CYCLONE WORKS HAVOC IN SOUTH CAROLINA TOWNS

Six Killed and Many Wounded in Warrentonville and Langley This Morning About 5 A. M.

Augusta, Ga., March 7.—Six persons are known to have been killed and scores were injured in the wind and rain storm, which early today flooded streams and caused heavy property damage in this section of Georgia and South Carolina.

Four mill villages—Langley, Stilleton, Graniteville and Warrentonville, in the Horse Creek valley of South Carolina, were struck by the tornado just before daybreak today and houses were swept away, trees uprooted and telephone poles felled, leaving the section in darkness and without wire communication with the outside world.

The victims were caught under their fallen homes. In some sections the storm swept away everything in its path, scattering parts of buildings and furniture over the fields.

The dead are: Fred Hoover, 12; Dolly Mitchell, 5; Mrs. L. Munday, 40; Mrs. Boyd, 35; Son Wood, 14; Dorothy Wood, 8.

Many of the injured are expected to die. The estimates of the numbers injured in both Warrentonville and Stilleton are conservatively placed at 40.

Searchers are looking through the debris of the houses for dead and injured, many of whom are believed to be yet trapped under the fallen structures.

Twenty-two houses were razed at Warrentonville and six were razed and blown away at Stilleton.

Other of the injured are reported to be fearfully crushed, some internally and it is expected in this class of injured that further deaths will result. Many of the injured suffered broken limbs.

Reports from Warrentonville at noon were to the effect that practically every person there was scratched or bruised.

Bodies of the dead are said to be badly mutilated.

The storm struck Warrentonville about 5 o'clock this morning and it was three hours later before any information of the disaster reached the outside world. The town was completely isolated.

The B section of 9th grade was left out of the honor roll Friday. The names of Nellie Cadieu, J. D. Snyder, and Lee Todd should have appeared in the list.

Mr. W. A. Hardage has received the appointment as postmaster at Waxhaw. For some time Mr. Hardage has been assistant postmaster at Waxhaw and is qualified for the job.
