Eggs Cooked Just So

We have all been having boiled eggs for breakfast for so long that it is a considerable jolt to be told that we are unscientific and altogether in the wrong! It seems there is no such thing as a boiled egg after all. Eggs are not boiled, they are soft cooked, or hard cooked, to be exact in the matter. "A boiled egg," says Mrs. A. B. Williams, domestic science teacher, "is an impossibility; the water boils and the egg cooks. When eggs are cooked in rapidly boiling water they become indigestible. The albumen coagulates too rapidly, so that the egg tastes like rubber instead of being tender and delicate."

They just had an egg day in Mrs. Williams' school and six hundred and sixty-two and one-half dozen fresh eggs were used by five thousand, five hundred and twenty-five girls who are studying cooking there. One of the girls' note books says: "To soft cook an egg in the shell, place it in a vessel of rapidly boiling water; remove the water from the heat and let the egg remain in it six or seven minutes. When opened an egg cooked by this method will be of jelly-like consistency and of delicious taste. Hard cooked eggs should be subjected to a temperature of 160 degrees for fifty minutes. The vessel containing them should be near heat but not over it."

Evidently properly cooked hard boiled, or, that is, "hard cooked" eggs are not really intended for hurried breakfasts. Perhaps after all Emerson meant more than first appears when he wrote: "There is always a best way of doing everything, if it be but to boil an egg."

Hens went on the worst strike in history this past winter; one poultryman had nine hundred hens and for two weeks in December collected but five eggs daily. This month Biddy is making up for lost time and eggs are plentiful and lower in price than they will be again until next spring.

As early spring eggs have the best keeping qualities of any, why not put down a few dozen for next November use and beat the cold storage men?

John T. Timmins is a well known poultryman who claims that clean dry oats will keep eggs longer and better than anything else. Wheat bran is also good, but oats have the preference and the eggs do not damage the grain in the least, so it may be fed to the fowls later, in various ways, to produce more eggs.

The Government bulletin also recommends packing eggs in oats and storing them in a cool basement or spring house, but it is suggested that each egg be dipped in warm or melted vasoline before it is put into the grain. The coating of vasoline makes the egg shell air tight, so there is no loss of weight by evaporation. Salt is another medium eggs are packed in successfully.

Always pack eggs with their pointed ends down in the grain, or salt, but not touching the bottom of the box, or crock, or one another. There should be an inch of oats between each layer.

When the box is filled place a heavy layer of oats in the top and fasten the lid securely. Mark the date of packing on box. About twice a week carefully turn the box over; this keeps the eggs from settling and helps preserve them.

ADAPTED TO VARIOUS USES

Shetland Veil Scarf One of the Most Practical Trifles for the Woman Fond of Sports.

To a multitude of practical uses may this admirable veil be put: In the first place it is a comfortable motor veil, sheer and fine enough to make observation of all that is passing possible without the least strain on the eyes and is warm and cozy for wear when the wind comes keen and biting, against the face.

It is a delightful veil, also, for motor boat and yachting wear, for, tied about the head in cap fashion, with tassels knotted over the ears, it keeps the hair from flying about and protects the waving tresses from sea fogs and sea spray.

Used as a scarf it may be thrown over the shoulders at the theater or between dances, or over a lace blouse when one leaves the car for dinner at an out-of-door restaurant, and some protection from chill is desirable, though the big motor coat is too heavy for comfortable table wear.

Used as a sash, the veil scarf of pliable Shetland weave may be knotted about the hips over golf or tennis skirt, and be ready to throw around the shoulders when one rests after the game.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Logansport, Ind.—"My baby was over a year old and I bloated till I was a burden to myself. I suffered from female trouble so I could not stand on my feet and I felt like millions of needles were pricking me all over. At last my doctor told me that all that would save me was an operation, but this I refused."

told my husband to get me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I would try it before I would submit to any operation. He did so and I improved right along. I am now doing all my work and feeling fine.

"I hope other suffering women will try your Compound. I will recommend it to all I know."—Mrs. DANIEL D. B. DAVIS, 110 Franklin St., Logansport, Ind.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

A FEW GOOD SAUCES.

Many times a plain dish, if accompanied by a sauce, assumes a dignity of such importance that it makes it a family creation.

Egg Sauce.—Make a rich white sauce, using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour, a half teaspoonful of salt and a cupful of milk with a dash of paprika or a teaspoonful of onion juice. When the butter is bubbling hot add the flour and mix well, then stir in the milk, and when thick add the salt and onion juice. To this white sauce add two or three finely chopped hard cooked eggs and serve with a bit of lemon juice or a chopped sour pickle added to the sauce. This is a fish sauce, and may be used with either boiled or baked fish.

Curry Sauce.—Melt a tablespoonful of browned flour and a teaspoonful of curry powder. Add a cupful of boiling water and cook until smooth. Season with salt, red pepper and onion juice and serve with mutton.

Horseradish Sauce.—Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and half a tablespoonful of flour, when the butter is bubbling stir in the flour and cook until smooth, then add a cupful of strained soup stock, a half a cup of milk, six peppercorns, a speck of bay leaf and half a teaspoonful of salt. Cook five minutes, remove the peppercorns and the bay leaf and add three tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish. Cook two more minutes and serve. This is also good with fish, although it is used with many meats.

Celery Sauce.—Take a white sauce of two tablespoonfuls each flour and butter as above, add a pint of warm milk and a dozen stalks of celery minced and cooked tender, in enough water to cover. Add the celery and any of the liquor left, cook a few minutes to be sure that the flour is cooked, season with salt and pepper and serve hot with boiled fowl.

Tartar Sauce.—This is a mayonnaise dressing, to which has been added chopped pickles and a few capers, if so desired. Mayonnaise is made by beating the yolk of an egg until smooth and then adding olive oil, a few drops at a time alternating with lemon juice or vinegar, using four tablespoonfuls of lemon and three-fourths of a cup of oil. Salt and red pepper to taste.

When Making Apple Pie. When baking apple pie it is very much better to cut the apples in irregular slices, as they cook more quickly than if sliced evenly, for they do not pack closely. It gives the hot air a chance to come in contact more easily.

Handwork Chio. The demand for loosely woven fabrics, whether of wool or cotton, or the two in combination, is responsible for some of the most attractive linens and crepes this season. It is to be remembered that materials of this sort lend themselves readily to handwork, such as darning, crocheting and outlining. A little handwork goes a long way toward giving a home style and individuality.

Wanamaker Summer Sale of White

TOMORROW, MAY FIRST, we shall present a NEW White Sale---this being the thirty-sixth year of Wanamaker White Sales, each one of which we have tried to make better than the last. In this of 1914 we shall introduce the later styles of Paris in underclothes, blouses, negligees, house dresses, corsets and clothes for baby. As many as two hundred and ten American manufacturers are represented and twelve huge Paris cases of special White Sale garments have been opened this week. Brides will find here the New Exclusive Things at prices as low as those charged in some places for the usual and hackneyed---sometimes lower. Heads of families may choose among thousands of fresh garments at the year's minimum cost. Kindly take notice that each garment is made in a sanitary factory---especially, to Wanamaker orders.

The New Underclothes

Novelties, we call the underclothes that are exclusively made for the Wanamaker Store, in styles closely copying Paris designs. Such as the---

ALFA, the nightgown piped with blue or rose after a Paul Poiret idea---$1.25.
