW BOOTH

Brandeis Store Consents to Place Dresher Receiving Station at Entrance of Pompeian Room.

Busy Dep't in Busy Store. Dreshers Already Submerged with Spring Cleaning Work.

Dresher Brothers, the Cleaners & Dyers, with the $57,000 plant at 2211-2213 Farnam St., are ever on the alert to bring their excellent art to the fore and with that end in view have prevailed upon the management of The Brandeis Stores to again place the Dresher branch receiving station at its original position at the entrance to the ever lively and palatial Pompeian Room.

So, when you again visit that metropolitan store please note that Dreshers have switched places. Think of the Pompeian Room—think of Dreshers—and find the Dresher booth right as you go into the Pompeian Room from the store proper.

Dresher's plant is undergoing its annual spring rush of business—most everybody is sending in something or other to be cleaned—last year's Spring or Fall Suit or Dress— to be cleaned, or dyed, or altered, or all three. They do this so as to be quite in readiness for Easter Sunday and the Spring season which is not so far away. Easter this year occurs on April 4th and time flies, you must admit it.

When sending in your Spring clothes you might also send in your rugs, curtains, drapes, hangings, etc. May as well get winter's mustiness out of them. Have them crisp, fresh, new, and in sanitary condition for the warmer weather that's coming.

Dreshers are inviting the attention of out-of-town trade more than ever, now that Dreshers pay the return charges on any sized bundle to any point in America. This makes it easy for out-of-towners. Don't stay without the premier service of cleaners who "know how" simply because you happen to reside away from Omaha.

By the way, Dreshers issue a handsome illustrated booklet and price list which they would be pleased to send free to out-of-town folks. Send for it and see what a modern, $57,000 plant looks like anyway. Just address your letter to Dresher Brothers, Dresher Building, Omaha, and it will reach us.

Or, if you live in town you cannot use the phone any too often to suit Dreshers. Just call Tyler 345—it's a private exchange and you will get the promptest kind of attention. Remember—it's time to send in Spring clothes—to be cleaned as only Dreshers can clean them.

TALKS ABOUT GOOD ROADS

Prof. Chatburn, Before the Commercial Club, Predicts Farmers Will Soon Use Auto Trucks.

TRANSPORTATION OF FUTURE

Some day big gasoline trucks will be common carriers throughout the rural districts, and will be carrying the farmers' produce to town, and bringing his supplies to him, asserted Prof. George Chatburn of the University of Nebraska, who spoke at the Commercial club at noon. Prof. Chatburn predicted that when the day of good roads all over the country comes, the big trucks will be as common as jitney buses are in Omaha, or more so. It will then be cheaper for the farmer to have the truck do his heavy hauling than to keep teams and wagons. That, he said, will be good hard roads everywhere, he admitted.

The professor spoke of the importance of good roads to the community and to every phase of life. He talked of the possibility of distributing equitably the burden of taxation necessary to build good roads. He admitted that this is always a problem.

"If we could put good roads all over the United States at once," he said, "there would be no question about who should pay for them. It would make little difference if they were paid for out of the nation's general fund. But so long as only small strips are built at a time, the question of who is most benefited is a big one."

"My idea is that in a case of this kind the locality should pay about four-tenths of the expense, the county three-tenths, the state two-tenths and the nation one-tenth. That would make the tax-tenths and I believe that is an equitable distribution of the burden."

Prof. Chatburn called attention to the fact that the nation has given billions to the work on harbors, and that it might well spend similar amounts on its roads, which are the means of primary transportation, while the harbors are only a factor in secondary transportation. "The cost of the Panama canal," he said, "would have built 40,000 miles of good roads at a cost of $10,000 a mile. In other words, it would have built ten trunk lines of hard road across the continent."

Dr. Epstein at the Jewish Synagogue

Dr. B. Epstein will speak this evening at 8 at the Jewish synagogue, Eighth and Chicago streets, on "What is the Future of the Jewish Nation, and What is the National Fund?" Dr. Epstein, who comes from Cologne, Germany, on behalf of the Jewish national fund, has been doing organization work for the fund, especially in Russia. The disturbance of Zionist work in Europe has induced the national fund headquarters to transfer him to the United States, pending the war. He received a rabbinical training in Russia and is a graduate of the University of Marburg, where he studied under Prof. Hermann Cohen. He speaks several languages. As an organizer and appreciates systematic propaganda and organization. Wherever he goes he organizes well disciplined groups devoted to the national fund work and fires them with enthusiasm.

The "opportunity for American manufacturers at the present time" was dwelt upon by President John W. Gamble of the Omaha Manufacturers' association Friday, when Mr. Gamble gave his inaugural address. New officers were installed and home patronage plans were discussed. The association advocated a campaign of painting delivery wagons, sprinkling wagons and other vehicles with the "Buy It in Omaha" slogan. A campaign of advertising of some comprehensive extent is being formulated by the manufacturers.

Police authorities today will attempt to revoke the license of Tony Vetele, keeper of a pool hall at 1108 South Thirtieth street, as well as to prosecute him for abetting the escape of three chicken thieves being pursued by a policeman. Officer Nick Herbolich early this morning saw three men emerge from the chicken coop of Dan Kennedy, keeper of the Western league ball grounds, who lives at 147 South Sixteenth. The men were carrying half a dozen chickens, and the policeman ordered them to stop. Instead they commenced to run and the officer followed them as far as the pool hall, which they entered.

Col. Welsh Accuses "Dad" Weaver of Base Ingratitude

Ingratitude! That's what Colonel Welsh of the weather bureau calls it.

For many years he has been predicting Omaha weather and giving the city and state as good a climate as he knows how, and providing ideal weather for Ak-Sar-Ben week—sometimes.

And what's the result? What thanks does he get? What appreciation is shown for his toil and self-sacrifice?

A child could answer. J. D. Weaver, better known as "Dad," comes into the colonel's office a few weeks ago and inquires what kind of weather can be expected this year between September 22 and October 9.

"Dad" is the secretary to the King of Q's, and he is anxious for good weather during the great annual festival.

Filled with misgivings. Perhaps his heart was filled with misgivings at the remembrance of former years when the week was somewhat marred by interference from Duke Pluvius and Old Boreas.

But what the colonel doesn't like is that "Dad" came to him bearing the olive branch of trust, and the colonel told him in no low slangy sense—but he received him and treated him as a friend and broke bread with him, or would have done so if there had been any bread around the office to break.

And the colonel told him, to the very best of his ability as meteorological science had given him light, just what to expect about that time of the year.

And he sent "Dad" on his way rejoicing. So he thought, alas!

Now for the sequel, the "denouement." What did "Dad" do?

Dad trifled. Did he go back to the afternoon of the royal court and report to the royal gauge keeper that Colonel Welsh had promised that there should be some sort of fair or possibly foul weather during the festival?

Not a bit of it. "Dad" went right back to the court and summoned the royal stenographer and dictated a letter to one—oh, must the words be said? Yes. Well, then, to Eli R. Hicks, who has long been set up in business as a weather prophet and hurricane steerer in Saint Looney.

And the royal stenographer did write and seal the said communication to the alleged foreign weather prophet, and did place thereupon a 2-cent stamp, and did deposit same in a United States postoffice for transmission through the United States mails (as they say in the Matters trial).

That's what "Dad" did. And ain't it enough? Here is a great organization whose cardinal principle is the boosting of Omaha and Omaha industries.

And what does it do itself? Goes outside for dope. Sends to Saint Looney for its weather.

Can anything be imagined more contradictory, more antithetical, as it were? Nothing can.

Colonel Welsh finds consolation in the flax that followed the effort to import a foreign brand of weather. The letter "Dad" received from the person who has been named above and who resides in Saint Looney is the colonel.

is as barren of weather information as a chicken's mouth is of teeth. But, oh, how sharper than a serpent's tooth is ingratitude," he said.

The colonel is going to TRY to forget it. Yes, he is going to try. It is his duty. But—

Why You Lose Your Hair

All soaps are made of vegetable or animal oils or fats, combined with lye or caustic. Most soaps, especially animal fat soaps, shaving soaps, etc., make a very penetrating lather and, if used for a shampoo, soaks the hair fibre full of soapy suds. The hair is a long time drying and even when dry, much soap is left within the hair. This soap gradually breaks down or disintegrates, releasing the lye which eats into the hair, rotting it and making it fall out or break off.

Lee's Shampoo is different. By using a neutral soap made of vegetable oils, olive, cottonseed and coconut. In proper proportion, and combined with pure grain alcohol, glycerine, distilled water and antiseptic, aromatic oils, we get a liquid shampoo that goes direct to the scalp, cleanses thoroughly and quickly of all grease, dirt and dandruff, does not soak the hair fibre full of suds, dries in one-half to one-fourth the time of any other, leaving the scalp clean and the hair soft and fluffy, free from surplus soap.
