

NERVOUS AND HALF-SICK WOMEN

These Letters Recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Will Interest You

For Your Own Good Please Read Them

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I'm willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I can't say to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. FRANK HEASTY, 141 S. Jackson St., Youngstown, Ohio.

would often sit down and cry, and was always blue and had no ambition. I was this way for over a year and had allowed myself to get into quite a serious condition. One day I saw your advertisement in the daily paper and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. I have improved ever since taking the third bottle and find it is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Benefited by First Bottle
"I was completely run down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and had no energy to get up when once I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in our paper 'The Indiana Daily Times' and learned all about it. I received results from the very first bottle and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends it is due to you."—Mrs. ELIZABETH REINHOLD, 403 N. Pine St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

You should pay heed to the experiences of these women. They know how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound, and afterwards, too. Their words are true.

RESCUE WORK IN TURKEY

Springfield Republican.
Although the Greeks are sending reinforcements, there seems to be little hope that they will be able to check the advance of the Turks toward Smyrna; the city itself may be able to hold with the help of the allies, whose naval forces are gathering at the point of danger. What causes most concern is the rescue or protection of the Christian population in the region which the Greek army is evacuating, and an unpleasantly close parallel is to be drawn with the troubles of the allies after the consecutive defeats of Kolaknak, Denkin, Yudenitch, and Wrangel; in their vicarious wars since the armistice the allies have with amazing precision backed the wrong horse. For the present debacle they are collectively responsible, and upon them rests the more urgently the duty of doing what they can to save innocent lives.

To protect Greeks within Turkey may now be impossible after the stirring up of such intense hatred by outrage and massacre on both sides. Too much time has been wasted in vain efforts to apportion blame. In England particularly hara has been done by the lingering delusion among the Liberals, left over from Gladstone's day, that only Turkish communitarianism is to be held responsible for the atrocities. No doubt in point of the numbers of the victims they hold the record, from the magnitude of their empire. But, as the shocking revelations of the Balkan commission of 1912 showed, there is little enough difference between Turk and Christian in this respect, and Greek, Serb, Bulgar and Albanian have butchered each other with the utmost cruelty and brutality. This is not the least of the reasons why many people who had studied the Blakan question were appalled at the decision of the allies in 1920 to sanction an invasion by the Greeks of Smyrna and its Turkish hinterland. The consequences are described by Prof. Arnold Toynbee in his new book, "The Western Question in Turkey and Greece."

"During the early summer of 1921 I was for some weeks in intimate contact with Greek soldiers and civilians then engaged in atrocities upon Turkish peasants and with the survivors of their victims whom the Ottoman Red Crescent was attempting to rescue. My strongest impression during this horrible experience was of something inhuman both in the blood-thirstiness of the hunters and in the terror of the hunted."

He was then engaged in getting Turkish men, women, and children into the rescue ships. Now the fortune of war has changed and it is the Christian population that must be rescued. The duty is imperative, and the cost must not be allowed to stand in the way. At least a home can be found for these exiles; in this respect their case is more fortunate than that of the Russian refugees after Wrangel's defeat, whose sufferings are one of the most sorrowful chapters in the history of our time. One suggestion has been to transfer them to Thrace, but before that is considered the future of Thrace should be quite definitely fixed. It is barely possible that some means can still be found to guarantee their security in their old homes in Turkey, but this would require such unanimity of purpose as the allies have never yet shown in their handling of the question of the Near East. To their lack of unanimity, indeed, both the Greco-Turkish war and this tragic consequence of it are due.

THINGS YOU CAN DO WITH DATES

Dates are fine food for this time of year. These recipes are aimed to appeal to the most discriminating.

One-fourth cup butter or other fat, one-fourth cup sugar, one egg, two cups flour, five teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, one-half cup corn meal, one and one-half cups milk, one cup chopped dates. This quantity makes 12 muffins. Cream butter and add sugar slowly, creaming them together. Add well beaten egg. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and corn meal together and add to egg mixture alternately with milk. Add floored dates and mix thoroughly. Pour into greased muffin pans and bake in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Date Tea Cakes
Twenty-four dates, 12 marshmallows, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, two tablespoons butter, one-third to two-thirds cup milk, one egg yolk, one-half cup chopped almonds. This makes about 24 cakes. Remove pits from dates and replace with half a marshmallow. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Cut in butter with knife or rub in with tips of fingers. Add milk and mix. Roll out to one-half-inch thickness and cut into rounds. In the center of each round place a stuffed date. Moistens cakes and fold one-half over the other. Brush tops with beaten egg yolk and sprinkle with nuts. Place in greased pan and bake in hot oven about 15 minutes.

Health Muffins
One cup flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups bran, one cup chopped dates, one egg, one cup milk, one tablespoon melted butter or other fat. This quantity makes 12 muffins. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add bran and dates and mix thoroughly. Add well beaten egg, milk and butter. Beat until thoroughly mixed and pour into greased muffin pans. Bake in moderate oven 25 to 30 minutes.

MARK TWAIN'S CONNECTICUT YANKEE PASTIME TOMORROW
Tomorrow and Friday the Pastime theatre will present William Fox's super special Mark Twain's greatest comedy, "A Connecticut Yankee" in King Arthur's Court. The greatest satire in the history of literature. Staged by Emmett J. Flynn. This great picture ran 63 weeks in New York, and 40 weeks in Boston. The Motion picture News of New York says:

"From Mark Twain's story William Fox has produced a photoplay version which will please American picture audiences. He has taken a modern young American, transplanted him in a dream to the 6th century when King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table held forth in Britain and then piled one comic incident on top of another as the young fellow proceeds to Yankeeize and modernize the days of jousts and iron clad warriors. It is a clever satire. The production from a scenic standpoint would bring joy to the ghost of Tennyson."

There are any number of good laughs from the time the Yankee awakes to find a mounted knight above him inviting him to "joust." The picture is really subtly disguised flag-waving. It says the same thing as the village orator on the Fourth of July—that we are the luckiest, gamest, nerviest and most democratic nation in the world—but it says it only insinuatingly. That is its greatest appeal.

LITTLE MOTHER HAPPY AGAIN
"For the past nine years I have been very much distressed with bloating and stomach trouble due to constipation since I was a child. No medicine gave me more than temporary relief. I got so bad I was afraid I would have to leave my three little children. But since taking a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy two years ago I have been entirely well; no constipation or other trouble." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. For sale at all druggists.—Adv.

ROADWAY TEARLE
PASTIME TODAY
The feature attraction at the Pastime theatre today will be Conway's "A Wide Open Town" a new picture. The title would seem to indicate there is some gambling in the photoplay, a considerable amount of the action depending upon the activities of a group of desperadoes in the goddess of chance who are operating in the small American city. The interest in the pictures comes from the development of the principal character from a ragged little urchin, born amidst the most unhappy environment, into a successful young business man after having gone through a reform school.
Faire Binney, who has appeared in a number of important stage productions on Broadway recently has the leading feminine role in the photoplay. Bobby Connelly and Jerry Devine are also in the cast.

"Is the Product Right"

It is a maxim of advertising that a poor product cannot be successfully advertised. It may flash upon the scene with brilliance, become the talk of the hour, and to all appearances be destined to set new records, but unless it is and does what is claimed for it, no amount of printers' ink and artist's colors can give it permanence.

Once in a while some article of merchandise will appear to defy this rule, but not for long. Public response, at first, perhaps, quick and active, becomes slower and slower. Sales fall off. The business grows sick, and in a few months or a few years, the very name of the product is forgotten.

Advertising men know this so well that today the first question upon which they must be satisfied before they will recommend advertising to any manufacturer is—Is the product right?

And merchandise that is right—merchandise that will satisfy in service—merchandise that will bring customers back for another purchase is the first requirement of the jobber and the retailer who expect to endure and flourish.

There is no better assurance of this kind of merchandise than an advertising pledge to the public.
