Here shall the press the people's rights maintain,
 Unswayed by influences and unbribed by gain.

A PRAYER.

O thou great source of truth and knowledge, we remember before thee the writers of books, the newspaper men and all whose calling it is to gather and win new facts and to inform the people. Grant them a determined love for honest work and a staunch hatred for the making of lies, lest they pervert the judgment of our nation and teach us to call light darkness and darkness light. Suffer them not to drug the mind of our people with falsehood and prejudice. Since the sanity and wisdom of a nation are in their charge, may they count it shame to set the baser passions of men on fire for the sake of gain.
 Grant them boldness to turn the unwelcome light on those who love the darkness because their deeds are evil. Put into their hands the shining sword of truth, and make them worthy sons of the champions of the people in the past who held truth to be a holy thing for which men should die. Make them realize that they have a public function in the commonwealth, and that their country may be saved by their courage and undone by their cowardice and silence.
 Grant them the heart of manhood, to cast their mighty influence with the forces which make the people strong and free, and if they suffer loss, may they rejoice in that as proof to their own souls that they, too, have been friends of the common man and servants of the higher law.

The hens have refused to lay the golden egg until they see how the election is going.

The Review offers a prize of $10 to the first man or woman who successfully aviates over Deep River.

Dix to be the next governor of New York and Gaynor the next president of the United States, is they way the democrats have the thing mapped out now—or at least many of them.

With Mary Ann Butler, Tommy Settle, Sunny Jim Sherman and Booker T. Washington all speech-making in the Tar Heel State looks like there should be enough variety for everybody.

The Athletics have administered a terrible punishment to the big angry looking cubs. Who says the people are asleep in the Quaker city? It's in order to give the Windy City the title "Sleepy City" now.

The America II, is still unaccounted for and searching parties are out trying to find the balloon and its occupants which it is believed traveled the farthest in the big balloon race out of St. Louis last week.

"Making it hard to be dishonest" is a head line if Tuesday's papers. The way proposed is to stand over the man who holds the money—a kind of espionage. But who is going to watch the man who is watching the other fellow?

What has become of "Dear Uncle Joe" any way? Is he still standing pat? You know "Joe-y" is several times a millionaire on a $7,500 job. Wonder how that little sum could have ever amounted to so many millions? Of course there are some people who know! Wonder also if that automobile Congress appropriated him is rusty since no appropriation was made for a chauffeur?

There is great ado over the coming of Booker T. and what advice he has given his race, etc., but from late accounts it looks like the negro educator hasn't been sticking to his text but if he would keep the friendship of the Southern white people who he claims is the best friend the negro ever had he had better look straight ahead.

A thing calling himself a man who will take advantage of a man's sickness over which he had no control and use the time to lie about him, even going to the trouble to cripple his business, in an underhand way, is a dirty rascal out and out and the world should condemn such. This masquerading in sheep clothes by a retrobate may have its day but a reckoning time is coming. We have seen many a man with his henchmen and his army of "me-toos" torn to pieces and exposed. Even the gates of Jerusalem were battered down.

THE TARIFF HISTORY OF BEEF STEAK

Concrete illustrations of the workings of the tariff law in this country are the best arguments for a tariff for revenue only. An epicurean reader of the New York World has been estimating the effect of the tariff on the history of beefsteak, and his findings are most interesting.

The tariff on beefsteak alone is 1 1/2 cents the pound. That is not so bad. Yet there are other things to be considered. Mr. Consumer. The butcher sliced up that steak with a knife that is taxed 40 per cent, and chopped it with a cleaver that is taxed as much. The wooden chopping block is taxed 35 per cent. The scales on which the steak is weighed are taxed 45 per cent, and the paper in which it is wrapped is taxed 35 per cent.

The kitchen period of the career of the steak comes next. It is cooked on a stove taxed 45 per cent. It is trimmed with a knife taxed 40 per cent, or more. It is broiled on utensils taxed 40 per cent. It lies on a platter taxed 55 per cent, and a plate taxed 50 per cent. The knife and fork are taxed at least 40 per cent, if not more. The pat of butter is taxed 6 cents the pound. The pepper is taxed a fifth of a cent, an ounce. The Worcestershire sauce is taxed 40 per cent. The prepared mustard is taxed five-eighths of a cent an ounce. The celery is taxed 40 per cent. The salt is taxed one tenth of a cent a pound. The pickles are taxed 40 per cent, the apple sauce, 35 per cent.

This is putting an average duty of 40 per cent, upwards on the table, but what are we going to do about it? Some of us would be fully satisfied if we could just get the steak without the "trimmings," leaving off the tax—but we all have to pay together. The chronicle of beefsteak, however, is pretty good evidence as to the cause of the high cost of living.

The editor spent the whole of last week in Baltimore, whither he went on account of ill health, to consult a stomach specialist. Here, every one knows of the reputation of Dr. Lucius Fredenwald, from the street urchin to the capitalist, and although we left home to see Dr. Hemmeter, another equally as good physician, we decided on the former, and for one week were under his care at the Mercy Hospital. We were thumped upon, rolled around, dieted, bathed internally as well as externally, surveyed from the head to the feet and diagrammed here and there, X-rayed, bled, and photographed and then conclusions were reached, and, strange to say, we are still living.

In the hospital we could look across the various wings and see hundreds of patients on the five floors, some convalescing, some dying, others already dead, while in the operating rooms the surgeons were busy. Here and there flitted the angels of mercy—the nurses and the Sisters or Nuns. Everyone received good attention whether in the free wards or the handsomely fitted private rooms. Surely, one must become impressed with the great and unselfish work the Sisters of Mercy perform daily. Practically shut out from the world, they minister daily to the sick and suffering and find it their haven. On my floor all during the hours of the night "Sister Superior" goes from room door to room door to see if all is well. No groan, no cry of distress goes unheeded. Everything moves in clock-work precision.

Speaking of Dr. Friedenwald to show how he stands, it is only necessary to say that he is undoubtedly the busiest man in Baltimore. Outside of his city practice scores of out-of-town people come to see him and European engagements are made every now and then. Thursday he was called to the bedside of Senator Stephen B. Elkins, of West Virginia, returning here Saturday morning.

Speaking of Baltimore in general, it has all the variety that goes to make up a city, that you are looking for. The great fire of several years ago had the result of making the burned section bigger and better in the way of buildings. The Emerson Hotel and four other skyscrapers are now in course of construction and the Baltimore News, now owned by the Munsey syndicate, will erect one of the greatest buildings here beginning December 1st, although its present building is a magnificent one.

In company with Dr. J. R. Reitzel and Agent S. O. Schaub the editor had the pleasure Tuesday of visiting "Athol," a beautiful sanitarium for women whose nerves have become wrecked and dulled and who here find an ideal place in which to come back to their former self. Athol is situated six miles out on a high elevation surrounded by beautiful lawns and shaded walks and flowers. It is owned by Dr. Gundry, who has made a wonderful success in life. He has three other brothers running sanitariums, one at Washington, D. C. and two others here. His father was in charge of the State Institution for some time and the boys were all born in a sanitarium. We can picture no prettier place for such an institution. Mrs. Geo. T. Leach and Mrs. S. O. Schaub, of this city, are now at Athol.

While in Baltimore I had the pleasure of meeting the Great Sachem and the Great Chief of Records of Maryland, also Past Great Sachem Lowdenslager, Abell and Hayward, the latter being the oldest living Red Man in the United States, joining in 1854, the other two joining 1869 and 1875 respectively. Ottawa Tribe 16 with which I met has been in continuous operation 61 years and is the oldest tribe in America, even older than the Great Council of the United States. Maryland is the mother of the Improved Order of Red Men and is the only state that hasn't a charter from the national body for the reasons above named.

Mr. E. W. Blackburn, a former High Point, boy holds a responsible position with the big department store of Stewart near Ford's theatre.

The old Eutaw House, at one time the best hotel here, does a rushing business now although more modern structures have come to the front. It is said that after the big fire here which destroyed most of the downtown hotels, that the Eutaw cleaned up $85,000 from Feb. to June, charging exorbitant prices since the New York drummers and various representatives of trade centers were on hand and others needing quarters and had had to have them at any price. The "old landmark" received a black eye then from which it has never fully recovered.

The Pinlico horse races were on last week and thousands of sports were in the city. As usual, hundreds of thousands of dollars changed hands and there were many tales of woe.

Walking up Baltimore street I saw this slogan on the sign of the Baltimore Bargain House:

"Same goods for less money
 More goods for same money."

As the sign has been up there ten years I came to the conclusion that they were the originators of this slogan which has been overworked through the South.

The City Fathers of Baltimore are at least consistent—they let one sell soft drinks and ice cream along with cigars on Sunday, not discriminating between these, one being as necessary as the other. In other words no hypocrisy!!

The longer one stays in the Metropolis of the South the better he likes it and if it wasn't for dodging the street cars and other traffic and being scared of the sky scrapers falling on you and that you will be "copped" for rubbering believe I would like to live here—at least it would be a diversion—for you can be sure of one thing, every one doesn't know your business and don't care to know it and there's no tattlers to lie and misrepresent purposely, even among the newspaper fraternity.

TOLD FOR A MEMORIAL OF HER
 Matthew 26:1-16—October 30

"She hath done what she could."—Mark 14:3.
 In a previous study we considered the Great Teacher's triumphal entry into Jerusalem on the ass, and his tender of himself to the Nation of Israel as their King, in fulfillment of the prophecy of Zechariah 9:9-12. That was five days before the Passover. For several days Jesus taught in the temple, going at night to the home of Lazarus, Martha and Mary at Bethany. He knew what to expect—that his hour was come. He knew that even then the chief priests and elders of the people were considering his destruction and hesitating only lest it should cause tumult. Their indignation against the Great Teacher was that he did not teach as they taught and that his teachings had much more power with the masses than all their teachings combined. Anger, envy, hatred, united in branding him as an impostor and in sending him to his death, "for the good of the cause."

The feast at Bethany referred to in this study may have been on the night before our Lord's betrayal, two days before the feast of the Passover. But the consensus of opinion seems to be that it occurred on the Sabbath evening preceding the triumphal ride to Jerusalem. It matters not, however. There was such a feast. Jesus and his disciples were present. During the feast a woman approached with an alabaster flask of very precious perfume. She poured it upon his head and the entire room was sweet with the odor. The woman was Mary, the Sister of Lazarus and Martha.

Another account shows that the protest made by the disciples against this as a waste was instigated by Judas, the treasurer of the little company of the Lord's disciples. John remarked that he was a thief and carried the bag and intimated that he was more interested in the money than in the poor and that his mention of the poor was merely a subterfuge. But the Great Teacher rebuked his disciples, saying, "Why trouble ye the woman; for she hath wrought a good work upon me; in that she hath poured this ointment upon my body she did it to prepare me for burial. Truly I say unto you, Whosoever this Gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this which this woman hath done be told for a memorial of her" (Matthew xxvi. 10-13). How considerate was the Great Teacher! How sympathetic! How appreciative of everything done for him!

"She Hath Done What She Could"

The Lord, in line with all the Scripture teachings and usages, declines to recognize woman as a teacher of religion in the Church amongst his followers. No woman was given a place amongst the twelve Apostles—not even when the seventy evangelists were sent forth with the simple message, which any woman could have given, surely as glibly as any man, or more so; even on this mission he did not send women, nor even a representative of the sex. The man, in Scriptural usage, is the figure of the Lord; the woman, the figure of the Church. It would be out of harmony with the figure that the Church should be the instructor and the Lord the pupil. Consistently, therefore, it would have been improper for woman to have been commissioned to represent the Lord. Hence, women as teachers in the Church have no authority in the Bible for the position. We read that the serpent beguiled Mother Eve and made of her a teacher of er-the lesson from the Book and not attempt to teach the Book.

"The Poor Always With You"

Our Lord, in reply to the argument of Judas, that the ointment should have been sold for a large sum for the benefit of the poor, answered, The poor ye have always with you. Whosoever ye will ye may do them good; but me ye have not always. Poverty is sure to be a factor in the social order during the present time, because, in our fallen condition as a race, some are more brilliant of mind than others and selfishness is the general rule. Hence until the end of the reign of sin and death the poor will be here. And there is a blessing attached to every good deed, every noble endeavor to help any member of the race to higher and better conditions, mentally, morally, physically. By and by there will be no poor, for, under the Kingdom condition, love will be the ruling principle, instead of selfishness.

"But Me Ye Have Not Always"

This was true of the Master. A lit the while and he was gone from them ascended to the Father's right hand. The same principle prevails in respect to the Lord's followers styled, "The members of his Body." Whatever we can do for these members, the great Head will consider as though done unto himself. While, therefore, it will always be in order to do good unto all men as we have opportunity, it will always be in order also to do good "especially unto the household of faith."

The spirit of selfishness in Judas led on from one degree to another of covetousness until he was willing to sell his Master to his enemies. Alas, what a terrible power for evil is selfishness. How many are willing to barter the Truth for the sake of worldly ease or prosperity! Such as have the spirit of the Truth to a considerable extent should beware of where selfishness leads if followed—to the Second Death.

Don't Break Down

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength.
