ZIEBEL TRIAL NEAR AN END

Two More Addresses and Jury Gets Case.

INSANITY THEORY BY DEFENSE

Testimony on that Line Exclusively, but Court Asked for Instructions with Regard to Self-Defense and Accident.

August Ziebell may know what is in store for him by tonight for the trial is nearly done. Opening addresses were made yesterday afternoon by Deputy County Attorney Coak for the state and H. G. Meyer for the defense. A. S. Ritchie and County Attorney English will argue this morning.

The defense introduced only witnesses to prove Ziebell of unsound mind yesterday and none of these touched on the shooting. Most of the afternoon was occupied by Ritchie in an argument for a directed verdict and for instructions regarding self defense and an accidental homicide. All of these points will be replied to and ruled on by the court today.

Ziebell Had Peculiar Notions.

Some or mad, Ziebell entertained some peculiar notions. Testimony in behalf of the defendant Thursday morning developed the fact that he thought his head was as big as Omaha, that being 60 years of age, someone had to pay him $4 a week, no matter whom, that American women have too great a fondness for dynamite, and that a workman on the bridge north of where the drowning occurred, in a statement made yesterday afternoon he testified that he saw the boy alone in the canoe pass under the bridge a few minutes before he heard the call for help.

Former Boone Editor Dead.

BOONE, Ia., June 3.—(Special.)—Word received in this city yesterday from Kansas City tells of the death of a former editor, Edwin G. Erwin, of this city. ALDRICH AND STONE CLASH

"That statement bearing upon the German report as it did, was necessarily made with reference to that report, the document which the German government had furnished."

Mr. Aldrich said he did believe the course of the German manufacturers had been pursued with a view of affecting American legislation. Mr. Aldrich then rehearsed the entire incident and said he had been at a loss to account for Mr. Stone's intention in the matter unless he appeared as a representative of the German government. This intimation made Mr. Stone mad. His face flushed and there was far more than the usual animation in his reply. His manner was tense, his language terse. "That statement," he said, "is an impertinence, and apparently feeling that his characterization was being strong enough, he added: 'Yes, it is worse than an impertinence.'"

Mr. Stone had been interrupted in Mr. Aldrich's speech and apparently without losing his temper he proceeded with his recital of the details of the whole transaction, concluding with a statement which had reference to the Missouri senator.

"Now," he said, "he may explain why he takes such a great interest in the matter if he cannot do so in his own words. Mr. Stone, manifesting his resentment of Mr. Aldrich's effort to connect him with the occurrence, said: 'I am an American and I represent American interests on this floor as much as does the senator from Rhode Island and I resent his effort to place a stigma upon me. I repeat that my expression in an impertinence, a gross impertinence.' He declared there had been absolutely no excuse for Mr. Aldrich's statement concerning himself. 'I do not call on him to retract,' he continued, 'but I do say that no senator should make such an utterance of affront to a great and friendly power as was originally made by this matter.'"

Administration for Germans. Mr. Stone said the German government could not, itself, directly, nor through any of its diplomatic representatives, call the senate to answer 'for what has taken place in that body.'"

"It is for that reason," continued the Missouri senator, "and that the German government and people may understand that the senator from Rhode Island in what he says and the senator from New York, Mr. Dewey, who spoke in the same fashion, stand alone in the senate of the United States and in this matter do not have the sympathy or the support of their colleagues, that I have brought this matter up here."

MONTREAL, Quebec, June 3.—At a special convocation of the governors of McGill university this afternoon, the degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, Gifford Pinchot, chief of the forestry service of the United States, and Dr. James Earl Russell, dean of the teachers' college of Columbia university, New York.

BOYS AND GUNS KILL TWO. Pair of Tragedies Result from Handling of Firearms by Children. SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 3.—(Special.)—The accidental shooting and killing of Floyd McCormick, aged 15, by his brother, Cecil, aged 14, on a farm north of Sioux Falls in the west end of Lake county, was attended by unusually distressing circumstances. The boys had been hunting with a 22-caliber rifle and had returned to the house, where they cleaned the weapon. Cecil, unaware that his brother had placed a cartridge in the weapon after it had been cleaned, grasped the gun and cocked it, intending to playfully snap it at his brother. The bullet struck Floyd in the breast at close range and pierced his heart. He called for his father and then crawled into a bedroom where his mother lay with a 6-days-old baby, and died on the floor before his mother's eyes. For some time both the mother and the boy who caused his brother's tragic death were in a critical condition as the result of the accident.

While he and another boy were playing with a rifle, the weapon was accidentally discharged in some unknown manner, killing the 11-year-old son of E. C. Harrison, cashier of the Glenham State bank of Glenham, Warren county. At the scene of the accident the weapon was in the hands of Harvey Wilson, aged 9, a playmate of the unfortunate little fellow. The bullet struck young Harrison squarely in the heart, causing instant death.

Levi Ward Killed by Train. BEATRICE, Neb., June 3.—(Special Telegram.)—A man supposed to be Levi Ward, who has been working at the stone quarry of Davis & Mayne, east of Wymore, was killed by Burlington train No. 15 near the bridge over the river at that place this morning. The body was mangled beyond recognition. An empty half pint bottle which had contained whisky was found near the body. The coroner is holding an inquest.
