DURHAM, N. C.

FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1894

THE GLOBE FOR 1894

Will be conducted with a large majority of pen and a small sprinkling of scissors.

Will fight fair, and be honest with friends and foes.

Will continue to print the news, as news goes.

Will be a paper for the home and the fireside, as well as for the office and the factory.

Will be independent, bearing the imprimatur of no party and wearing the shackles of no man.

GOOD EVENING!
Have You Read The Globe?

DULL TIMES

Are times for hustling. The judicious advertiser strikes home when the pocket book is low. When the trade don't come to him he goes to the trade.

THE GLOBE reaches the trade you want.

WILL CLEVELAND VETO THE BILL?

The press dispatches this morning state that Mr. Cleveland will refuse to sign the Bland bill for the coinage of the seigniorage. This is contrary to former reports. There are enough administration democrats to defeat what ever measure is obnoxious to the administration.

If the Bland bill had been opposed by Mr. Cleveland, it would most likely have been defeated in the House. That would have settled the matter without putting the responsibility of a vote upon Mr. Cleveland.

But the bill has gone through its second reading in the senate. And indeed it came near being rushed through Wednesday. If Mr. Cleveland had wished to defeat the measure, one word from the administration leaders would have killed it in a twinkling.

These things would seem to indicate that Mr. Cleveland approved the bill, or at least did not oppose it.

But it would be very like him to let the bill go through both houses, and then vote it, saying to the single-standard men, "Behold, what I have done."

Still Washington correspondents are notably unreliable, and the opposition of Cleveland may only exist in the brain of some sensational newspaper man.

HAWAII'S FUTURE.

Affairs in Hawaii have always interested Americans ever since Don Quixote Stevens raised the stars and stripes at Honolulu and proclaimed an American protectorate over the Kanakans.

The bold bravery of Dole and the provisional government, the blood thirstiness of the dusky queen, the strange and unusual diplomatic complications involved in the affair have engaged our attention for many months.

Dispatches state that a constitutional convention has been called to formulate a definite form of government.

A platform of principles has been substantially agreed upon as follows:

1. To support the provisional government.
2. Resist the restoration of monarchy.
3. Establish a practicable form of representative government.
4. The government to be united as soon as possible with that of the United States.
5. Liberal policy in disposing of public lands in small tracts to actual settlers and discouraging large speculative holdings.
6. Revision of the taxation system, large estates to bear their proper share of the public burdens.
7. Favor immigration of Portuguese and other whites to replace Asiatics.
8. No class legislation discrimination against any class of loyal citizens.
9. Liberal system of productive public works.
10. Needed labor and material for public service not to be imported from abroad if procurable here.
11. No prison labor to be employed in mechanical work.
12. No persons to be employed by the government unless loyal to it.

THE RACE IS ON.

Since the patent on the hand phones of the American Bell monopoly expired February 1, exchanges have been forming in various parts of the country offering to furnish phones at half the rate of the Bell company.

But since the first patent on the essential principle of the telephone, many other improvements, almost essentials, have been added to the Bell instrument, and these are all covered by patents that will not expire for several years yet.

And the Bell company will not soon release its "dead clinch" on the microphone, and the valuable Berliner and Edison patents.

These new telephone exchanges will either have to get another phone from that now used or else pay the Bell monopoly a big royalty.

Popular telephone service will be a godsend to the country, but it looks as if we were not quite out of the woods yet.

The American Bell company is strong, wealthy, influential. It will of course do everything it can to hold its grip on the telephone.

But the new exchanges have the people on their side. Lots of people will rather use inferior 'phones, than let the monopoly win the fight.

The race is on. The best horse will come in first at the finish.

Senatorial Deals in Sugar.

[Washington Cor. Philadelphia Record.] The remarkable rise of sugar stock this morning was controlled by a few senators. One Washington broker said this morning that one of his senatorial customers made $68,000 inside of two hours, and there are rumors of an investigation of the New York stock exchange concerning the transaction. There were more inquiries over the price of sugar to day than over the tariff schedules, and the telephones between the capitol and the brokers' offices were kept busy all morning.

The committee has made a good selection in choosing W. A. Montgomery, Esq., to deliver the memorial day address at Raleigh this year. He served under Gen. W. D. Fender, who will be the subject of the address, and he is an entertaining and instructive speaker.

The Greensboro Record says that some persons at that place are passing stamps on merchants—stamps from which the cancellation marks have been removed by a chemical process.

Mr. Gladstone is reported quite ill from the effects of a chill.
