Assurances not Realized. Since Harrison was elected an assurance of prosperity to American industries, sixty-five woolen manufacturers and dealers in Philadelphia alone have failed, their failure being attributed to the tariff on raw materials. Strictly Personal Matters. It was Mr. Blaine who once said that "the man who would put his name on the dutiable list was a born fool." If he goes around the republican committee rooms talking that way now he may find those who think he is personal. Comparisons are Odious. The ways and means of the McKinley committee remind us in some respects of the ways and means of the average confidence man.

THE DAILY CITIZEN.

FLORIDA EXPECTS SOON to be the greatest lemon growing country in the world. Lemons weighing nearly a pound each are common there.

ONE WHO mingles freely in the world of society finds frequently men (and women) whose etiquette is scrupulously paid, while gross ignorance of the weightier matters of genuine good breeding is betrayed in speech and conduct.

RHODE ISLAND adds her testimony to the benefit of the new ballot. It struck the same sledge hammer blow at the boss which it has in Massachusetts. The feelings of the helpless Hill-ridden citizens of New York, at progress all about them, in which they can have no part, may well indeed be regarded as pitiful.

THERE is some thought of publishing the daily maps of the recent storm on a large scale for use in schools and colleges. It was a typical storm, its growth and movement illustrating the laws of atmospheric disturbance, in a way very seldom seen in actual observation. Its outlines spread gradually in nearly a perfect circle, its progress, day by day, was by almost exactly even stage, and its rain area was defined by lines on which weather science has based its pet laws of precipitation.

JUST FIVE years ago, the thirteenth of April, THE DAILY CITIZEN made its first appearance. To-day it celebrates its birthday. It has been the constant effort of the editors in the past to make it the representative paper of the city, and with the beginning of the sixth volume those efforts will be renewed. THE CITIZEN will always be found advocating and representing those things which will contribute to the future prosperity of Asheville and it will be its endeavor to be always at the front.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH.

The most conclusive test of a country's progress is the enlightenment of its people through popular education. The value of a city's commerce or industries sink into insignificance when compared with that of its public schools. They are the unerring barometers that foretell the success or failure, and gauge the standing of a community. It was hard for the South at first to realize this. There were enough private schools and academies for the children of those who could afford to patronize them. As for the rest what did it matter? They were better off without an education. It would unfit them for their altered station in life. This was ever the universal argument.

The chairman of the school committee in a large Southern city recently said to the writer: "Before the war, and for several years after it, I would have seen this town swept by a pestilence sooner than to have witnessed the introduction of public schools. Finally I became convinced that I was in the wrong, and that free education was the one thing needed to enable us to keep up with the procession. I am proud to say that I was man enough to acknowledge my error. Since that day I have neglected my own business in order to attend to school work; and now, sir, I offer that (pointing to a handsome new public school building containing three hundred children) as the best evidence we have to show of our city's progress."

This sentiment prevails to-day to a greater or less extent in every Southern city, and most of them point with pride to public school buildings that are fully equal to those of the North in appearance and equipment. The same cannot, however, be said of the rural districts of the South; but the leaven of city influence is working, and the desire for education is gradually permeating the entire community. Even now, in proportion to their wealth, the Southern States are devoting more money to educational purposes than those of any other section of the country. Another generation will see public schools, equal to those of New England, established in every school district of the South. Then, with her enormous resources intelligently developed, she will occupy a position abreast, if not in advance, of the other enlightened, progressive and wealthy communities of the world.

After Noop.

Richmond Times. Once upon a time, after a great deal of thought and pains, a man taught his horse to eat nothing but shavings, by placing green goggles over his eyes. They were economical food, but as soon as the horse had learned to eat them he died. Republican managers are trying to teach gradually their party to feed on protective tariff shavings. The party may learn to do so, but its already emaciated condition points to a death similar to that of the fabled horse. But perhaps the green goggles may be smashed before starvation ensues.

Assurances not Realized.

A SUNDAY SERMON.

DR. RANKIN'S TALK AT THE FIRST METHODIST.

The Attention of the Audience is Held by the Pastor With His Eloquent Address From the Text, Fools Make a Mock at Sin.

Rev. Dr. Rankin preached to an immense congregation at the Central M. E. church, South, yesterday morning. His text was, "Fools Make a Mock at Sin;" Proverbs 14-9.

"In the common scriptural acceptance of the term," said the speaker, "a fool is a man who acts without wisdom. The Psalmist tells us the fool has said, 'There is no God.' This is the most unmitigated type of un wisdom, and I rejoice that there are but few such. Even the skeptic and the infidel have some kind of God, and he acknowledges his ignorance on the subject, and does not deny it. There are too many evidences of the divine existence for intelligent men to deny that there is a God. He may not be my kind or your kind, but there is a God who elicits some homage from all."

"People who tamper with sin are foolish. They do not act with the same forethought in moral affairs as in business. Let us look at the criminality of sin, and we will be convinced that it is foolish to mock at anything so palpable in life as it is."

"What is sin? In the very conception of the thought it is a violation of God's word. Right in the elementary step sin antagonized the law of God. However ignorant he may be, every man has some appreciation of things right and wrong. The book of Revelation has the purest law ever applied to human life. If a man violates that law he violates the Divine will. The purpose and tendency of sin is to cause absolute distrust of God, and make Him a liar."

"When we falsify God we destroy self and violate God's law. I don't mean exceptional disobedience for even in our best states we don't do right at all times, and God makes allowances for these occasional falls. I have a great sympathy for a man who is down now and then, and he deserves the pity of all. What I mean is a malignant kind of heart, one that makes no effort, and goes through life making God a liar. Sin is a perversion of our faculties. God made man upright and with perfect harmony of intellect and heart. Sin came as a foreign element and disturbed all this harmony. That is what sin is doing to-day. Its purpose and work is to disorganize and demoralize. Sin curtails our destiny. If God has given us a world like this we are led to infer that it is only the vestibule to a higher state of being. The life above is the complement of this life. Sin breaks into this and brings us down to the level of a brute."

"Sin is corrupting to the nature. It is like small pox. In that dread disease there first comes a small white speck which we don't fear. It spreads until the body is a mass of corruption. Sin may be mild at first and we may see nothing to repel. It steals on and includes the spirit, the mind and heart, and the entire nature becomes dominated by it. There is nothing so effective against sin as the word of God. The world can never suggest anything that can do more for us than the world to save sinners. Hence I say there is no salvation outside of Him."

The Mayor's Court.

Adolphus Garren was before Mayor Blanton this morning, charged with carrying a pistol. He pleaded guilty and was assessed $5. William Williams was charged with using vulgar and profane language and was fined $5 and costs amounting to 50 cents. He flung down his money and started out of the room indignantly, but was called back by the Mayor, who ordered him to be locked up for a while for contempt. Britt Powell, charged with disorderly conduct, was dismissed on payment of costs. Another case of drunk and disorderly was called but the offender failed to appear and forfeited $5 bond which he had put up for his appearance.

NORTH CAROLINA NOTES.

Winston manufacturers shipped 84,000 pounds of tobacco in one day. A seventeen year old boy at China Grove tips the scales at 247 pounds.

The Salem Female Academy will graduate a class of thirty-eight young ladies this year. A good livery stable with nice horses and good conveyances is sadly needed in Elk Park.

A biting frost in the vicinity of Charlotte on Friday morning last did much damage to early vegetables. The electric street lights at New Bern have been turned on and the most sanguine expectations were realized.

During a trial at Edenton and while Hon. Chas. Price was addressing a jury a negro jurymen fell dead. No blame is attached to Mr. Price. Additional machinery is being put in the factory at Cannonville, and this addition renders another 100 horse power boiler and engine necessary.

Mrs. Mary Wade, living near Winston, has in her possession a mahogany box which her grandmother brought over from England over 150 years ago.

W. M. Moore, of Davidson county, has a chicken with four legs and three wings. It was hatched on his farm and lived a week. The chicken is now preserved in alcohol.

The Sam Jones tabernacle, with a seating capacity of 5,000, has been completed in Charlotte and a choir of 150 voices is in training for the services which begin April 24.

J. S. Warner, of Linville, was burnt out of house and home last week. Mr. Warner saved nothing of any consequence. There is a petition in circulation to aid him in his distress.

Clem Fair, bucked one hundred and one years, at a hog and morgan. He came to town a few days ago with a lot of wooden garden implements which he had carried on his shoulder for ten miles.

The revival meeting at the Baptist church at Henderson, which commenced last Sunday, and continued through the week, has been attended by large congregations and has resulted in many professions of faith.

James Reid was assessed $500 and given a year's imprisonment by the Rowan superior court for drawing a knife and making a vicious assault on a negro woman. He appealed and the supreme court affirmed the decision.

Charlotte wants a large number of horned nests for the 20th of May celebration. They will bring from ten to twenty-five cents each, according to size. The Charlotte News says bring them in. Chas. D. G. Maxwell is agent of the purchasing committee and will buy fifty nests.

Chief of Police Renn, of Oxford, arrested a negro for stealing an ox. While conveying him to jail the negro drew a 32-caliber bull dog pistol and would have killed the officer had he not caught the pistol in time to change the course of the ball. The negro is now in jail.

Charlie Davidson had his foot severely mashed at the Mecklenburg ice works in Charlotte. As the ice was being taken from the cans in which it is formed, a heavy block fell on Mr. Davidson's foot, bruising it severely, and breaking some of the bones.

The Maxton Union learns that Alfred Ledbetter, one of the county chain gang, made an effort to escape a few weeks ago and in doing so jumped into lumber river, but having a nail and chain in him he went to the bottom and was not found till a few days ago.

A strange freak of nature comes from Davidson county, or near the border line, where it appears that a mare belonging to Mr. Emanuel Nitong gave birth to a twin colts recently, one of which is a horse and the other a mule colt. The story has plenty of backing.

The six year old son of Mrs. Branson Counts, of Davidson county, committed suicide by burning himself to death. He crawled into a large box of broom straw and deliberately struck a match and set the straw on fire. He was so badly burned that he only lived a short while.

The Lumberton Robesonian learns that the Big Swamp improvement company are to erect a $60,000 mill at the mouth of the swamp. They have already expended $15,000 on the draining of the swamp and are soon to put a boat in for hauling timber to the mill.

Mr. Sylvanus Wilson, of Lincolnton, died a few minutes after having his leg amputated. This was rendered necessary by his meeting with the misfortune about a month ago to get his leg broken in two places, by his horse running away with a cart. The deceased was a school teacher, and a worthy young man.

The Raleigh correspondent of the Richmond Times says: "John W. Thompson, recently steward of the insane asylum, will be democratic candidate for clerk of the court, against Charles D. Uphurch, republican, who has held office for years. The local election here is expected to be very interesting and close."

President Elliott, of the Wilmington and Weldon railroad, and General Freight and Passenger Agent Walters, have been in Raleigh negotiating for right of way to run travel of their line into that city. If they succeed in making the arrangements they will aid in building the new depot at Raleigh, and the cost will then be $75,000.

Redden Sherrod, of Edgecombe county, says he has planted the "old yellow pink" Irish potato for thirty-three years without intermission, and got the same from his father, who planted them for fifty years before, and only recently has he used any other variety. Through all these decades they maintained their reputation by a "survival of the fittest."

A dispatch from Raleigh says that it is stated that the real number of negroes who have left the State in the last fifteen months is over 70,000. This estimate is carefully made and approaches near the truth. The causes of the exodus are really only two in number. First, the short crops, and second, the persuasions of the labor agents. There is no politics in the matter and no "oppression."

Much of the popularity of Congressman Cowles, says the Charlotte Chronicle, is due to his chivalrous and sympathetic nature. As brave as men dare be, yet as gentle and compassionate as a woman. His is a responsive nature, sympathetically absorbent. All the horror of his recent experience rushed over him at once, and he stood in paternal sorrow over the mangled corpse of his loved son. There are no hearts in North Carolina that do not beat in responsive sympathy with the sobbing heart of Mr. Cowles.
