NOW FOR UNITY

The Record does not believe there have been a time within recent years when there was more unity of purpose in Hickory than there is at the present.

The members followed this successful canvass by electing a board of directors who will give their time and attention to the work. They will take up a fight so ably carried on for community building by the old chamber.

Every member of the board of directors, every member of the larger body, will have his ears open for suggestions to make Hickory and Catawba county better and greater.

This ought to be the beginning of the best two years in the life of Hickory. It will be that if every member does his duty.

DISAGREE WITH HARVEY

Dr. Plato Durham, who can wield a pen or use his voice with equal facility, went after Col. George Harvey in terms that the ambassador to the court of St. James will understand.

In his address Dr. Durham said: "Were Mr. George Harvey a hundred times ambassador to the court of St. James, I still would say that he spoke with the tongue of Ananias and with the heart of Judas."

Posts of the American legion in various parts of the country also are after Colonel Harvey.

A TIMBER-STARVED COUNTRY

New York Herald To the American public needing more houses and paying excessive rents it may seem incredible, but it is a fact that congress leaders want to tack a one dollar a thousand tariff duty on rough lumber, and a two dollar duty on finished lumber.

Never mind the timber shortage in the United States, with an estimated lack of suitable shelter for 1,250,000 families. Never mind the timber shortage in the United States, with a yearly growth equal to only one-seventh of the country's requirements.

Never mind the prospect that, as production and consumption are now measured, the timber supply of the country will be exhausted in 50 years.

STILLMAN DIVORCE HEARINGS POSTPONED

By the Associated Press. Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 1.—Hearings in the divorce suit by James A. Stillman, the New York banker, against the former "Fifi" Potter, were postponed today until June 7. Illness of Mrs. Potter was the cause.

"MIDSUMMER MADNESS" A GREAT PICTURE

Arthur James, editor of the Moving Picture World after a pre-view of "Midsummer Madness" printed the following signed editorial in the World.

Great moving pictures are few, although many productions may be called excellent. "Midsummer Madness," the third important production created by William DeMille, steps into greatness and classifies itself by absolute merit as a superb entertainment.

It has that fine virtue of being a complete dramatic structure to begin with. To this have been added real acting, beautiful photography, a sense of taste and composition. It is unquestionably the greatest legitimate dramatic production the screen has ever seen.

POSTAL MORALE

Postmaster General Hays's Plans for Co-operation (Postmaster-General Will H. Hays in the Outlook.)

Industrial managers are far ahead of the postal management in application of the co-operative principle between employer and employe. They have found its application brings not only great personal satisfaction, but highly profitable gains.

We must get away in the postal service from any idea that labor is a commodity. I would reiterate the suggestion that that idea was abandoned 1921 years ago. We have in the postal service employes who belong to their unions and some that do not.

other and all for the public.

I have found in the postal service, as will be found elsewhere, some officials whose conception of discipline is bordering on abjection. They have so long entertained the notion of their own superiority, or of their own dignity, that they cannot comprehend a partnership relation of official and employe, where kindness, courtesy and consideration are the very foundation of good discipline.

I think this wrong official attitude may be illustrated by citing the fact that a certain official wrote to a clerk who had appealed his case that he did not feel called upon to submit the case for consideration of the department. He said it was not deemed a matter of concern of a clerk what the attitude of the department was relative to his stand in the matter.

Personal contact and getting the others' viewpoint are the plain work tools one requires in fashioning a workable body. I want credit to go to the person who does the work and I propose to see that this is done. I want every person in the postal service to try to do a little better each day than the thing he has been doing rather than a man would try to do a thing and make a mistake than not to try at all.

WORKED HIS WAY TO TOP

James W. Harris, on April 1, 1879, was given a job on a construction gang of the California Street Cable Car company of San Francisco. Just 42 years later Mr. Harris was made president and general manager of the company and chairman of the board of directors.

worked received minus points for his mistakes, and he was at a disadvantage over the clerk who was smart enough to protect his record and neglect his work.

We are going to have a welfare department just as definite in its duties and certain in its functioning as the fiscal department or any other department. It will be in charge of an individual competent to look after it, doing nothing else.

Just how far I can go with it in the post-office department I don't know, but it is certain that very much can be done, and not in any sense in lieu of wages. All the things that are done successfully for the welfare of the employes in other successful businesses must be done as far as possible in this, the greatest of all business. If we can improve the spirit and actual conditions of the 300,000 men and women who do this job, that in itself is an accomplishment, and it is just as certain to bring a consequential improvement in the service as tomorrow's sun.

We are going to deal the same way with those outside the postal service who have complaints against it. We are going to hear them all. They are going to get the same just consideration as every postal worker. Co-operation outside and inside the service is our slogan.
