Light on the Path.

Oh, mourner, making thy piteous moan,
"What shall I do? How can I go
Down through the desolate days alone?"
Wait! for the righteous light is sown;
Wait, and the dawn shall grow.
One by one come the desolate days;
It is only to-day that toucheth thee,
Look straight before thee! some guiding rays
Shine now on the path. Go on with praise
In the light that thou canst see.
—Washington Gladden

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

A striking affair—A prize-fight.
A paying business—The cashier's.
A dead failure—A deceased bankrupt.
It was a dentist who complained in the country that a wasp has only one tooth.
"That puts a different face on it," said a swindler when he raised a check from $20 to $200.
It is peculiar how sound a man sleeps when his wife crawls over him on her way to the kitchen to make a fire.
The young lady in the novel who "tripped lightly down the stairs" to meet her lover used court plaster for her injuries.
A member of the Colorado legislature in addressing that august body began: "My fellow-statesmen." His bill passed unanimously.
There is a five-legged mule in Missouri. This seems to be adding insult to injury, as well as a leg to the mule.—Detroit Free Press.
When you buy peanuts, that's a quart. When you pay for them, that's a quarter. And when you have disposed of them, that's a quartette.

Six Jersey men have banded together to raise 1,000,000 watermelons for this year's market, and yet we talk about the wickedness of Nihilist conspiracies.

Jones: "I see Smith has taken to riding a bicycle. What on earth is he doing that for?" Robinson: "Oh, a very simple reason—to prevent Mrs. Smith from going with him!"

A young Iowa farmer writes to his friends in the East, who have been urging him to marry, that he cannot keep a wife on "thin wind and pond water and sleeping on a rail fence."

The "Boss" System Among Esquimaux Dogs.

There is always one bully in every team, who gets all the choice bits that are stolen by the others, and generally manages to keep fat, no matter how short they are of provisions. He waits for the others to make the raid, and then stands on the outside to take it away from them. These bullies are in several grades. There is the chief, of whom all are afraid, and then there is the next in rank, of whom all are afraid but the chief; a third, of whom all are afraid but the two, and so on down. Sometimes the food is cut into small pieces and thrown out upon the ice for all to help themselves, and then there is a rough-and-tumble fight, and snarling and growling, as if a whole cage of hyenas had broken loose. But here the bullies have no advantage; indeed, the advantage is with the small, lively fellows that slip in and get the meat while the big ones are fighting. When a dog manages to steal a piece of meat he has a lively time of it, for soon every dog in camp is after him, and he has to eat it on the run, if at all, headed off at every turn by one of the bullies, and whining and choking at the same time. It certainly is one of the most comical exhibitions ever witnessed.—Scribner.

[Detroit Post and Tribune.]

"I have a little girl," said Mr. Henry Dole, of this city, in a conversation, "who was troubled with a severe lameness in her legs, pronounced by a physician as Erysipelas, by others Rheumatism. I had tried several remedies without effect, when I was induced to apply St. Jacobs Oil and I am happy to say that the use of but one bottle cured her, and she is now able to go to school again."

The Noise of Niagara.

Mr. William L. Carpenter, in writing of a visit to the Falls of Niagara last winter, heartily sympathizes with the impression which the sound of the mighty rush of water made upon Mr. Schuyler, who thus concluded an article in Scribner's: "I have spoken only of the pitch and rhythm of Niagara. What is the quality of its tone? Divine! There is no other word for a tone made and fashioned by the infinite God. I repeat, there is no roar at all—it is the softest music upon earth."

[Attleboro Chronicle.]

Carry the News.

Mr. John Etzensperger, Manufacturing Jeweler of North Attleboro', Mass., lately communicated to us the following: I suffered so much with pains in my arm, that at times I was completely helpless. I used that incomparable remedy St. Jacobs Oil and was completely cured as if by magic.

The truly great and good, in affliction, bear a countenance more princely than they are wont; for it is the temper of the highest hearts, like the palm tree, to strive most upward when it is most burdened.

The Greatest Blessing.

A simple, pure, harmless remedy, that cures every time, and prevents disease by keeping the blood pure, stomach regular, kidneys and liver active, is the greatest blessing ever conferred upon man. Hop Bitters is that remedy, and its proprietors are being blessed by thousands who have been saved and cured by it. Will you try it? See other column.

The slang word "crack" (as, a "crack" regiment) is a corruption of "crepe," to boast of. It is English university slang, and was in common use in Shakespeare's time.

Lips.

Lips, says our correspondent Bowditch, owe their extreme red color to the thinness of the covering membrane, and their sensitiveness to an abundant supply of minute nervous fibers. In a manly face the upper lip should extend beyond and dominate the lower. Fleshy lips are often found associated with a voluptuous, and meager ones with a passionless, nature. Lips are delicious things—blessings of many agreeable concomitants, such as smiles, sweet words, and those never-to-be-sufficiently-appreciated intensities denominated "kisses." There is something soothing and delightful in the recollection of a pure-minded woman's kiss; it is the oasis in the desert of a worldly man's life, to which his feelings turn for refreshment, when wearied with the unhallowed passions of this work-o'-day world. Lips are emotion's dwelling place, and passion's—their breathing giveth vitality to affections of all sorts, a friend's, a parent's, a sister's, a brother's, a lover's. Lips that smile are gems; those that cannot smile are like buds that cannot blossom, and which dry upon the stalks. Eternal praise to lips in general, and especially to the couple we hold dearest. Sir John Suckling in his ballad upon a wedding says:

"Her lips were red, and one was thin,
Compared to that was next her chin,
Some bee had stung it newly."

Doctors Gave Him Up. "Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?" "I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die!" "Well-a-day! If that is so, I will go this minute and get some for my poor George. I know hops are good."

Can Consumption be Cured? Read what Mr. William C. Digges, a merchant of Bowling Green, Va., writes under date of April 4, 1881. He says: "I firmly believe that Allen's Lung Balm will and has cured consumption if taken in time and proper care be taken of the patient both in suitable food and clothing. Six years ago my mother was attacked with pneumonia. The attending physician 'some time after' told me that the disease had settled on her Lungs, and that she had the consumption. Not believing that a permanent cure could be effected, but thinking I might be able to get an expectorant not containing opium, which would afford some relief, I inquired of a druggist at Richmond, Va., if he had any medicine not containing opium that was a good expectorant. He then recommended Allen's Lung Balm, which I purchased and induced my mother to try. Before she had taken the first bottle the improvement in her condition was so marked that I purchased three more bottles. The attending physician, seeing the beneficial effects, recommended its continued use, and in about twelve months her lungs were pronounced cured. Upon my recommendation many others who had the consumption have been cured. I think you can claim for your medicine the following: Expectoration without irritation, and healing of the lungs by keeping them free from foreign substances, thus arresting and curing this dread disease." Mr. Digges says he writes because he wants it known that Allen's Lung Balm is doing good.

From Major Downs, Military Instructor, Mt. Pleasant Academy. "Sing Sing, N. Y., February 15, 1881. James A. Hart, Druggist, Dear Sir—During the very severe cold weather I was suffering with Catarrh. My head and throat ached so severely that I was obliged to give up everything and keep quiet. I had tried a number of remedies, but none of them did me the slightest good. ELY'S CREAM BALM was suggested to me. I bought a package at your store. Within an hour's time from the first application I felt relieved and the pain began to subside. I continued to use it, and in two days was entirely cured. This testimonial has not been solicited. I take pleasure in recommending anything that will relieve those suffering with Catarrh. Very respectfully, W. A. Downs." Price, 50 cents. On receipt of 50 cents will mail a package.
